WIND HITS NEW YORK AT 90 MILES AN HOUR

Freak Storm Is Accompanied by Lowest Barometer Ever Recorded Here.

COLD WAVE IS PROMISED

Building in Philadelphia Blows Down, Injuring Eleven—Central Track Undermined.

The weather in New York yesterday was described by Forecaster Scarr as phenomenal. As reported by the Weather Bureau the barometer dropped to 28.61 at 2 P. M., which was a record, the previous low pressure recorded having been 28.81. The wind blew at ninety miles an hour for thirty seconds at 2:45 o'clock, and from 2 o'clock until 3:30 it ranged from eighty to eighty-seven miles an hour. The forecaster and historian said this velocity has been surpassed only once. That was on Feb. 22, 1912, when the city was visited by a gale which blew at ninety-six miles an hour for five minutes. For duration and velocity the gale yesterday was a record one, as its maximum force lasted one hour and a half. Serious damage was reported from various places along the Atlantic Coast.

The temperature was as variable as the wind. At 1 o'clock, after the heavy rain which had been falling in the forenoon, it was 57. At 2 o'clock it had dropped to 49, and at 5 was 42. The wind had dropped to fifty miles an hour. At 8 o'clock the gale was accompanied by light snow flurries.

The dense fog which overhung the approach to the harbor during the forenoon did not reach the city. Capt. Henry B. Wilson of the United States battleship North Dakota, which was forced to anchor in the fog off Sandy Hook with the Florida and the British cruiser Natal, said the barometer fell lower than he had ever known it to do at sea, and Capt. William J. Maxwell of the Florida said the same.

Gale Holds Up Liners.

The gale which swept across the harbor yesterday afternoon from the Southwest and West caused several tugs and smaller craft to go aground and prevented the ocean steamships at Quarantine from proceeding to their piers with the exception of the Oceanic, Laurentic, and Potsdam, which got up before the full strength of the blast struck the city.

In an interview with a TIMES reporter yesterday Forecaster Scarr said the storm had been caused by several small depressions, extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the lake region combining and forming a cyclone. The centre was first at Washington, D. C., with the barometer at 28.90, and, gradually acquiring greater intensity, it reached New York at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, traveling toward the northeast, blowing sixty miles an hour.

From 2:46 to 2:56 o'clock the velocity of the wind was eighty-seven miles an hour. Horses and carts along the water front at Battery Park were bowled over like ten pins, and persons walking were driven into doorways or along the streets at such a rapid pace they did not dare to try to stop.

At the southeast corner of the Custom House on State Street there was a wind flume, and hats were blown straight up into the air over the building and were lost to the sight of their owners. A cart filled with cabbages was overturned at the same spot, and the contents were blown skyward and mingled with the disappearing hats. Carts were also overturned in West Street and at the South Ferry.

In all the open spaces in the city windows were broken and signs blown from buildings. Wagons were overturned on the Queensboro Bridge in the afternoon, and Bicycle Patrolman McAdam was thrown from his machine, dashed against the steel network of the bridge, and almost blown into the river. The wind also carried away 1,100 square feet of roofing from one of the buildings of the Astoria Light, Heat and Power Company.

A chimney weighing several tons hit the roof of the home of E. H. Edwards, 186 Quincy Street, Brooklyn, and went through into the room where Mrs. Edwards was sitting. The débris blocked the doorway, preventing her escape from the room, but she was not hurt.

The full force of the wind was felt in the harbor between the Battery and Governors Island, where boats of all sizes were blown about, crashing and bumping into each other as if they were in a typhoon in the Far Eastern seas. The ferryboat New York, which has been transferring immigrants from Ellis Island to the Battery, was put of commission by the storm, and 500 immigrants had to wait until they could be taken over by the tender Immigrant.

Some Brave Rescuers.

Twelve coal barges, which were being towed from the North to the East River went adrift off the Battery, and one was sunk before the tugs could come to the rescue. A scow, which was being towed past the Battery by the tug Golden Age, broke adrift and went ashore on Governors Island. A fireman from the tug got into the yawl and tried to get to the scow to take off the man who was steering, but his boat was capsized by the wind and both men were rescued by the tug J. L. Halenback.

The tug leader of the Newark Transportation Company went aground on Robbins Reef, and six of her crew were taken off by the Municipal ferry boat Bronx, Captain J. Smith. Capt. McKeaon and two of his crew refused to leave the tug. Capt. Smith manoeuvred the Bronx to the lee side of the stranded tug and got the men off with rope ladders.

A great deal of damage was done along the coast to pleasure craft and small boats that had been laid up for the Winter.

At Mays Landing, N. J., a number of small boats were sunk or blown to the beach. The naphtha launch of Capt. Simon Rammel was sunk and a small yacht belonging to Capt. Charles Godwin had a big hole stove in her side.

A three-masted schooner was driven ashore yesterday afternoon, about four miles northeast of Egg Harbor and blew signals of distress. The derelict destroyer Seneca went to her rescue.

In Trenton, N. J., the wind uprooted trees and kept the trolley car service at a standstill for several hours, on account of fallen wires. Chimneys were blown down and the cross on the top of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church was blown down and smashed. In Hackensack, part of the roof of the house belonging to L. Le Baron Johnson was blown away. The traffic on trolley lines was delayed there also.

Toward midnight the wind had dropped to 48 miles. The temperature had fallen to 30 degrees and according to the forecaster it would be down to 25 by morning.

Robert Walker, 40 years old, a painter, was blown from a scaffold outside the Long Island Railroad depot, at 3:30 P. M., and died in St. Mary's Hospital.

William J. Roome, a real estate operator of 101 East Fifty-seventh Street, was knocked down by the wind at 8 o'clock last night, while crossing Washington Street, near Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, and his left foot was amputated by a De Kalb Avenue car.

Mrs. Mary Kiddie of 1,570 Seventy-third Street, Brooklyn, was standing on the elevated platform of the Bath Beach

MOTOR THIEVES GET JEWELS.

Escape in Police Fusillade, Wounding Plucky Officer.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Four automobile bandits in a spectacular robbery smashed a jeweler's window here to-day and escaped with a tray of diamonds after a running revolver fight with police.

The thieves stole a car from in front of a downtown business building late in the afternoon, halted in front of a Clark Street jewelry store, beat in the show window with bricks, seized a tray of rings and leaped into their stolen automobile. Policeman Charles Hanson ran up, but at that moment a handsomely dressed woman shrieked and threw herself into his arms. Hanson could not draw his pistol, and the men in the automobile dashed away as two other policemen opened fire on them. The bandits returned the fire. One of the robbers was seen to fall into a seat of the machine and is thought to have been wounded. The woman who had appeared to faint recovered as soon as the men escaped.

Twenty shots were exchanged as the machine gathered speed. The chauffeur manipulated the exhaust so that it poured out a cloud of smoke, which aided in the men's escape. Policemen ran after the car and at the next corner commandeered a passing high-powered automobile and ordered its chauffeur to pursue the thieves, who, however, had so good a start that they outdistanced their pursuers.

The bandits' car was stopped later by Policeman Sticken in a traffic jam a few blocks from the scene of the robbery. Sticken arrested the chauffeur for speeding, and, standing on the running board, told him to take the party to a police station. The chauffeur pretended to obey, but soon turned into a side street. Sticken protested and received a stab wound over the left eye, a blow on the back of the head and a shot in the leg and was hurled from the car. The thieves fired several more shots at Sticken as he lay in the street and he fired several times at them.

Good descriptions of the men were given by citizens who saw them leap from the stolen car at the place at which they abandoned it.

RIVES RESIGNS FROM VESTRY.

Rector Gives Notice That He Was Not Expelled After Divorce.

The status of Reginald W. Rives, in Zion Church, Wappingers Falls, N. Y., was established yesterday by the publication of a note signed by Gerald A. Cunningham, rector of the church, and addressed "To whom it may concern." Stories were published last November, following Mr. Rives's divorce from his wife, that he had been expelled as a vestryman of Zion Church, and that his sisters, Mrs. John Borland and Mrs. Walter Smith, had withdrawn from the church at the same time, thus leaving the church in financial straits. The note signed by Mr. Cunningham reads:

> The records of the vestry of Zion Church, Wappingers Falls, show that Mr. Reginald W. Rives is a member of that body. His voluntary resignation is in the hands of the rector.

It is understood that Mr. Rives, in resigning, offered as a reason that he was no longer a resident of the State of New York, and was severing all his corporate interests in the State.

PAYS CALLAN LAW FINE.

Threat of Tombs Sentence Extracts First Money Paid by a Chauffeur.

Thomas J. Donovan, a chauffeur living at 400 West Forty-first Street, was fined $25 in Special Sessions yesterday after he had been convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Donovan, having been convicted under the Callan law, told Justices Zeller, Collins, and Fleming he could not pay his fine, and the Justices told him he would have to serve ten days in the Tombs. Donovan at once produced $25.

In saying Donovan would have to go to the Tombs if he didn't pay the fine, the Justices announced that they had discovered that Justices Salmon, Steinert, and McInerney were mistaken when they refused to imprison James Warley, another chauffeur, who was convicted under the same law, and released after he said he was unable to pay his fine. Donovan's counsel held that under the ruling of Justice Page of the Supreme Court no imprisonment could be imposed following a conviction under the Callan law.

BLEASE SWINGS BIG STICK.

Enemies Need Not Apply for Office —Revokes Many Commissions.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 3.—Gov. Blease to-day issued a long statement telling why he has revoked the commissions of many notaries public in all parts of the State during the last few days. He said some were political enemies and were known to have said that they were ashamed to have Mr. Blease's name on their commissions. In other cases the commissions were revoked because he had heard that the men had made wagers on the result of the Democratic primary election last Summer.

"I know of no better way to stop such gambling," said the Governor, "than to carry out the law and revoke the commissions of those who were guilty."

Gov. Blease reiterates that no man need apply to him for office unless he be "a Blease man."

Among the commissions revoked to-day are those of A. J. Bethea, who was private secretary to Gov. Ansel, and David H. Means, Clerk of the Sinking Fund Commission.

The Governor says he would have issued a general order revoking all the commissions at one time, but banks and other institutions asked him not to do so, as it would interfere with their business.

CALLS FOR 100,000 CENTS.

Lawmaker Asks Contributions to Pay Idaho Editors' Fines.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 3.—One hundred thousand persons are asked to give one cent each to pay the $500 fines imposed yesterday on R. S. Sheridan and C. O. Broxon, publisher and managing editor of the Capital-News, who in addition to their fines are serving ten-day sentences in the county jail. The movement was started by Representative Dow Duning of Owyhee County, who contributed the first cent and expressed the hope that there were 100,000 men and women in the United States who would follow his example and make similar contributions "for the cause of freedom."

Sheridan and Broxon, with A. R. Cruzen, were punished by the Idaho Supreme Court for contempt in publishing the criticism by Col. Roosevelt of the court's decision preventing the placing of Progressive Presidential Electors' names on the ballot.

SULZER MAY TURN TO PEOPLE FOR AID

Threatens to Do That if Legislature Refuses to Support Him in Administrative Reform.

BIG MEN PRAISE EXECUTIVE

Tammany Leader Fails to Take Up Governor's Challenge to Fight for State Control.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan 3.—Up to a late hour this evening neither Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, nor any of the other Democratic bosses had appeared to take up the gauntlet thrown down by Gov. Sulzer yesterday when he announced himself as the Democratic leader of the State, and invited any Democrat who desired to challenge his claim to come out in the open.

The Executive Chamber was flooded all day with messages from Democrats in this and other States, praising the stand of Gov. Sulzer and urging him to remain firm. Lieut. Gov. Martin H. Glynn, too, who had refused to bow to Tammany dictation in making assignments to the standing committees of the Senate, received many comforting assurances from influential members of the party up State that they approved the stand he had taken and stood ready to give him their support. There were other messages less comforting and commendatory. Those came from below the Bronx, but neither Leader Murphy nor any of the other influential men in Tammany Hall sent them. It came out that Lieut. Gov. Glynn, in refusing to appoint Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of New York Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, had acted after mature deliberation and after taking counsel with other Democratic leaders.

It was not in asserting his independence, but by directing the searching investigation of the State Departments aimed at the useless patronage on which the boss system is fed, that Gov. Sulzer offended the bosses most gravely.

It rests with the Legislature to forword or mar the Governor's plans for thorough reform in the administrative departments. The law-making body must enact the laws to make the contemplated reforms effective.

Gov. Sulzer is determined that this must be done. He announced to-day that if any obstacle was placed in his way he would adopt the policy of Gov. Hughes and appeal to the people. That was in reply to a question as to whether he expected the Legislature to support him in his programme of administrative reform.

His Warning to Lawmakers.

"I am not going to interfere with the Legislature," said the Governor. "There isn't a man in this State who is better aware of the rights and prerogatives of the Legislature than I am. I am proceeding on the assumption that every member of the Legislature is sincere and honest. But if the Legislature does not give me the aid I desire, I shall submit my case to the people and let them decide."

It is not believed in the Capitol that Tammany, though thwarted by Mr. Glynn and challenged by Mr. Sulzer, will adopt any of the tactics that were employed in the last administration when Gov. Dix on rare occasions made a weak show of independence and the Tammany boss gave directions to bring him to terms. With a Mayoralty election near in New York, Tammany Hall is on its good behavior. Another element enters into the situation. Mr. Murphy was able to use the Democratic Legislature two years ago as a club over a Governor who did not fight back. Although there was in the Legislature a Democratic insurgent element which clearly held the balance of power in both houses, and, after demonstrating its strength in the contest over the United States Senatorship, was ready to jump to the firing line the moment Gov. Dix sounded the rallying cry.

Gov. Sulzer has already demonstrated the fact that he can fight. And he possesses other elements of strength which Gov. Dix lacked. He has in the Tammany organization such a large number of friends that the Tammany boss would be compelled to think twice before he directed any hostile move against the Governor. The Legislature which will sit in Albany this year, too, is an unknown quantity. In the Senate are twenty-seven new members out of a total of fifty-one. In the Assembly, of 150 members, 91 are first-year men. A majority of the newcomers are Democrats, and from among these it is more than likely Gov. Sulzer in any fight he might be compelled to make on a Tammany programme would find sufficient support to make things interesting for Tammany.

The Governor was asked to-day if he had heard from any of the Democratic bosses in reference to his challenge.

"No," said he, quietly. "I don't know what they think of my assertion, but if their thoughts on this subject run contrary to mine this is the place where they should come and make their kick."

"Have you received any communications approving your course?" he was asked.

Big Men Commend Him.

"Oh, yes, I have received a great many, and from some very big men. I hold three such messages in my hand. Here is one I received from a very prominent editor whose name is familiar to all of you."

The Governor read a portion of that message, omitting the signature. It called the Governor's stand "perfectly bully," and read Rooseveltianly all through.

"Was it a contributing editor who sent it?" asked a correspondent.

"I am not prepared to answer that question nor to make any of the messages public, but if any Democrat should want some light on this leadership question, let him come here and I will let him read them."

Two Democratic bosses of the old school dropped in on Gov. Sulzer late this afternoon, when the newspaper men were waiting to see him. One was William J. Conners, the dethroned Democratic boss of Erie County, and at one time of the State. The other was Patrick E. McCabe of Albany, one of Mr. Murphy's most trusted up-State lieutenants. The Governor received them kindly. He chatted with both as long as they cared to stay in the Executive Chamber, which was filled with visitors.

Gov. Sulzer said yesterday when he told the newspaper men that William H. Fitzpatrick, who succeeded Mr. Conners as Democratic boss of Erie, had called that Mr. Conners would be just as welcome as Mr. Fitzpatrick. Mr. Conners evidently jumped for a train the minute he read that comforting assurance in the papers.

From the company of Mr. Conners Gov. Sulzer made his way to the southwest corner of the Executive Chamber, where Gov. Odell's picture hangs. When receiving the correspondents Mr. Sulzer sits in a chair directly under Odell's portrait.

"Mr. Conners just came in to wish me a happy New Year," said the Governor. "He told me he would support me as long as I did the right thing, and I told him that he would have to support me right along. Then I asked Mr. Conners

QUICKLY REPLACES BRANDT CASE SEAL

Sulzer, After Ordering Papers Opened to Reporters, Glances at One and Changes Mind.

HAS ALL COPIES DESTROYED

Governor Announces He Will Act Slowly on Pardon Petitions, Taking Full Responsibility.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—For a few minutes this evening, the unpublished documents in the case of Folke E. Brandt, who is serving a 30-year sentence in Dannemora Prison for a robbery committed in the residence of Mortimer L. Schiff in November, 1907, were unsealed. Then Gov. Sulzer, when Pardon Clerk Potter and Attorney Gen. Carmody had called his attention to the contents of the application for Executive clemency made by Brandt, revoked his permission for publication of the documents until he should have time to examine them.

Mr. Sulzer directed that the Brandt papers should be opened to the correspondents in the Capitol in response to a request made by one newspaper man following his announcement that while he was Governor the people would have opportunity to know all that was going on in the State capital. Gov. Dix ordered the papers sealed to protect innocent persons, but Gov. Sulzer was not aware of that. The newspaper men were examining and copying the Brandt documents when the Governor suddenly sent word that his order had been revoked. The papers were restored to their big envelope, the copies were destroyed, and the papers were taken to the Governor.

Gov. Sulzer invited the correspondents to the Executive chamber. They found him conferring with the Attorney General. A single glance at the application for clemency, and the Governor shook his head. Next moment he told the newspaper men that in his opinion such a document should not be given to the public.

The Governor will not give consideration to the Brandt case nor to any other case involving the pardoning power until after the Legislature adjourns. He has received no application in the Brandt case.

When the papers were placed in the hands of the newspaper men it was found that the seal had been broken and the principal documents had been transferred to another envelope. The original envelope had a notation showing that Attorney General Carmody received the papers under direction of Gov. Dix.

Discussing his attitude in regard to applications for clemency generally, Gov. Sulzer said to-day he would go very slowly in all such cases, and would consider none until the District Attorney and the presiding Judge had sent in their opinions.

After that has been done the Governor intends to communicate the findings to the newspaper correspondents that he may learn the trend of public sentiment in such cases before he acts finally.

Mr. Sulzer believes the Governor should not be relieved of all responsibility. His predecessor toward the close of his Administration said it was a burden of which the Governor should be relieved, and urged the creation of a pardon board. The Governor was told to-day that a bill had been introduced in the Legislature to take the pardoning power from the Governor.

"I shall veto that bill," said he, promptly. "I am not afraid of assuming full individual responsibility. If a man is afraid of shouldering responsibility he shouldn't take this job. I find that in States where they have pardoning boards less attention is given to the merits of cases than where the power rests with a single individual."

A woman appeared in the ante-room of the Executive Chamber to-day, weeping and urging that she had an application for clemency to make to the Governor. Attendants would not let her see him. When Mr. Sulzer heard of her visit he said:

"Let her come in. I will tell her right up and down what she has to expect."

The woman told Gov Sulzer her husband was in jail for holding a mock auction.

"A mock auction is a very bad and disgraceful thing," said Mr. Sulzer. "Where was he tried, and by what Judge?"

"In Special Sessions, before Judge Steinert," said the woman. "He got thirty days."

"Madam," said the Governor, "your husband should not be pardoned; he should be congratulated. He got off easily. He was very lucky not to get a year."

The woman, who was crying when she appeared before the Governor, smiled through her tears as she left the chamber.

"She seemed to realize that her husband was in great luck," said Mr. Sulzer, adding that he did not think he would take much interest in applications for clemency when the sentence was less than a year and no injustice had been done.

FITZGERALD FOR CHEAP OIL.

Boston Mayor Plans Supplying Autoists with Gasoline Wholesale.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 3.—Mayor Fitzgerald decided to-day to enter the fight against the high cost of gasoline.

"Just think of it!" said he, "25 cents a gallon retail and 17 cents a gallon wholesale! That is twice the price of a year ago, with no justifiable cause in sight. It is nothing short of robbery, high-handed, and in defiance of the people, the courts, and the very Government."

The Mayor has a remedy he proposes to try. He has already instructed Commissioner Rourke of the Public Works Department to estimate the cost of erecting a big tank somewhere in the heart of the city from which owners of automobiles might get supplies at the wholesale price.

The Mayor has decided to write to Congress and urge drastic legislation against the price of gasoline and the conduct of the Standard Oil Company.

BEAT GRAFT WITNESS; STEAL HIS PAPERS

Secretary of Peddlers' Association Attacked After His Return from Curran Committee.

STILL HAS PROOF, THOUGH

Witness Shows Police Act on Complaints from Gaynor Where Those from Waldo Are Ignored.

The members of the Curran Committee expressed deep indignation when they heard last night that one of the committee's witnesses who had been called to testify about graft had been attacked and seriously injured in his office in the afternoon. The witness was Harry J. Slaght, Secretary of the East Side Protective Association, the pushcart peddlers' organization. Mr. Slaght said that he had attended the session of the committee yesterday with books and documents to show that the peddlers had been compelled to pay graft in order to follow their calling.

He waited in the committee's room, he said, until it became evident that he would not be called as a witness until next week and then started for the office of the association at 1 Avenue B. A man followed him from the Aldermanic chamber to his office, he asserted, pushed his way in, and then assaulted him with a sandbag. He was knocked unconscious, he said, and stayed in that condition until Samuel Goldberg, counsel for the association, came in and revived him. Then he said he made an inventory of his books and discovered that two of his account books, a ledger, a minute book, and important papers had been carried away. Mr. Slaght said he communicated with Emory R. Buckner, counsel for the Investigating Committee, and with Chairman Curran, and arranged to meet them to-day.

Will Give Graft Records to Buckner.

Asked if he was still in possession of the documents to prove that the pushcart men were compelled to pay protection money, Mr. Slaght said that the papers were still in his possession, and that he was willing to turn them over to the committee for safe keeping. Mr. Slaght said he had not made any complaint of the assault to the police because of the experience he had a few days ago when he called at Police Headquarters to tell the officials in charge there about the way the pushcart men were treated by the police. According to Mr. Slaght, Chief Inspector Schmittberger was not at all pleased to see him, and intimated that something disagreeable would happen to him if he did not keep his mouth shut.

Stories that the 14,000 pushcart men in the city had to pay a dollar a month for the privilege of standing in any one place for a longer period than the city ordinance permitted, have been told for a long time. It was also said that a man named Schwartz was the collector for the men who profited under this form of graft, and that he was called the "King of the Pushcart Men." Mr. Buckner said yesterday that he had faith in the good intentions and honesty of Slaght, and would give him ample opportunity to make a statement when the committee met again on Tuesday.

The meeting of the committee opened yesterday with an acrimonious discussion which was started by Alderman Smith, who represents the Democrats on the committee. Mr. Smith announced that he would vote against the request for an additional appropriation of $15,000 to enable the committee to carry on its work. He said he thought it was an outrage to keep Police Captain Ormsby in the witness chair for three days, and he was afraid, he asserted, that the absence of the Captain from his precinct would result in injury to the force. He said that Mr. Buckner had asked the Captain one question thirty-seven times, and that he shuddered when he recalled Mr. Buckner's statement that twenty-five more Captains were to be examined along the same lines. Mr. Smith said he was getting tired of the inquiry, and that he thought the committee had better go out of business.

Mr. Buckner explained that he was trying to show that under the methods practiced in the department it was impossible for the Police Commissioner to know just what was going on in the various precincts. Alderman Dowling, who is another Tammany member of the committee and the Democratic leader of the Aldermen, said that there would be no union of the Democrats to prevent the appropriation. The committee has only enough money to carry on its work for two weeks, and unless more money is forthcoming within that period it will have to give up the inquiry. Mr. Dowling wanted to know what the object was in calling Capt. Ormsby to testify again. Mr. Buckner said that it took a short time for a short hearing and a long time for a long hearing. This explanation seemed to satisfy Mr. Dowling.

Police Heed Complaints to Gaynor.

Mr. Buckner then began to question Capt. Ormsby, and showed that entirely different treatment was accorded to complaints sent to the Mayor from that accorded to those sent directly to Commissioner Waldo. This information was obtained through questions relating to the number of anonymous letters received by the police about disorderly resorts and gambling houses. The Captain referred to these communications as "wild goose letters." There was one person who complained on Dec. 9, 1911, of illegal places in East Ninth Street, he said. The writer asserted that the disorderly resorts and gambling houses in the street were protected by a gang of ruffians, and that the decent people living in the neighborhood were frightened.

This letter was addressed to Commissioner Waldo, but a copy was sent to the Mayor. The letter to Mr. Waldo was received at Police Headquarters first. It was forwarded to Inspector Cahalane, in charge of the district which embraces the Fifteenth Precinct. The letter to Mr. Waldo was received by Mr. Waldo's private secretary, who stamped on the back of it the information that it was forwarded for the information of the Inspector. When the Mayor forwarded the copy of the letter he had received to Mr. Waldo it was forwarded by Mr. Sheehan to the Inspector, with instructions to investigate and report. The report was produced, and was full of explicit information about one of the houses complained of. It gave the number of rooms in the house, the names of the owner and lessee, and told of the character of some of the persons living there. The complaint about this house never reached the Police Commissioner, and when the Captain was asked why he did not put this house on "Form 29" to show the Commissioner that it was a suspected house, the Captain replied:

"I can't tell you."

This reply was entirely satisfactory to Mr. Buckner, for it proved his contention that there was no definite rule for the guidance of the Captains, and that the system adopted one day might be entirely ignored the next. Mr. Buckner wanted to know why the Captain had not discovered the character of this house for himself without the need of a "wild goose letter." He replied that he had tried to get evidence against it, but had failed. Among the persons who had complained of the resort was Miss Maude E.

Descendant of Byzantine Rulers Seeks the Throne of Constantinople.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Yet another woman claimant for a throne which is not going begging, "Princess Eugenie Palaeologus," who is now in London, has sent an appeal to the Balkan Peace Conference delegates wherein she asserts she is "the hereditary Empress of Constantinople and hereditary Princess of the Aegean Isles."

She asks for "restoration to the throne of her Byzantine ancestors," and she is the only person whose descent is traceable from Constantine the Great down to Constantine Palaeologus and is directly descended from John VII., Emperor of Constantinople.

As the only direct descendant of the former ruler of the Aegean Isles, she has documentary evidence to prove the isles are hers, and says if she is not made Empress of Constantinople, she ought to rule in the isles.

Viscount Hardinge Goes Kipling One Better in Weird Indian Story.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Viscount Hardinge, brother of the Indian Viceroy, in a lecture on the Delhi Durbar this evening referred to a much-criticised statement which he maintained was absolutely true.

Whenever the Viceroy traveled in India policemen were stationed along the railroad at intervals of 100 yards. The policemen, he said, often became sleepy and lay with their heads on the rails to listen for the approach of the train. On one occasion, no fewer than fifty lost their heads.

Lord Curzon asked him where he got the yarn. He replied: "I got it from my brother, and I do not think he would tell a 'cracker.'"

FAMILY GETS A NEW NAME.

Mr. and Mrs. Belsky with Two Children Are Now the Bells.

The whole Belsky family, consisting of Hyman and Mary Belsky and their two children, Bella and Wolfert, of 232 West 114th Street, received permission yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Page to change their family name to Bell.

Hyman Belsky gave as a reason for desiring the change that all his business recommendations were made out in the name of Bell and that he had been known for many years by that name. His wife and two children joined with him in the change, as they wished the family names to be uniform.

Thompson Seton Uses New System to Send a Gift to "Dan" Beard.

Daniel Carter Beard, the artist and author, who lives at Bowne Avenue and Amity Street, Flushing, received an opossum from Ernest Thompson Seton, the naturalist, yesterday by parcel post. It was the first package delivered in Flushing under the new system. The opossum was sent from Mr. Seton's home at Cos Cob, Conn.

Mr. Beard plans to give a "possum" dinner soon to his friends.

$20,000,000 PARKS FOR PARIS.

City Will Buy the Fortifications and Make Recreation Grounds.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The City Council today, by a vote of 67 to 8, voted to acquire from the Government the fortifications and adjacent military zone. It is purposed to transform the tract into parks and recreation grounds.

The acquisition of the land, which has been the subject of negotiations between the State and City Councils for more than thirty years, will constitute the greatest scheme for improvement of the city since Baron Hausmann's celebrated plan of 1853, which included beautification of the Bois de Boulogne and the Park of Vincennes and extending the sewer and water supply systems.

The price to be paid by the city for the property will be $20,000,000. It will be turned over in annual installments of $1,000,000 for the first eight years, and afterward at the rate of $400,000 annually. The cost of razing the fortifications and laying out new roads and gardens is estimated at $24,000,000, and about $2,500,000 will be spent in the erection of a railing around the city.

The councils will sell for building purposes a part of the land acquired. An exact estimate of the sum to be realized in this respect is impossible. However, it is believed that the execution of the project will cost the city, all considered, about $20,000,000.

ACCEPT SERVICE FOR ROCKEFELLER

But He Is Too Ill to Appear Before Pujo Committee, His Lawyers Say.

HEARING SET FOR JAN. 13

Oil Man in Bed in the South, Is Report—Deputy Hunt Called Off Here.

MAY SUBPOENA LAWSON

Committee Wouldn't Imperil Rockefeller's Life, but May Seek Outside Opinion on His Condition.

Attorneys for William Rockefeller last night accepted service for him of a subpoena requiring his attendance as a witness before the Pujo Committee, which is investigating the so-called "money trust," in Washington on Jan. 13. Though Mr. Rockefeller's surrender was made unconditionally, his attorneys announced in accepting service for him that his health was such that he would not be able to appear and testify.

Immediately after the agreement had been reached between Samuel Untermyer, Counsel for the Pujo Committee, and attorneys for Mr. Rockefeller, the Federal deputies and private detectives who had been besieging the Rockfeller home at 689 Fifth Avenue and Rockwood Hall at Tarrytown gave up their search for him.

It was said on good authority yesterday that Mr. Rockefeller had not been in his Fifth Avenue house nor at Tarrytown since the process servers closed around the two places a week ago, but had left the State several weeks ago, going South with his family to his Southern cottage on Jekyl Island near Brunswick, Ga., where he now is.

"Mr. Rockefeller is ill in bed in the South," said a man who is well informed about the family's movements. He declined to disclose Mr. Rockefeller's exact whereabouts on the ground that Mr. Rockefeller's condition was such that it had been decided to save him any further annoyance in his present troubles.

Charles F. Riddell, Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives, in charge of the long search for the oil man, was disappointed when he was told last night that his men had been guarding empty houses and that the owner had quietly left the city and was hundreds of miles away. The Sergeant at Arms was still of the opinion, despite the statements of responsible persons, that Mr. Rockefeller was in his Fifth Avenue house.

Announces the Surrender.

It was a few minutes after 6 P. M. when J. W. Sterling of 55 Wall Street, of personal counsel for Mr. Rockefeller, announced that Mr. Rockefeller would accept service of the subpoena. Word had been received from him to that effect. John A. Garver, connected with Mr. Sterling's office, went to the office of Mr. Untermyer at 37 Wall Street and made known Mr. Rockefeller's desire to call off the search for him.

The offer was referred to the committee in Washington. Chairman Pujo replied that the order was to be accepted. The agreement was then entered into between Mr. Garver and Mr. Untermyer whereby Mr. Rockefeller was to appear before the committee on Monday, Jan. 13.

When these formalities were over, Mr. Garver's promise being accepted, for no actual copy of the subpoena was served upon him, Mr. Garver advised Mr. Untermyer that Mr. Rockefeller's condition was very precarious, and that it would be impossible for him to appear as a witness at Washington, or even submit to an examination at his home. Later from Mr. Untermyer's office came this statement:

"Mr. Rockefeller has been informed that having now submitted to the jurisdiction of the committee he must present his excuses to the committee in due form for such action as it may deem proper.

"If it is established to the satisfaction of the committee that it will be impossible to secure the testimony of Mr. Rockefeller without imperiling his life, the committee would, of course, not feel justified in taking any extreme action. It may, however, conclude to secure an independent opinion."

It was said that the committee, seeking an "independent opinion," should Mr. Rockefeller continue to interpose the question of the condition of his health as a reason for not testifying, would probably send an army surgeon to make an examination of the patient and report to the committee whether his life would be endangered by appearing as a witness. With the surgeon it is probable that a specialist on diseases of the throat will also be sent.

May Call Thomas W. Lawson.

It was learned last night that the committee wished to question Mr. Rockefeller on the huge speculation in Amalgamated Copper, in which, it was alleged, he and the late H. H. Rogers and Thomas W. Lawson were interested. If it is found that Mr. Rockefeller cannot testify because of his health, the committee will subpoena Thomas W. Lawson to tell what he may know of the transactions.

It was also learned last night that Miss Harrison, Secretary of H. H. Rogers, had been searched for in vain by Sergeant at Arms Riddell. Miss Harrison went away from her last known place of residence, it is said, without leaving a forwarding address. She is wanted to tell anything she may know of the copper deal in her private capacity as secretary, and to inform the committee where documents relating to the same subject might be obtained. The subpoena has been issued for her for several months.

The committee is more anxious to have the testimony of Mr. Rockefeller than of any one else, as it is believed his secretary, P. J. Macintosh, who has also disappeared, is in possession of valuable documents, books, and records, and that only Mr. Rockefeller can tell about them or force his secretary to come forward and surrender them.

Every effort to bring to light any of the records of the copper deal has failed to show anything of value. All the books have been taken away, and subpoenas upon the supposed custodians at 26 Broadway brought no results when representatives of the Pujo Committee went there.

It is said that Percy A. Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, who is alleged to be in fear of a summons from the committee, is not wanted, and will not be called to testify even should his father be excused as a witness. The committee does not believe he can aid in any way in this particular investigation.

The official existence of the committee will expire March 4, but it is predicted that Congress will extend its life and keep it at work for some time to come. The committee has not yet taken up its work of delving into the books of the National banks.

Riddell Worn Out by Siege.

Sergeant at Arms Riddell was found at the Martinique not long after he had called off the siege at the Rockefeller residences in this city and Tarrytown upon receiving a personal communication from Chairman Pujo.

"My work is done and I am going home," said Mr. Riddell. "Mr. Rockefeller has accepted service through his attorney to appear before the committee."

Mr. Riddell was confined to his rooms at the Martinique part of the day and looked on the verge of a physical breakdown as a result of the exposure incident to the siege. At first he refused to see the newspaper men, but later was questioned as he was walking through the hotel lobby.

"I don't want to talk about it," he replied quickly when asked if he knew where Mr. Rockefeller was. Then he was questioned about Mr. Rockefeller's health.

"That's something I don't know anything about," he said. "Mr. Rockefeller's health hasn't anything to do with my work here."

Mr. Riddell refused to discuss the matter any further and his assistant, C. B. Willis, who was with him at the time, had not a word to say. Mr. Willis left the Martinique in a taxicab shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening, going first to the Rockefeller home in Fifth Avenue, and then continuing to East Seventy-third Street in the neighborhood of the home of Mr. Sterling.

One of Mr. Riddell's associates said that he feared his chief would suffer a complete breakdown. Mr. Riddell, he said, caught a severe cold on one of the stormy days. He had refused to remain in his rooms despite the request made by his friends.

PUJO CALLS OFF DEPUTIES.

Willing to Hold Rockefeller Hearing in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Chairman Pujo and his colleagues of the "Money Trust" Investigating Committee were notified to-night that William Rockefeller's attorneys agreed to accept service unconditionally, and expressed themselves as gratified over this decision. Mr. Pujo got the news by long distance telephone early to-night from Sergeant at Arms Riddell. The Sergeant at Arms was instructed to call off the hunt and return at once with his deputies to Washington. Mr. Pujo arranged in a telephonic conference with Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Pujo Committee, for Mr. Untermyer to issue a statement in New York covering the situation. Responding to an inquiry for a statement Mr. Pujo said:

"I have always been confident, that upon reflection, Mr. Rockefeller would accept service or arrange so that the same could be had upon him. The state of his health, if urged as a reason why he should not appear before the committee, is a matter of fact to be taken up and considered by the committee, and disposed of by it in accordance with such facts as may be submitted. I have authorized counsel for the committee to give official announcement of the acceptance of service upon Mr. Rockefeller of which I was notified to-night by the Sergeant at Arms.

Pujo in Conference.

As soon as he returned to Washington yesterday from Louisiana Mr. Pujo put himself in close touch with the situation, and held a series of conferences with the leaders of the House. A special meeting of the Pujo Committee was to-day called for to-morrow morning to consider the peculiarities of the case. Members of the committee have combed the precedents. The plan was to arrange to-morrow to submit the facts to the House with a recommendation that Speaker Clark be ordered to issue a warrant directing the Sergeant at Arms to take steps to compel service on Mr. Rockefeller.

The action of Mr. Rockefeller's attorneys obviates such action. Since Mr. Rockefeller has now recognized the authority of the committee to serve him with a summons to appear the question now to be considered will be whether the condition of Mr. Rockefeller's health is such as to enable him to come to Washington. It has been the purpose of the committee, if Mr. Rockefeller is unable to come to Washington, to arrange for taking his testimony so as to suit his physical convenience. If preferred by Mr. Rockefeller and necessary, the committee will go to Mr. Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue residence, Tarrytown, or elsewhere, with Attorney Untermyer and a stenographer, to take his testimony behind closed doors. The committee, in such a contingency, would consent to allow Mr. Rockefeller to have counsel present.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day obtained a copy of a certificate of health furnished to the committee by Dr. W. F. Chappel, Mr. Rockefeller's physician.

Dr. Chappel's Certificate.

This certificate has been in the possession of the committee for a month. It has been considered evidence that Mr. Rockefeller was aware that he was wanted by the Pujo Committee, and would have been utilized if the House had been called upon to consider whether Mr. Rockefeller was trying to evade service and in contempt of the legal authority of the House. Here is Dr. Chappel's certificate:

> 7 East Fifty-fifth Street.
> New York, Dec. 6, 1912.
>
> This is to certify that Mr. William Rockefeller has been under my care for a considerable period, suffering from chronic throat trouble. At the present time his larynx is much inflamed and he is unable to speak above a whisper, and that with difficulty.
>
> In my opinion, it would be a great risk for him to make a trip to Washington to attend as a witness, or even submit to an oral examination at home.
>
> WALTER F. CHAPPEL, M. D.

This certificate was submitted to the committee by James K. Jones, a Washington attorney, who is a son of the late Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, with a letter in which Mr. Jones said:

"Referring to the desire of William Rockefeller's family and friends that he be not subjected to the ordeal of testifying before your committee in connection with certain investigations now being carried on, this desire being based on the fear that such an effort would result seriously to Mr. Rockefeller, I hand you herewith certificate of Mr. Rockefeller's physician as to his physical condition, and I have to respectfully request that under the circumstances he may be excused from testifying on this occasion."

The attempt to serve Mr. Rockefeller with a subpoena would not have been revived, if, when this certificate was submitted to Chairman Pujo, some one acting for Mr. Rockefeller had recognized the jurisdiction of the committee. The committee assumed that Mr. Jones was acting by authority of M. F. Elliott, general solicitor of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and assumed that Mr. Elliott was acting as attorney for Mr. Rockefeller, who had been Vice President of that company.

Mr. Elliott, with whom the committee had been in correspondence, wrote to Chairman Pujo on Dec. 9 disclaiming that he was acting as Mr. Rockefeller's attorney. Mr. Elliott insisted that it was as a friend and simply with a view of being helpful to Mr. Rockefeller that he had asked Attorney Jones to discuss with the Pujo Committee the matter of Mr. Rockefeller's inability to appear in Washington. When Mr. Elliott declined to take the responsibility of accepting or waiving service for Mr. Rockefeller, the Pujo Committee resumed its attempt to have the subpoena served by the Sergeant at Arms.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 3.—Neither William Rockefeller nor the yacht Vanadis, on which he was reported to have sailed, has arrived in Bermuda.

SULZER WILL SIFT HIS OFFICE FIRST

Governor Aims to Set Example in Graft Hunt, Which Is to be Begun Monday.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION NEXT

Investigators Expected to Look Into Charge Officials Have Profited by Patented Road Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Sulzer announced to-day that the graft hunt in the State departments would be begun next Monday, and that he would ask the Inquiry Commission to investigate his own department first. Not that there is the slightest suspicion of any graft in the Executive Department, either present or past, but the Governor hopes to find ways to effect economy where it will hit him before he goes after other departments.

"Will you take the stand yourself in the investigation of your department?" he was asked.

"If the Commissioners want me to—yes," said he, promptly. "By doing so I might set a good example for the heads of other departments."

When the Executive Department has been overhauled the Governor will expect his Commissioners of Inquiry to devote attention to the Adjutant General's Department, where Gen. William Verbeck, deposed by Gov. Sulzer as commander of the National Guard, held sway during the Dix administration. Gov. Sulzer would not discuss a rumor that irregularities in the Adjutant General's office had been called to his attention. It was said, however, that the Governor was not ordering an inquiry into that department without a specific reason.

The State Highway Department will be the next to be investigated. The Governor is eager that there shall be no delay in sifting the charges that have been current regarding practices in building and maintaining the State's highways. The Commissioners will be asked to look into the charge that the department has been used for political purposes, and that certain officials who have been in position to swing contracts and compel the use of patented processes in good roads work have enriched themselves at the expense of the State. The Governor is particularly anxious to put a stop to that form of graft. In the legislation that will be introduced with a view to having the present Highway Commission superseded by a single-headed commission, there will be a specific provision against the use of patent products in good roads work.

Gov. Sulzer is determined that while his administration lasts the new roads built shall be market roads mainly and roads to close gaps in existing trunk lines. He is opposed to spending the people's money for the construction of expensive roads to provide comfortable motoring for men with political pull between their city residences and their camps in distant necks of the North Woods. The building of market roads, the Governor believes, will be an important factor in reducing the cost of living, because they will be links between the producer and the consumer of farm products and will tend to cut out the middleman.

When the Governor made the announcement that the investigation would be begun on Monday, the inquiry commission still was shy its third member. Chairman John N. Carlisle and Commissioner John H. Delaney were in conference in New York with Raymond B. Fosdick, formerly Commissioner of Accounts, who was to recommend an expert accountant to take the third place, which the Governor originally offered to Mr. Fosdick. The Governor thought the Commissioners might announce in New York that this third member had been found before the day was over.

"We want to get at the truth," said Mr. Sulzer. "At the same time we must proceed according to law and protect the rights of all concerned. If any official hasn't done his duty, I will get after him. The commission will have every agency of the State at its command, and if it needs any new agencies to aid it. I shall ask the Legislature to provide them."

COL. SANGER RESIGNS OFFICE.

Leaves State Hospital Commission on Account of His Health.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Sulzer announced to-night that he had received the resignation of Col. William Cary Sanger as a member of the State Hospital Commission. The Governor said that Col. Sanger was a friend of long standing.

"I am sorry that the State is to lose the services of so good a man," Gov. Sulzer said. "He is a Republican, but there are good Republicans as well as good Democrats. The Colonel came here to-day. He said his health was poor and that he and his wife were about to go to Lakewood."

Col. Sanger became a member of the Hospital Commission, which is the old Lunacy Commission, during the administration of Gov. Hughes.

NO NEW HOME FOR TAFT YET.

Will Stay at Hotel in New Haven Till He Finds Suitable House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Taft has not bought or leased a house in New Haven. Some New Haven people who talked with him on the subject learned to their satisfaction that he would stop at the Taft Hotel there when he became Kent Professor at Yale until he found a permanent residence that suited him and his family. He said that he intended to buy a home in New Haven.

The President and Mrs. Taft expect to leave Washington on inauguration day for Augusta, Ga., for a stay of three weeks or a month.

WILL SIFT FIRE INSURANCE.

Sulzer Expects to Ask Legislature for Amendments to Law.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Sulzer expects to send to the Legislature amendments to the insurance law to prevent incendiarism and protect fire insurance policyholders from fraudulent insurance. It has been shown that through lax inspection almost any amount of insurance may be placed on articles of little value, and when perjured testimony can be procured, the companies become victims.

William B. Ellison, formerly Corporation Counsel of New York, called on Gov. Sulzer to-day to urge reforms he believes would check waste and prevent high rates of insurance. Losses due to incendiary fires have a tendency to increase rates. Mr. Ellison suggested appointing a commissioner to take testimony for the Legislature. He volunteered to undertake the work without charge. Gov. Sulzer, who many years ago was a colleague of Mr. Ellison's in the Legislature, was glad to avail himself of his services. He thinks the investigation will be completed in time for remedial legislation this year.

Mr. Ellison said there should be radical changes in the standard forms of insurance policies. It was explained that policies contained clauses that militated against the holders. Premiums are paid for varying periods, and companies sometimes refuse to make payments on the ground that clauses of the policies have not been obeyed. Mr. Ellison suggested changes to place on the companies the burden of proof that policies were void, by a waiver of all conditions when the policy was issued. He also advocated stricter inspection to prevent over-insurance.

Gov. Sulzer said to-night he would send Mr. Ellison's report to the Legislature and he also would ask for a statement of the position of the insurance companies.

SUIT HURTS PROPERTY VALUE

$50,000 Cut Off 41 Park Row if Injunction Holds Good.

A suit now pending against the Park Company, owners of the former Times Building at 41 Park Row, is responsible for a deduction of $50,000 in the value of the property, according to an appraisal of the estate of Gilbert E. Jones, who, at the time of his death, Nov. 2, 1910, held a quarter interest in the corporation. The appraisal was submitted yesterday to the Surrogates' Court.

The decedent held debenture bonds of the Park Company worth $238,500 on their face value, and also 265 shares of the company. The company was organized with a capitalization of $100,000 of stock and $9,000 of convertible debenture bonds, which for the last seven years have paid interest averaging about 7 per cent. The stock is all closely held by members of the Jones, Dyer, Morgan, Hunt and Zabriskie families.

Seven and a half years ago suit was started against the Park Company by the owners of the adjoining Potter Building to recover for damages said to have been caused by the adding of three stories to the old Times Building.

Judgment was entered providing that an injunction should be issued requiring the Park Company to remove the extra three stories unless within thirty days it had begun work to relieve the party wall of its burden.

Unless the judgment is reversed by the Appellate Division the Park Company will be compelled to make expenditures which, according to Messrs. Horace S. Ely & Co., real estate experts, will justify a deduction of $50,000 from the value of the premises. The appraised value of the property is $1,675,000, and there is a mortgage of $350,000.

Mr. Jones left a net estate of $337,792, mostly personalty. He had an equity in 222 Madison Avenue appraised at $140,000, and subject to a mortgage of $100,000.

FIGHTING FOR CASTRO WITH HABEAS CORPUS

Lawyer Battle Gets a Writ on His Own Initiative, Believing General Is Unlawfully Detained.

HE IS ANXIOUS TO LAND

Only Wants to Greet American People, He Says, and Visit a Few Months—Washington Taken by Surprise.

A writ of habeas corpus was granted yesterday by Judge Holt in the Federal District Court to George Gordon Battle in behalf of Cipriano Castro, ex-President of Venezuela, who is detained at Ellis Island, and who was to have left for Germany on the Amerika this morning. It is returnable next Friday morning before whatever Judge of the Federal District Court calls the motion calendar.

Acting with Mr. Battle is Raymond H. Sarfaty of 111 Broadway, who was at one time in Mr. Battle's office. Their intervention in behalf of Gen. Castro came about, Mr. Sarfaty explained last night, through the feeling of Mr. Battle that the ex-President had not received fair treatment, and was entitled, at any rate, to be informed why he should not be permitted to land.

"Mr. Battle," said his associate, "felt that a great principle was involved." He was convinced that the General was sincere in his statement that all he wished to do was to pay a visit of a few months to this country and to shake the American people by the hand.

"We want to have this matter brought out in open court. The Government has acted on the principle that no one need be permitted to land unless he can give an absolute reason why he should. This we consider bad law."

Mr. Battle sent Harold A. Content from his office on Thursday over to Ellis Island to see Gen. Castro. Mr. Content called on Commissioner Williams, and received permission to interview the General, but the Commissioner exacted a promise, according to the petition for the writ of habeas corpus, that there should be no doubt raised about Castro's departure on the Amerika to-day.

Mr. Content saw Castro in company with Supt. Baker, and Castro expressed a strong desire to land, and told Mr. Content that he would be very glad of anything which could be done for him by Mr. Battle, or, for that matter, by any one else.

The result was that the petition asking for a writ of habeas corpus was filed yesterday afternoon with Judge Holt, and he promptly signed the writ, addressed to Commissioner Williams.

The petition filed by Mr. Battle recited that he was informed and believed that Cipriano Castro was now imprisoned and restrained of his liberty, and detained by color of the authority of the United States in the custody of Commissioner Williams.

Officials of the Department of Commerce and Labor consider the action unprecedented, as writs of habeas corpus which have before this been granted to immigrants have been issued only after the petitioners had been denied admission. This had not been done in the case of Castro, they maintained. However, they pointed out that the courts had dismissed most of these writs on the ground that the Secretary of Commerce and Labor was the final authority in such cases.

Railroad, at Seventy-fourth Street, when she was blown on to the track and her right leg was cut off by a train.

Morris Kessler of 156 Ridge Street was standing on the elevated platform at Broadway and Myrtle Avenue at 7 o'clock last night when the wind blew him on to the track. He was taken to St. Catharine's Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain.

William Maher, a seven-year-old boy of 549 Myrtle Avenue, was knocked down by an iron ladder which fell from a fire escape, and his skull was fractured. He was taken to the Cumberland Street Hospital.

Archibald Donaghey, 2 years old, of 404 Quincy Street was in his go-cart when a board from a roof was blown down by the wind and struck him on the head. His skull was fractured.

Minnie Gottfried of 1,331 Fourth Avenue was knocked down by a flagpole blown from the top of the house at 4,520 Fourth Avenue, and was taken to the Norwegian Hospital with a fractured skull.

Mrs. Annie Miller of 1,146 Greene Street was blown against the iron supports of the elevated structure at Woodlawn and Myrtle Avenues and her right thigh was broken.

William Zimmerman was fishing off the Dreamland Pier with William Snyder and was blown into the water. Snyder threw a line and towed him to shore.

CENTRAL WAS DISABLED.

East-Bound Track Undermined Near Garrisons by the Hudson.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Traffic on the eastbond track of the New York Central Railroad, between Garrisons and Cold Spring, was interrupted to-night because of the rain and heavy wind. A section of the roadbed 150 feet long was undermined by the waters of the Hudson, and but one track was in use to-night.

The gale which swept the Hudson Valley tore down poles and telegraph wires, and many buildings were unroofed. The roof of a freight car attached to a train going over the Poughkeepsie bridge was blown off, broke into two pieces and partially wrecked two houses 175 feet below. No one was injured.

BLEW DOWN A BUILDING.

In Philadelphia a Four-Story Structure Was Toppled Over.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 3.—Blowing at the rate of fifty-two miles an hour, a gale did much damage in this city today. Eleven persons were injured, several of them seriously, when the wind struck a four-story structure at 413-415 South Fifth Street, late this afternoon, blowing it over upon the three-story structure adjoining, at 411 South Fifth Street.

The wind did many curious things. It prevented the water in the Delaware River from receding at low tide, holding the stream at high water and making a flood possible. It overturned vehicles in the vicinity of Broad, Chestnut and Walnut Streets, and threw men and women from their feet. A big motor truck, unguided after its driver had been blown from his seat, tore down a section of the rail on the Walnut Street Bridge and hung suspended over the Schuylkill River. The schooner E. R. Bennett, bound for this city, was blown ashore on the rocks at the Delaware Breakwater. The wireless station of the Maritime Exchange at the Breakwater was disabled, as was the cable between Lewes, Del., and that station. The highest wind velocity in January for twenty-eight years was recorded this afternoon. The wind blew at fifty-two miles an hour at 1.30 o'clock. The highest temperature for January 3 in the history of the Weather Bureau was recorded at 11.30 o'clock this morning, when the thermometer registered 64 degrees.

62 MILES AT NORFOLK.

Unfounded Rumors of Disaster—Fear for Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 3.—Beaten all day by the most severe wind it had ever experienced, the port of Norfolk had only minor damage to report to-night. All wire communcaition with the outer world was lost during the forenoon, and wild rumors spread over the country to the effect that there had been a great disaster. Another rumor was current to-night to the effect that the Hotel Chamberlain, at Old Point Comfort, had been swept away. This rumor proved to be unfounded. The hotel was, however, much damaged by the storm.

The velocity of the wind to-day broke all records of the Weather Bureau. For two hours the wind blew at the rate of sixty-two miles an hour. During the afternoon the wind fell for a time, but to-night the gale sprang up anew, causing great apprehension in shipping circles. It was feared that many ships, caught at sea off the dangerous Virginia and Carolina capes, were in trouble.

Shipping was practically blocked for hours to-day in the local harbor. Many vessels dragged anchor, and the beaches were strewn with the wreckage of small boats. Although the tide was the highest in years, backing up into low streets, there was nothing resembling the reported tidal wave.

Men interested in shipping said that this was the worst storm in their experience in this harbor. Collisions were much feared. No ships scheduled to sail to-day ventured out.

Old Point Comfort was storm-swept all day. Many steamboats that touch there daily did not appear. Waves from Hampton Roads dashed over the Government wharf with great force. Launches from the battleship fleet could make no landing. Freight on the piers was swept into the water.

The beach between Old Point and Phoebus was strewn to-night with fishing vessels.

While the warships at anchor in Hampton Roads were severely buffeted, they escaped injury and will be able to sail for Guantanamo as soon as the storm abates.

SCHOONER IN DISTRESS.

Revenue Cutter Seneca Starts from This Port to Help Her.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3. — A three-masted schooner was anchored to-night flying distress signals five miles northeast of Little Egg Life Saving Station. Because of a sixty-four-mile gale and rough sea life savers found it impossible to send a boat from Little Egg Station, and asked that a revenue cutter go to the assistance of the vessel.

In response to the request from the Little Egg life savers the revenue cutter Seneca started last night to the aid of the schooner.

CUT OFF NEWPORT NEWS.

Seventy-Mile Wind Blew Down Wires—Ships in Peril.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 3.—The southwest gale to-day caused damage to several steamships and a score of small boats. It unroofed three houses in this city. At one time the velocity of the wind was seventy miles an hour, the highest ever recorded here. The British steamship Falls of Archy collided with the British steamship Berwindvale, smashed into a car float, and finally brought up against a pier. The barge Mary Mitchell draged anchor and bumped into a pier near the shipyard.

The oyster fleet in the upper James River suffered much damage. Several oystermen, it was reported, were drowned. Telephone and telegraph wires were blown down, and for a time Newport News was cut off from communication with other parts of the country.

TORE ROOF FROM JAIL.

Sixty Prisoners in Maryland Institution Greatly Alarmed.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 3.—For a time to-day the wind blew at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Many houses were unroofed and for hours the streets were dangerous because of falling signs and shutters. Sixty prisoners in the Baltimore County Jail at Towson were alarmed when the roof was torn off. Deputy Warden Bosley had a hard time quieting the imprisoned men, who were greatly alarmed. The roof broke in four pieces, which were carried fifty feet away.

Owing to the peculiar construction of the jail, it will not be necessary to remove the prisoners unless there is a heavy downpour of rain, as the cells themselves have independent concrete roofs.

LIGHTSHIP IS SAFE.

Drifted from Diamond Shoals Anchorage, but Is Not in Peril.

Wireless telegraph mesages heard by coast stations last night were to the effect that the Diamond Shoals Lightship was adrift, and was sending out "S. O. S." calls for help. The station of this lightship is off the treacherous shoals of Cape Hatteras, N. C. The crew aboard usually consists of about a dozen men.

An hour before midnight a dispatch from Washington said that the lightship was at that time safely anchored three miles northeast of her regular position, and was not in need of immediate assistance.

GARMENT STRIKERS STORM A FACTORY

Proprietor and His Clerks Barricade the Doors and Telephone for the Police.

SOUGHT NON-UNION MEN

Rioters Depart When They Find No One at Work in the Place—Many Arrests in Brooklyn.

Much disorder marked the fifth day of the garment workers' strike yesterday. Disturbances started early in the morning, when those who had refused to walk out tried to enter the shops where they were employed. Then it was payday for thousands of the strikers, and this brought throngs of dissatisfied workers to the factories.

The shop of the Washington Clothing Company, within a stone's throw of the Bible House in Astor Place, where the strikers have their headquarters, was one of the first places to be attacked. Charles E. Adler is President of this concern, and Mr. Adler, when his force walked out on Tuesday, said that he expected to employ strikebreakers if he found his business required it.

The strikers suspected he had employed non-union men, and decided yesterday morning to drive them out. Some 1,000 men and women started for the shop, and Mr. Adler and his clerks when they heard them charge the Lafayette Street entrance to the building, barricaded the doors and telephoned for the police. A score of strikers ran up the stairs to the factory on the seventh floor and demanded admittance. Mr. Adler opened the door, and when the strikers found no non-union men at work they departed before the arrival of the police.

At the noon hour, when Broadway was crowded, several thousand strikers attempted to rush the Marks Arnheim merchant tailoring establishment, at Broadway and Ninth Street. Private detectives were stationed in front of the building, and it was alleged they struck the strikers. When a squad of police from the Mercer Street Station arrived five men, including two men who said they were detectives, were arrested. They were taken before Magistrate McAdoo in the Jefferson Market Court and fined $10.

In Brooklyn strikers went from shop to shop in an effort to gain recruits. A fight started near the factory of Andrew Gomiselski, at 192 Evergreen Avenue, when strikers armed with axes endeavored to force the fifty or more men who had stayed at work to quit their jobs. Nineteen men were arrested. They were all held under bail for examination on Monday.

Magistrate Kernochan held three Brooklyn strikers who were arrested for fighting on Thursday in $600 bail on charges of disorderly conduct.

At strike headquarters it was said that each of yesterday's disturbances, both in Manhattan and Brooklyn, had been caused not by the strikers, but by private detectives.

The Strike Settlement Committee, which was named by the strikers to hear the cases of manufacturers desiring to meet the union's terms, held meetings in the Bible House yesterday. It was said that fifteen manufacturers, one of them employing 300 men, had applied for a hearing.

The members of the New York Clothiers' Association met, but would not discuss their deliberations. The brunt of the negotiations, it was admitted on both sides, rested entirely with the Chamber of Commerce. That organization's committee continued in session yesterday.

Thomas A. Rickert, President of the United Garment Workers' Union of America, arrived yesterday from Chicago and was present at the Chamber of Commerce meeting. He said that the strike, in his opinion, was the largest of its kind ever called in the United States. He refused to say whether the strike would extend to other cities.

"The prospects for getting our demands," he said, "are very bright. I am glad that the Chamber of Commerce has taken up the work of settling the strike. It can do nothing but good."

On behalf of the strikers it was said that they were well supplied with money, and that it would be a long time before union allotments would have to be made. Yesterday's pay envelopes, it was said, would easily carry the strike another week without much of a drain on the union's reserve fund.

BEAT GRAFT WITNESS; STEAL HIS PAPERS

Minor, Secretary of the New York Probation Association.

"What can be done with disorderly women, Mr. Buckner?" Alderman Dowling asked.

"The Mayor and the Commissioner can look after that," replied Mr. Buckner. "When the Mayor testified before the committee on Sept. 10 he advised the committee not to burn their fingers with such matters."

"How are you going to get rid of them, shoot them?" asked Mr. Dowling.

Mr. Buckner then asked what had become of complaints against policemen for grafting. He read an anonymous letter which accused Capt. Ormsby of graft in connection with a gambling house in East Thirteenth Street.

"The Inspector wouldn't believe that of me," said the Captain.

Then the Captain said that if he had got that letter he would have thrown it in the waste basket. The Commissioner and the Inspector had spoken to him about conditions in the Fifteenth Precinct, he testified. He was asked what was said at these interviews, but he refused to answer at first.

"They were private conversations," he said.

Finally the Captain said the Commissioner had discussed the resort mentioned in the letter, and had ordered him to close it. He did so, he said. In reply to further questions, the Captain said the resort had been closed nine times before that, but it wouldn't stay closed. Mr. Dowling then asked the Captain what else the Commissioner said, and the Captain replied that he had spoken of a resort in Second Avenue. Many other letters were read containing complaints about illegal resorts, and all of them bore a stamp to the effect that they had been investigated and proper police action taken. This indorsement appeared on a letter complaining of the Inspector himself. It had been sent to the Inspector from Headquarters "for his information."

WANTS TO CLEAR MRS. EDEY'S NAME

Murdock Now Says Husband Paid Him to Act as Her Protector.

WARNED HER OF DANGER

Told Her She Would Be Shot if She Returned Home—Blames Edey for His Difficulties.

Gardner Murdock, Manager of the Terra Marine Inn at Huguenot, S. I., whose suit against Henry C. Edey for the alienation of his wife's affections is believed to have resulted in the double tragedy Thursday morning at Bellport, L. I., said yesterday that he had been paid to take Mrs. Edey with him from Bellport last August in order to facilitate a settlement of the tangled marital relations of the Murdock and Edey families.

He added that Henry C. Edey came to him and told him stories of marital infelicity, saying that he could no longer live happily with his wife and that he intended to obtain a separation. He did not hint at a divorce, but said that he wanted Mrs. Edey to leave Bellport. Murdock said further:

"He paid me $10,000 to act as her protector and take her away. He had previously caused Mrs. Murdock to leave my home and go back to her parents."

"On the morning of Aug. 10 last, when Mrs. Edey and I came to New York together, he had his wife's trunks packed and ordered her out of the house. When she insisted that she was a true and loving wife he caused her trunks to be thrown out on the lawn. Up to this time I had been made the unsuspecting scapegoat, but when I took Mrs. Edey to Manhattan I delivered her into the hands of her sister and her aunt, Mrs. Abbie Bill of 220 West 123d Street. The latter met us at the train at Jamaica. Mrs. Edey was aware that her husband intended to obtain a legal separation, but she had no idea that he intended to blacken her name."

Murdock said that the next day he joined Mrs. Edey at her aunt's home and there saw her husband, who came there to sign an agreement to settle $100,000 upon his wife. Edey paid part of this amount by check and agreed to pay the remainder later.

Murdock said that then he went to Texas, where Mrs. Edey and Mrs. Bill joined him later. Mrs. Edey was only there a short time when she received a letter from her husband begging her to return. When she went away Murdock says he told her that she was going back to get shot. He also said that during the period that Mrs. Edey and he were away from Bellport he was never in her company alone for a minute. He added:

"Mrs. Edey was one of the finest women I have ever known. Her husband planned deliberately to throw her into my company by engaging me as her riding instructor and by stabling her horse at my livery. My relations with her at all times were honorable, and I am determined to clear her name of any shame which this scandal has attached to it."

Murdock said that he had not lived with his wife since their separation last August, although he admitted that she had visited him at the Terra Marine Inn with their son Milton, 11 years old.

Speaking of his suit against Edey, he said it was not a selfish one, and he did not want a cent of his money. He wished only, he said, to provide for his wife. "We would still have been together were it not for the intrigues of Edey," he added.

"Edey probably wanted his wife to blacken her name in order to stop the proceedings, and she refused," said Murdock. "That is my idea of the case."

At the Bellport residence of the Edeys in which the murder and suicide occurred, a funeral service was held shortly before midnight Thursday, when the Rev A. W. Ebersole, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church, read the impressive service for the dead over the two bodies, in the presence of Charles and Frederick Edey, the brothers of Henry C. Edey. Interment will take place to-day at Woodlawn Cemetery.

President Discusses College Plans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Taft to-day discussed with former Gov. Woodruff of Connecticut, Col. Mr. Taft expects to live for several months in a New Haven hotel. Later he will take a house in that city.

to come over to the Mansion and take tea, and he was kind enough to accept. That was only fair. I had Fitzpatrick over there for luncheon yesterday."

Sulzer Enforces Home Rule.

The visit of Mr. McCabe gave the Governor his text for a few observations regarding his attitude in local fights. Joseph J. Murphy, son of the late United States Senator Edward Murphy of Troy, who has taken his father's place as leader of Rensselaer County, is reaching into Albany County, which is part of the same Congressional district, to unhorse McCabe, who did not make as good a showing as had been expected in the election this Fall. Mr. Sulzer said:

"A good many persons around Albany have come to me and said, 'Do this and do that.' I have said: 'Don't come to me with your local fights.' I have told Mr. Murphy to keep his hands off Albany and Albany to keep its hands off Rensselaer. How could I tell New York to keep its hands off Erie if I let Rensselaer boss Albany? I believe in home rule in political organizations, too."

The congratulatory messages received by Mr. Sulzer have come from all parts of the country and from abroad. Several of these messages express the hope that "Albany may be but a stepping stone."

Andrew Mack telegraphed Mr. Sulzer, "Hurry up and be President." Among those who sent messages of congratulation were Jacob H. Schiff, Samuel Untermyer, John Temple Graves, George Ehret, Jacob Ruppert, Jr., Charles A. Towne, the Young China Association, Marshall P. Wilder, Harry Lauder, ex-Gov. Folk of Missouri, Bishop Walters of Washington, Thomas Mott Osborne, Bishop Colton of Buffalo, and Gov. Cox of Ohio.

THE TIMES'S SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCHES

SURRENDER AT ONCE OR WAR, SAY ALLIES

Turkey Told She Must Agree to Terms by Monday—Will Submit a Reply To-day.

MYSTERY TO THE DIPLOMATS

Wonder Why Porte Refuses to Take Full Time to Answer—Some Believe She Will Refuse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The most dramatic moment in the Balkan peace negotiations came to-day, when there was revealed a new situation, mysterious in the extreme.

When the conference met the Turkish delegates presented their counter-proposals. These failed to meet the demands of the allies, while indicating some readiness to move toward an agreement. Adrianople was the main point of difference. Turkey wanted the fortress eliminated from the discussion as to the territory to be ceded. After hearing the Turkish counter-proposals the Balkan delegates asked time to formulate a reply. Their answer was practically an ultimatum. They declined to accept the Turkish terms, and gave Turkey until Monday afternoon to agree to give up Adrianople and the Aegean Islands.

Then came the most dramatic development of the day.

"We don't want until Monday," said Reschid Pasha, head of the Turkish delegates. "We will give our answer to-morrow."

Thus Turkey deliberately curtailed the period of grace allowed her. This surprising action caused a genuine diplomatic sensation. Speculation was rife as to its significance. Possibly the most correct view is that Reschid Pasha realized that a rupture of negotiations was inevitable if Turkey did not give way on Monday afternoon on all points at issue, and, by offering a reply to-morrow afternoon, counted upon the possibility of making fresh proposals which would enable the discussion to be resumed in disregard of the allies' ultimatum. Such a shifting of ground is regarded as a favorable sign, indicative of the fact that Turkey is willin gto go still further toward meeting the allies' demands.

In those quarters where it is believed that the Turkish reply to-morrow will be a refusal to accept the allies' terms it is pointed out that a rupture of negotiations would not entail immediate resumption of hostilities.

Forty-eight hours' notice would be required to terminate the armistice, and in that interval one or more of the great powers probably would intervene. Pressure from the great powers in the form of advice to Turkey to meet the allies' demands would afford the Sublime Porte an opportunity of saving its face.

Happily the explanation of the mystery cannot be long delayed, and, though no predictions can be made with certainty respecting the negotiations, in which all the resources of diplomacy are being employed, there seems to be good ground for the belief that to-morrow's meeting of the delegates will mark at least a further step toward the practical acceptance by Turkey of the chief demands formulated by the allies. If this prove to be correct, the formal conclusion of peace can be only the matter of time required for the discussion of final details.

Offers Turkey's "Last Terms."

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Lazar Miyuskovitch, head of the Montenegrin delegation, presided at to-day's session of the Balkan Peace Conference.

Immediately after the minutes had been approved he asked Rechad Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, to present the promised new Turkish proposals. Rechad, who had been working hard over a cipher telegram order, seemed rather depressed. He spoke in conciliatory spirit and read what he called "the last possible terms Turkey can offer." These were:

> That Crete, enjoying simple suzerainty of the Sultan, but in reality under the protection of Great Britain, Russia, France, and Italy, constitutes a question which can be dealt with only by the powers under the responsibility of which the administration of the island is conducted, especially regarding finance, police, and justice.
>
> That Turkey shall keep her islands. That she cannot renounce those near the Dardanelles, because they are indispensable to the security of the channel of Constantinople, nor those further south, because they form an integral part of Anatolia.
>
> That the rectification of the Thracean frontier shall begin south from Segot (called Port Lagos,) in Karagatch Bay, and run almost perpendicularly northward.

This not only would leave Adrianople in the hands of the Turks, but also the entire coast along the Black Sea, now occupied by the Bulgariaans, to Lake Derkos and Mutapha Pasha and Kirk-Kilisseh.

After a short conference M. Miyuskovitch spoke for his colleagues.

"The allied delegates," he said, "see with regret that the Ottoman delegates take no account of the results of the war, and the allies consequently would be justified in breaking off the negotiations. In order, however, to afford fresh proof of their conciliatory spirit they request the Ottoman delegates to make at a sitting at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, Jan. 6, a proposition on these terms."

Here he submitted a counter proposition. A summary of it follows:

> Turkey shall renounce whatever rights she possesses over Crete, leaving the allies to settle with the protecting powers the other points concerning the island.
>
> Turkey shall cede unconditionally all her islands in the Aegean archipelago, including those provisionally held by Italy.
>
> The allies propose such rectifications of the frontier as will include Adrianople in Bulgarian territory.

M. Miyuskovitch added that the allies would wait no longer than Monday for Turkey's answer embodying substantially such terms as would be possible as a basis for further negotiations.

Rechad Pasha, notwithstanding his effort at self-control, lost the calm diplomatic impassibility of the first days of the conference. He quickly tried to parry the stroke by saying he believed he would be able to resume discussion Saturday afternoon. As the allies had no objection, the sitting was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon.

Immediately after adjournment Rechad Pasha said:

"As you see, 'appetite comes with eating,' as our proverb says. We have made the allies incredible concessions—concessions which they themselves never believed they would obtain—while on their side nothing had been even attempted to meet us half way. How, then, can a compromise be possible? By this time the allies should have been convinced that nothing can make us willingly renounce our European metropolis."

In view of the attitude of the allies a dispatch from Bucharest was regarded as significant. It said the officers of the reserve of the Rumanian Army had been ordered to report for service and to be in readiness to join the colors at a moment's notice.

M. Jonescu, Rumanian Minister of Interior, who arrived in London last night, denied that Rumania was mobilizing, but added:

"Once mobilization has been officially announced, it will mean that Rumania has decided to go to war immediately. We shall never employ mobilization as a bluff or a threat. It is true that latterly our army has taken steps demanded by prudence, but that is by no means mobilization. Until now we have been neutral. We have made many sacrifices to keep the peace, but I cannot tell what Rumania's attitude may be to-morrow, because I do not know myself."

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 3.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria in the course of an address to members of the Bulgarian Parliament this morning made some significant remarks. After expressing the hope that an agreement might still be reached by the peace conference in London he said:

"Should the impenetrable will of God be otherwise we will not hesitate at a new recourse to arms to compel the enemy to give complete and equitable satisfaction for all our precious sacrifices."

ROSWELL MILLER FOUND DEAD

Head of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul System Succumbs to Indigestion.

Roswell Miller, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, was found dead in bed yesterday in his home, at 19 East Sixty-second Street. Except for servants, he was alone in the house. He had passed the Christmas holidays on his country estate at Millbrook, Dutchess County, N. Y., and the members of his family stayed there when he returned to the city Thursday and went to his office, at 42 Broadway. Complaining of a slight illness, Mr. Miller went home at 4 o'clock and Dr. Reuel R. Kimball treated him for acute indigestion, from which he had recovered apparently when he retired, at 10 o'clock Thursday night.

When Mr. Miller did not appear for breakfast one of the maids called Dr. M. Allen Starr, who entered Mr. Miller's room and found that he had died in the night. Dr. Starr said Mr. Miller had suffered in recent years from arterio-sclerosis, angina pectoris, and cerebral hemorrhage, and that the attack of acute indigestion probably had been too much for his weakened heart.

Mrs. Miller, who was Miss Marly L. Roberts of this city, and two sons and a daughter came to the city immediately.

Roswell Miller was born in Harford, Penn., Oct. 28, 1843, and was a pioneer in Western railway development and management. The present great system of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, of 10,000 miles of tracks and 40,000 employes, was built up through his efforts. He and his associates in the Board of Directors, including William Rockefeller, had raised $250,000,000 for improvement of the road within the past six years.

Mr. Miller's practical experience reached back to 1869, and he had passed through all the stages of railway work, from construction to operation.

He was a clerk in a drug store in Auburn, N. Y., when the civil war began, and when 18 years old he enlisted in the Third New York Artillery, served through the war, was promoted to Lieutenant, and was among the first of the Federals to enter Richmond.

After the war he was associated with Gen. Burnside, who then was engaged in railway construction. In 1869, while Gen. Burnside was building the Cairo & Vincennes Railroad, of which J. Pierpont Morgan was a stockholder, Miller resigned his place as secretary of the construction company and was appointed secretary to the Superintendent. Later he became Superintendent. He held the place seven years until the road was sold to the Wabash system.

Thereafter he was continuously in the railway business, except for a year spent abroad. When he returned from Europe he was appointed Vice President and Treasurer of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad, in which Morgan was interested. In 1883, he went to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, where he was at first assistant to the General Manager, and in 1888, he was elected President and General Manager. He continued to direct the affairs of the road as President until 1899, when the position of Chairman of the Board of Directors was created for him.

In addition to his practical knowledge, Roswell Miller was recognized as an authority on modern railway economics.

Mr. Miller was a member of the Metropolitan and Downtown clubs and the Loyal Legion. He was elected Adjutant General of the Grand Army of the Republic for one term.

WEDEMEYER LEAPS INTO SEA AND DIES

Michigan Congressman, Who Went Insane on Trip to Panama, Eludes Guards on Steamer.

SENATOR TRIES TO SAVE HIM

Poindexter in Boat That Makes Vain Search—Wives of Congressmen in Panic at Suicide.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Panama, Jan. 3.—Representative William W. Wedemeyer of Michigan was drowned at sea last night, having jumped off the steamship Panama, on which he sailed from here yesterday in charge of two nurses. Details of his death were received here to-day by wireless from the vessel.

Mr. Wedemeyer's mental collapse while on a journey to inspect the canal was a shock to his Congressional colleagues and to President Taft on his visit here. As a member of the House Committee on Territories he had been greatly interested in the government of the Canal Zone, having first taken up the subject while Consul in British Guiana. His defeat for Congress in the recent election preyed on his mind, however, and apparently the change of climate due to the voyage affected him. On his arrival here he collapsed completely and was sent to a sanitarium, where he raved against President Taft, whom he blamed for his defeat. At times he was so violent that he had to be restrained. Doctors here thought it advisable for him to remain for a time, but some of his Congressional friends decided otherwise, believing he would recover when he returned to familiar places.

How he eluded his guards on the steamer was not stated in the wireless dispatches received here. He was violent when taken aboard the Panama, and it was understood that he would be watched closely day and night. It is believed that the guards had left him in charge of friends while they ate dinner, and that he deceived the watchers by feigning sleep. At any rate, he appeared on deck at 7 o'clock last night, ran to the rail, and jumped overboard.

Thirty Congressmen and their wives were on deck when Mr. Wedemeyer jumped. Their screams and shouts warned the officers of the vessel, and it was brought to a stop as soon as possible. Two boats were lowered. In one of these was Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, who had shown the warmest interest in Mr. Wedemeyer's condition. The men in the boats went far back on the track of the steamship and searched for two hours, but saw no trace of the suicide.

STARTS $100,000 LIBEL SUIT.

C. P. Connolly Sues Publisher Who Printed Ewing's Attack on Him.

Christopher P. Connolly, magazine writer, began suit for $100,000 damages for libel yesterday in the Federal Court for the Eastern District of New York against the Edward Thompson Company of Northport, L. I., publishers of Law Notes. The suit is based on the publication in the last August number of Law Notes of a speech made by Caruthers Ewing before the Georgia Bar Association on Mr. Connolly's series of magazine articles, entitled "Big Business and the Bench."

Mr. Connolly filed his suit through Attorney James B. Sheehan of this city. Mr. Ewing is a well-known member of the Memphis, Tenn., bar. Among the Federal Judges attacked in Connolly's articles were Judge Hanford of Seattle, who has since resigned, and Judge Archbald of Scranton, now defending impeachment proceedings before the United States Senate.

WOMEN DO KEEP SECRETS.

Two of Them Say They Do Not Tell of Their Employers' Affairs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—They loyalty of women to their employers and their general efficiency and superiority over men in the matter of keeping official secrets was praised by Miss Charlesworth, Chief Superintendent of the Local Government Board's typists, in evidence before the Civil Service Commission to-day.

Miss Florence, Secretary of the Women Clerks and Secretaries' Friendly Society, in discussing the subject, says: "There can be no doubt that women are far safer as clerks than men. A business secret is rarely if ever divulged outside by a woman clerk. Unlike the men, they do not, when they leave the office, indulge in long conversations about their work. Men babble to men far more than women do to women."

FRANCE MAY LOSE CARREL.

Rumors in Paris That Scientist Is to Become an American Citizen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—A rumor has been current in Paris in the last few days that Dr. Alexis Carrel, who is now crossing the Atlantic on the Victoria Luise, intends to become a naturalized American citizen.

This statement one newspaper categorically denies this evening, saying that the fact that Dr. Carrel consented to become a candidate for membership in the French Academy of Medicine was sufficient evidence of the baselessness of such rumors.

QUEBEC GIVES IN ON PULP.

Withdraws Restrictions on Exportation of Product of Crown Lands.

QUEBEC, Jan. 3.—By an order in Council passed by the Provincial Cabinet the restriction of the exportation of pulpwood cut on Crown lands has been withdrawn for four companies whose mills make daily about 480 tons of pulp for news paper.

The companies may now apply to the State Department at Washington to have their paper passed into the United States free of duty.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—The Ontario Government stands by its policy of refusing to allow export of pulp wood cut on crown lands. The provinces can do nothing to prevent export of pulp wood cut on lands owned by private parties; that is in the power of the Dominion Government only. There is a renewal of the agitation by Canadian manufacturers to get the Dominion Government to prohibit the export of pulp wood from private or any other lands in order to compel manufacture on this side of the border of all pulp wood cut in Canada.

E. H. James of Liberator Asks That Deportation Be Delayed.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The Department of State at Washington was requested to-day by Edward Holten James, editor of The Liberator and nephew of the late William James of Harvard University, to delay the deportation of Edward F. Mylius until he can arrive in the United States to defend him.

It was in The Liberator that the libel on King George was published. Mr. James will leave Havre on the Provence of the French Line to-morrow, taking with him a number of papers bearing on the case.

NEW CROSSINGS NOT ADOPTED

London Times Says Transatlantic Lines Have Not Reached Agreement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The announcement from Washington to the effect that the transatlantic steamship companies have made an agreement to adopt new crossings, in view of the danger from icebergs, is premature, according to The London Times, which makes the assertion on the authority of the management of the British shipping lines.

It is understood that negotiations are proceeding between the British and Continental shipping companies respecting a change in the North Atlantic shipping tracks. Proposals have been placed before the Continental companies by the British lines, and the latter hope to be able to make a statement on the subject either to-day or on Monday.

ATTACKS JOHNSON FOR FIREBUG REPORT

City's Loss Due to Incendiaries Probably 6%, Not 25, Says Insurance Exchange Head.

INCREASE IN LOSS AVERAGE

Why Are Figures 40 Per Cent. Higher Under Johnson? Asks Robb—Emmet for Stricter Arson Laws.

Fire Commissioner Johnson's report to the Mayor that 25 per cent. of the annual fire loss of this city was due to incendiaries tempted to commit arson by the ease with which policies could be obtained from insurance companies was answered with a vengeance yesterday by Willis O. Robb, Manager of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange. In a letter to the Commissioner he says:

"The inference you seek to have the Mayor and the public draw is absolutely false. The inference that an immense reduction in the fire loss ratio of New York City, perhaps a reduction that would bring it down to a level of that of the leading European cities, can be readily secured by compelling insurance companies to be more careful in the issue of their policies is the veriest moonshine."

Mr. Robb places no dependence at all on the 25 per cent. valuation placed by the Commissioner on the proportion of incendiary fires and explains why:

"You have not been connected with the Fire Department long enough to know what every underwriter of twenty years' experience in New York City long ago found out, that—partly because of peculiar local conditions and obstacles beyond the control of the authorities—all Fire Department statistics are incorrect and untrustworthy. The volume of the annual fire loss, for example, has been understated every year for many, many years, and it would take a heroic Commissioner to tell the whole truth now, even if he could ascertain it, and take the certain though undeserved blame for the apparent sharp increase under his own administration. And the department statistics for causes of fire are, to my certain knowledge, acquired during years of adjusting work in New York, even more unreliable. Certain it is that all the fraudulent losses do not increase the loss volume either of the country or of New York City by so much as even 10 per cent., probably not more than 6 per cent. or 7 per cent."

As to the basic matter—whether or not the fire insurance companies should be compelled to make an inspection of household furniture before issuing policies—Mr. Robb says that the expense of such advance inspection would be prohibitive, and that it would go but a very little way toward reducing the real fraud in fire loss claims.

It is Mr. Robb's point that overinsurance is not the real key to the problem of arson or insurance fraud. He says that one of the chief offenders is the man who has full value in household furniture present when he is insured, and then deftly moves it away before the fire.

"The public," he says, dryly, "can readily buy a dime's worth of protection for a dollar if it chooses, and is allowed to spend the money that way. The preposterous overinsurance represented by the $127,500 of policies you recently paid two or three hundred dollars of the city's money for and then hung up as an exhibit would not have been worth $50 in the hands of four actual policy holders of criminal instincts residing in the four locations where the several policies cover. The fraud involved in the mere attempt to procure such an amount of insurance on such property vitiates a New York standard policy, and no one would dream of trying to collect a loss under such circumstances.

Commissioner Johnson had not received Mr. Robb's letter last night, but he heard parts of it read over the telephone, and, after reasserting his opinion as to the proportion of incendary fire loss, he said:

"Mr. Robb says we should go ahead and insure the firebug because it is expensive to the incendiary to inspect him beforehand. I say that the incendiary should not get any insurance at all. He says, too, that the underwriters' estimate of annual fire loss is far greater than the Fire Department's. Of course it is; and for a very simple reason. The underwriters pay out millions of false claims. We estimate actual loss. Every year the underwriters pay out from two to four millions more than is actually lost in fires, and calmly assess their honest policyholders for it in excessive premiums.

"The fire losses for 1912, even excluding the Equitable fire, will show a substantial reduction, Mr. Robb's statement to the contrary notwithstanding. But our figures will not include many hundreds of thousands of dollars paid out through queer adjusters to crooked insurers. He is welcome to his statistics.

A gentler though no less positive opponent of the Commissioner appeared yesterday in the person of State Supt. of Insurance Emmet. He believes that the remedy lies in more stringent arson laws and more severe penalties, and in the licensing and regulation of adjusters, according to the provisions of a bill shortly to be introduced at Albany. He believes it should be a criminal offense for householders to have certain inflammable materials stored in violation of city ordinances.

NORTH WILL FIGHT FOR HOUSE PLACES

New Congressmen Do Not Propose to Let Best Jobs Go to Southerners.

REVOLT AGAINST SENIORITY

Though Sectional In Form—Bailey of Pennsylvania Has Obtained Pledges for the Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—Some time ago it was reported that the Northern Democrats elected to the Sixty-third House of Representatives were ripe for revolt against the monopoly of the big committee assignments by the South. To-day it was learned that the revolt is and has for some time been under full headway, and that a brisk correspondence is going on among the Northern Representatives-elect. It was further learned that the plan of campaign they have adopted is virtually the same as that adopted by the Senate protestants against the rule of seniority in that body—the formation of a Committee on Committees to report back to the caucus—and that the Northern rebels are planning to start the fight in a caucus to be held at the beginning of the extra session, which President Wilson will call next Spring.

One of the leaders in the movement is Warren Worth Bailey of Pennsylvania, who has been conducting an active correspondence with the other new Congressmen from north of the Mason and Dixon line, and who has obtained a number of pledges from Congressmen-elect to stand out in favor of full representation.

During the long period in which the Republicans controlled the House there were very few Northern Democrats in its membership. The House Democracy shrank until it contained very little outside the solid South. Naturally, therefore, the best committee places in the minority have come to be theirs. In the Sixty-third Congress, however, the Northern Democrats will outnumber the Southern ones, and they do not view with pleasure the prospect of having to content themselves with places in the rear. It is therefore a sectional fight only in form. In reality it is a fight against the seniority practice, the same as in the Senate.

SENATOR OWEN SEES WILSON.

Expects No Opposition from the "Seniors" in the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—Another of the progressive leaders in Congress, Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, called on Gov. Wilson to-day. While he came to request on behalf of Oklahoma the appointment of Robert Rogers as Secretary of the Interior, he took occasion to inform Mr. Wilson of the progress of the movement against seniority rule in the Senate begun by Mr. Bryan.

Senator Owen has no doubt whatever that Senator Hoke Smith's plan for the overthrow of seniority rule by the appointment of a Committee on Committees, which shall report to the Senate caucus, will be adopted. He believes that the progressives have the game so thoroughly in their own hands that the conservatives will make no opposition.

WILSON'S MAIL EXPENSIVE.

Ollie James Thinks He Should Have Right to Frank Letters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Reports received by Democratic leaders here that Gov. Wilson's private purse is being depleted severely by the heavy postage bills he has to pay have led to the consideration of the propriety of adopting a measure to relieve the drain on the President-elect's pocket. Representative Ollie James, Senator-elect from Kentucky, may introduce a resolution extending the mail-franking privilege to persons elected to the Presidency between election day and inauguration day.

Even before his nomination in Baltimore last July, Gov. Wilson's personal mail began to increase enormously. Since his election to the Presidency, letters have come to him daily by the bushel, and most of these are answered by himself or his secretaries. Although certain reports put his stamp bills much higher, the most reliable statement is that he has to pay about $60 a week for postage out of his private means.

PRESIDENT-ELECT TOTES EGGS.

Helps Out Parcel Post—Would Like a Steel Glove.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Jan. 3.—Gov. Wilson took active part in National affairs to-day when he acted as an agent for Uncle Sam's parcel post service and carried a dozen eggs from his home in Princeton to the State House, where he delivered them into the hands of his secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty. The eggs had been sent through the mail to the college town for Mr. Tumulty, and the President-elect decided to bring them with him.

This was the second anniversary of the Governor's inauguration, and he recalled that day when he shook hands with about 4,000 persons. He read with interest of President Taft's New Year's reception, when the President greeted 7,000 men, women, and children.

"There ought to be some sort of reinforced steel fingers for the use of Presidents," he jokingly declared. "If some one would only invent a glove that would take the pressure off the hands, he would be conferring a great blessing."

ARCHBOLD JOINED FIGHT ON TILLMAN

Senate Committee Gets Letters Showing He Helped McLaurin in South Carolina.

SCOTT WAS AIDED ALSO

Ex-Senator Thanked Oil Man for Keeping West Virginia in Republican Column—Last of Hearst Letters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The Senate Committee investigating campaign funds received to-day the last batch of Standard Oil letters in the possession of William Randolph Hearst. When Mr. Hearst appeared before the Committee recently, he gave three or four hitherto unpublished papers, and told the Committee he thought the others he had were comparatively uninteresting. To-day, in response to the Committee's demand, he sent thirty-one additional letters and telegrams. Many of them are old, but others throw interesting light on relations that heretofore have only been hinted.

Many of the letters made public to-day showed an extensive correspondence between John D. Archbold and Former Senator J. L. McLaurin, of South Carolina, who first attracted public attention by engaging in a fist-fight on the floor of the Senate with his colleague, Benjamin R. Tillman. At that time, Mr. Tillman was carrying on a bitter warfare with Mr. McLaurin on the ground that McLaurin had turned Republican. The letters received by the Committee to-day showed that throughout this controversy Mr. McLaurin had the support of John D. Archbold and that at least once he wrote Mr. Archbold that he would defeat Mr. Tillman if he was "generously" supported. Mr. Archbold's answer to this suggestion is not included in the files of the Committee.

Others of the letters merely confirmed, what Senator Boise Penrose of Pennsylvania has already admitted, the close relations between Mr. Archbold and the Senator from Pennsylvania. One interesting bit of correspondence is that between ex-Senator Nathan B. Scott, of West Virginia, and Mr. Archbold. In one of these letters Mr. Scott says that but for the lavish use of money by his opponents he would have carried the State by a much larger majority than he did. In a telegram of the same year, 1904, when Theodore Roosevelt was the Republican nominee for President, Mr. Scott says that, thanks to Mr. Archbold and other friends, West Virginia had gone Republican by 25,000.

One letter from Mr. Archbold, addressed to Former Senator William J. Sewell, of New Jersey, asked him to use his influence in straightening out Representative John J. Gardner, who, as a member of the Industrial Commission, was supposed to be antagonistic to the Standard Oil interests. Mr. Archbold in that letter asked Mr. Sewell to do what he could with Mr. Gardner, and, if he failed, to make arrangements whereby Mr. Archbold or Henry H. Rogers might meet him. Other letters from Mr. Archbold expressed willingness to do all he could to assist the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia.

The more interesting of the unpublished letters are as follows:

Feb. 25, 1902.

My Dear Senator:

I venture to write you a word regarding the bill introduced by Senator Jones of Arkansas, known as S. 649, intended to amend the act "to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies, &c.," introduced by him Dec. 4.

It really seems as though this bill is very unnecessarily severe, and even vicious. Is it not much better to test the application of the Sherman act before resorting to a measure of this kind? I hope you will feel so about it, and I will be greatly pleased to have a word from you on the subject. The bill is, I believe, still in committee.

With kind regards, I am, very truly yours,
JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

Congratulations to Penrose.

[Personal.]

My Dear Senator:

I beg to congratulate you heartily on the result of the election in Pennsylvania and in the country at large. I hope Senator Quay is all right.

I write in fulfillment of a promise to Smiley of Franklin that I would say a word to you in his behalf with reference to his re-election as Chief Clerk of the Senate. If it is consistent for you to favor him for that position I will be very glad.

Very truly yours,
JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

To Mr. J. D. Archbold, 26 Broadway, New York:

My Dear Mr. Archbold:

You, no doubt, have noticed the result in West Virginia and the desperate fight we had to make in this State.

It was something terrific. Our opponents spent in some counties alone $40,000, and by the lavish use of money they reduced our majority very much, and came very nearly defeating our Governor. If it had not been for their money and the liberal use they made of it we would have carried the State by 50,000; as it is, it will be about 30,000, with the Governor elected by about 8,000 and the Legislature about 22 majority on joint ballot, which would seem to indicate that I would be returned to the Senate.

With many, many thanks for your kindness, I am, yours very truly, N. B. SCOTT.

With McLaurin in Tillman Fight.

Dec. 12, 1901.

My Dear Senator: I have your kind favor of yesterday. We have, of course, noted your recent disagreeable experience with T. with the utmost interest. Think you have done just right in not being goaded by him into doing a foolish thing.

I am greatly interested in the suggestion of the law practice, and will see to it that it is kept in mind, with the hope that something may develop in which I can be of service to you in connection therewith. With kind regards I am very truly yours,
JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.
Hon. John L. McLaurin, Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.

June 6, 1901.

Dear Mr. Sibley: I duly received your favor of the 4th, and herewith return you Senator McL.'s very interesting letters. I wrote Senator McL. some days ago, expressing my great admiration for his wise and courageous course, and saying to him that I would be very glad to confer with him at any time, either in person or by letter. Of course, the situation is now entirely changed, and the campaign will not be made at present. This is undoubtedly very favorable to Senator McL., as the trend of events is certainly tremendously in his favor.

I am especially delighted this morning over Gov. McSweeney's reply to Tillman. Tillman is so rank a demagogue, and the logic of events is so much against him, that if McLaurin would only keep cool, perhaps doing a little judicious nagging occasionally, Tillman will hang himself. It would be the greatest possible mistake for McL. to lose his temper and be drawn into anything like a personal encounter with Tillman. It would be so far beneath his dignity personally, and would so injure the great step of progress which he has had the courage to undertake on behalf of his State and the South that it would be almost a National misfortune. Very truly yours, JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

United States Senate.
Bennettsville, S. C., May 29, 1902.

Dear Mr. Archbold: I have pushed my fight so vigorously that they called on Tillman. I met him at Gaffney and beat him at his own game. I called his bluff, and now the fight is for two seats in the Senate instead of one. I can beat Tillman if properly and generously supported. There is no time to lose, however. I inclose an account of both meetings for your information.

With kindest regards, I am yours sincerely,
JOHN L. McLAURIN.

Would Placate J. J. Gardner.

Oct. 10, 1900.

My Dear Senator: Representative John J. Gardner of Atlantic City is a member of the United States Industrial Commission, which, as you know, has been sitting as a court of inquiry on corporation questions for a long time past. He is a member, also, of a special committee of the commission, which is to have under advisement shortly some questions affecting testimony or statements antagonistic to our interests. When Mr. Rogers and myself appeared before the commission several months ago, Representative Gardner was not present, much to our disappointment. We understood that for some reason, his feelings toward us are not very friendly.

We would greatly like to have him set right, and are sure, if we could have an opportunity of personal contact with him, we could set him right, and, perhaps, open his eyes radically with reference to the character of the attack that is being made on us before the commission.

Are your relations such with Mr. Gardner that you can talk with him on the subject and, if possible, set him right? Or, if you cannot do this, can you pave the way for an opportunity for us to see him? Your kind attention to the matter will very greatly oblige yours very truly,
JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.

My Dear Senator: You need not offer any excuses for asking any aid that we can possibly extend to you in West Virginia. Mr. Clark has returned, and I have just telegraphed him as follows:

"Senator Elkins is very anxious to have John Starkey and D. F. Cornell, foremen, work vigorously for the success of the Republican legislative ticket in their districts. It is very important. We are very anxious to do everything possible to aid Senator Elkins. Will you please give the matter prompt attention?"

I have no doubt whatever but that Mr. Clark will give the matter prompt and vigorous attention. With good wishes, I am

SENATOR BAILEY RESIGNS.

Will Practice Before Supreme Court —Col. R. M. Johnston to Succeed Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Senator Joseph W. Bailey, who delivered a farewell speech in the Senate yesterday placed his resignation as a Senator from Texas in the hands of Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, President Pro Tempore of that body, to-day. The letter of resignation was of record brevity. It read:

Dear Sir: I hereby tender my resignation as a Senator from Texas. J. W. BAILEY.

The letter was undated. Col. Richard Melville Johnston, proprietor of The Houston Post, will be appointed by Gov. Colquitt of Texas to succeed Senator Bailey. Col. Johnston arrived in Washington to-day on his way to New York to attend the annual meeting of The Associated Press, of which he is a Director.

WOULD GIVE ARMY THE CANTEEN AGAIN

Gen. Wood Believes It Would Tend to the Improvement of the Service.

LINE AND STAFF STRUGGLE

Individual Merit Should Count in Promotions—Plan for Reorganization of the Field Artillery.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The restoration of the army canteen, and the enactment of legislation for the elimination from the United States Army of unfit officers, are among the principal recommendations of Major Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the army, in his annual report which was made public to-day.

"The great majority of the officers of the army," says Gen. Wood, "are of the opinion that the re-establishment of the canteen, under proper supervision, would tend to improve the health, discipline, and efficiency of the service through dismissing intemperance and immorality. I concur in this opinion."

The General also recommended the concentration of the army on strategic lines, and in areas where it can be more economically maintained, and would transfer all the personnel of the staff corps—excepting engineers, medical officers, and chaplains—to the line, increasing, accordingly, the number of general officers and line officers in the different grades.

Discussing means for the elimination of unfit officers, the Chief of Staff says:

"The full efficiency of an organization of men cannot be secured without a system by which the merits of the individuals shall have some effect upon their advancement. The army has long suffered from the lack of such a system.

"Up to the grade of Colonel, promotion is entirely by seniority in each branch, and there is no way, under the law, by which an officer, no matter what his merit, can be advanced a single number except by making him a general officer."

Discussing the desertions from the army last year, which numbered 3,401, an increase of 897 over the year preceding, Gen. Wood says:

"It is probable that many young men enlisted last year with an expectation of field service, which was not gratified."

The General presents a detailed plan for the reorganization of the field artillery. This general plan provides that the first increment of the skeleton field army shall be two regiments of infantry, six battalions of field artillery, one field company of signal troops, five field hospitals, and five ambulance companies. Moreover, there is no provision for effective service of ammunition, and many of the guns would, in a single day's fight, use all the ammunition which can now be carried for them.

The report calls attention to the fact that many of the States refuse to include a proper proportion of field artillery and cavalry in their militia because of the expense, and he suggests that hereafter Congress definitely appropriate money which can only be used by the States for the organizations of these arms.

JUMPS 5 STORIES TO DEATH.

Persons in the Street Rush to Pick Up Woman as She Falls.

Persons in Morningside Avenue and 118th Street, shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, saw a woman plunge from a window at the fifth floor of the Morningside Park Apartment House at 40 Morningside Avenue. Several men ran to her as she struck the pavement, and a policeman called Dr. Bradbury from the J. Hood Wright Hospital. He said the woman had been killed instantly.

She was identified as Mrs. Lena Von Saall, 50 years old, who lived with her son Frederick, a young man of 21. He was overcome by the shock of his mother's death, and refused to say anything which might determine whether she fell or jumped from the window. He said that his mother had been in ill-health recently.

Coroner Holtzhauser gave it as his opinion that Mrs. Von Saall had jumped from the window. He questioned several persons who had seen the woman's body strike the sidewalk, though he could find no one who had observed her until she was falling. He concluded that Mrs. Von Saall had struck the sidewalk much further from the building line than would have been the case had she fallen.

FIGHT FOR ELEVATED STATION

Champions for 38th and 37th Street Sites Appear at Hearing.

The contest between those who want the new station on the Sixth Avenue elevated railroad, for which a petition has been made by John Claflin and Lord & Taylor, at Thirty-eighth Street, and those who prefer to have it at Thirty-seventh Street, raged furiously yesterday at a hearing before the Public Service Commission. A brand new association known as the Thirty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue Association, has been formed by one firm, which wished to have some cover for its personal objections to the Thirty-eighth Street site.

A. F. Vandyke, Secretary of McGibbon & Co., was the first witness, and presented a petition on behalf of Thirty-seventh Street. He recited as reasons for that site the importance of having the station as near as possible to the point of greatest congestion, which he said was at Thirty-fourth Street.

Two supporters of Thirty-eighth Street, George W. Fallon, representing Dr. E. R. L. Gould and W. Ordway Partridge, and Robert P. Scobel, President of the Brunswick Realty Company, dwelt on the great construction of important buildings in Thirty-eighth Street. Mr. Scobel estimated the new buildings in Thirty-eighth Street as affording 750,000 square feet of floor space, and probably giving employment to 20,000 persons.

An extract was read from a letter of the United Cigar Stores, in which it was stated that though the company had a store at Thirty-seventh Street, and the interests of that called for the southerly site, yet the company had no doubt that the advantage to the public would be much greater if the station was placed at Thirty-eighth Street.

The Thirty-eighth Street champions had George S. Rice, formerly chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, as an expert witness. By actual count, he said, the number of pedestrians who passed through Thirty-eighth Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues on Dec. 31, between 7:30 A. M. and 6:15 P. M., was 31,308, and along Thirty-seventh Street, 17,694.

In reply to him, Alfred Roelker took the stand and, examined by Abram I. Elkus, stated that Thirty-seventh Street had been under a restriction by which all houses were to be built seven feet back from the building line, but this restriction was about to be removed. Then he prophesied Thirty-seventh Street would go ahead.

At the request of Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough, the hearing was adjourned for a week.

MR. REID'S BODY LANDED WITH HONORS

British Cruiser Which Bore It and American Escort Beset by Fog on Way to Port.

COFFIN IN ST. JOHN'S CRYPT

Borne from Navy Landing on an Artillery Caisson Under Escort of Marines — Funeral Service To-day.

The British armored cruiser Natal, bearing the body of Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador to England, who died in London on Dec. 16, arrived in the Hudson a few minutes after noon yesterday. Two hours later, the flag-draped coffin, containing the body of the dead Ambassador, was escorted by sailors and marines of the American Navy, to the crypt of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, where it will stay until the funeral at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Natal was accompanied to her anchorage off Ninety-seventh Street, by the American Dreadnoughts Florida and North Dakota, the Florida flying the pennant of Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske. The second group of destroyers of the Atlantic Torpedo Flotilla preceded the larger ships and pointed the course for them, through the fog. The Natal, with her ensign at half staff and the American flag at half staff on her foremast, steamed close behind them.

The American ships met the Natal off Nantucket at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. The American ships exchanged wireless greetings with the British cruiser and steamed with her under threatening skies and a rough sea to this port.

All Thursday night and until they arrived at the naval anchorage off Tompkinsville at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, where they waited for the weather to clear, the warships were enveloped in a dense fog. For awhile it was feared that the fog would make it impossible for the ships to arrive in the Hudson at the hour set, but at 10 o'clock the fog lifted and the ships proceeded to the anchorages assigned to them.

The Natal anchored abreast of Ninety-seventh Street with the Florida and the North Dakota to the south of her in the order named. The naval landing just north of Ninety-sixth Street had been roped off and a squad of policemen under Inspector Dwyer was on duty there to keep the crowd back. A company of sailors from the North Dakota with Capt. Wilson of that ship in command awaited the arrival of the coffin on the pier.

Some two hours passed before the coffin was transferred from the Natal to one of the steam launches of the flagship Florida. The water was rough in the Hudson and as the wind blew at a velocity of more than eighty-five miles an hour, the task of bringing the coffin ashore was a difficult one.

At 2:15 o'clock the coffin was lowered to the launch and fifteen minutes later the launch started. It made slow progress to the landing, where Ogden Mills, Mrs. Reid's brother; Ogden Mills Reid, the late Ambassador's son; Third Assistant Secretary of State Chandler Hale, representing President Taft, and Capt. Templin M. Potts, U. S. N., officially representing the Navy Department, awaited it.

When the launch came alongside the landing raft four companies of sailors and two of marines from Admiral Fiske's ships stood at attention along the shore, with the band from the North Dakota at the head of the line. The metal coffin was very heavy, and the eight petty officers from the Florida and North Dakota who carried it staggered under its weight as they bore it on their shoulders to the artillery caisson on which it was taken to the cathedral.

Mr. Mills, Mr. Reid, Secretary Hale, and Capt. Potts stood with bared heads as the coffin was strapped to the caisson. A detachment of marines marched ahead of the caisson on the way to the cathedral, and two automobiles carrying the relatives and officials of the Government followed it. The long line of sailors and marines at the pier presented arms as the caisson passed.

On the coffin, which was covered by an American flag, was a large cross made of white carnations. This was a tribute from the officers of the Natal, who had ordered it by wireless from Nantucket Thursday morning.

The caisson bearing the coffin arrived at the Cathedral at 3 o'clock. Some 500 persons stood with bared heads as it was carried into the church by the petty officers. The coffin was put in the crypt, where it will be guarded by a detachment of marines under command of Lieut. W. McIlvaine until 9 o'clock this morning, when it will be taken into the vestibule of the cathedral.

Soon after the coffin was taken to the crypt a short service was held there. Those in attendance were the family of Mr. Reid and the Government representatives. The Rev. William H. Grosvenor, Dean of the Cathedral, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Howard C. Robinson, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, conducted the service.

The funeral service in the cathedral this morning will be conducted by Bishop Greer. President Taft and Secretary of State Knox will attend, and representatives of the War and Navy Departments, the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, and Gov. Sulzer will be present.

The pallbearers will be James Bryce, British Ambassador to this country; Senator Root, Secretary of State P. C. Knox, J. Pierpont Morgan, Joseph H. Choate, Mr. Reid's predecessor as Ambassador to England; Hart Lyman, Rear Admiral W. C. Cowles, U. S. N.; Donald Nicholson, W. D. Sloane, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Judge George Gray, Robert Bacon, ex-Ambassador to France; Henry White, and ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew.

After the funeral service, the body will be taken through 110th Street to Fifth Avenue, south in Fifth Avenue to Fifty-third Street, through Fifty-third Street to Madison Avenue, south in Madison Avenue, by the Reid home, at 541, to Fiftieth Street, east in Fiftieth Street to Park Avenue, and from there to the Grand Central Station. The burial will be in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

LAY MISSIONARIES START WORLD'S TOUR

Farewell Dinner Given Them by James G. Cannon at Hotel Astor as They Set Out.

IDEALS ARE TO BE TAUGHT

For East Is Not to be East and West West, as the Twain Shall Meet—Committee of Forward Movement.

Following a farewell dinner given in their honor at the Hotel Astor last night by James G. Cannon, a committee of seven of the Men and Religious Forward Movement, consisting of Fred B. Smith, Raymond Robins, the International Male Quartet, and James E. Lathrop, started on a tour around the world to spread in far countries the ideals and methods of achieving them adopted in the recent Nation-wide campaign of the organization in this country.

About 150 lay and clergy committeemen and speakers of the movement attended the farewell dinner. Mr. Cannon himself was unable to be present, as he had been suffering from grip for several days. In his stead, Alfred E. Marling, Chairman of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, and James M. Speers, presided jointly. The ideals and achievements of the new programme in Christian work for men and boys, as typified in the Men and Religion Forward Movement, were discussed by various speakers from these points of view: "In Public Life," by H. B. F. Macfarland of Washington, D. C.; "In Co-operative Effort," by the Rev. Dr. Frank Mason; "In Men's Organizations," by William Knowles Cooper of Washington, D. C.; "In Social Relationships," by Raymond Robins of Chicago; "In Church Relationships," by the Rev. Dr. Charles G. Albertson of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, and "In World Relationships," by Fred B. Smith.

The delegation which is to make the world tour, and to whom the speakers last night wished godspeed as "ambassadors extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary of the churches of America to the churches of the Orient," consists of representative leaders in the movement. The committee left here last night and will visit these cities of this country: Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, Denver, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, and Oakland. It will sail from San Francisco Jan. 17, and will spend a week in Honolulu before going on to Japan, where it will stop at Yokohama, Tokio, Kioto, Osaka and Kobé, and next go to Shanghai and Hongkong, China. The Philippines will then be visited, and next Australia, including Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne, Ballarat, Adelaide, and Perth. From there the committee will land in South Africa, and make a tour there. It will be in London July 5, in Zurich, Switzerland, July 14 to 18, and back in New York Aug. 1.

The mission, it was explained, will be to dispel and repudiate Kipling's doctrine of separatism, "For East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," and by a series of meetings and conferences with Christian laymen in all the cities visited to work for these objects: (1) To add to the growing spirit of fraternal co-operation throughout organized Christianity; (2) to give increased power to specialized Christian work for men and boys; (3) to assist in a better coalition of the various types of method in Christian organizations—evangelistic, educational, nurtural, individualistic, and social; (4) to impart any methods that have been found of unusual power in North American church work for men and boys, and to learn those in use in other nations which should be useful at home; (5) to win as many men and boys as possible to immediate membership in the Church.

The tour is approved by the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations of North America and is in part under its direction, although a special committee has been appointed to direct the movement more closely. Frederick B. Smith, leader of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, will represent evangelism and organized work for men and boys in the world tour. Raymond Robins will represent social service, boys' work, and Christian publicity. The International Male Quartet consists of these men, each of whom will represent a particular phase of the campaign of the movement: Edward J. Peck, representing community extension; Paul J. Gilbert and P. H. Metcalf of this city, representing personal work, and C. M. Keeler of this city, representing business management. James E. Lathrop of New York is Secretary of the movement.

The party started on its trip around the world immediately after the farewell dinner last night.

WOMAN FIGHTS ARMED THIEF.

Holds His Hand Containing a Revolver Until Aid Arrives.

Mrs. Sadie Betino, who with her husband, Frank Betino, runs a grocery store at 303 East Twenty-ninth Street, turned the tables on a man who demanded $25 from her at the point of a revolver last night. She seized the robber's hand in which he held the revolver, and clung to it until aid arrived.

Mrs. Betino was alone in the store with her 6-year-old son John when the robber entered. Her cries attracted the attention of a man in the street. He grappled with the man, and Policeman Kelly joined him in a few minutes.

In the East Thirty-fifth Street Station the prisoner said he was Joseph Navarra, a collector of 518 East Twelfth Street. He said that Mrs. Betino owed him $25. She said she had never seen the man before.

SCRAMBLED EGGS BY POST.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio Finds Them Oozing Over His Desk.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio is seeking the Senate Office Building employe who left a package of eggs on his desk yesterday.

The eggs were young and in the shell when they started out from Massillon, Ohio, by way of parcel post, but when they arrived some were scrambled. Eight had oozed out of the package when it was laid on the Senator's desk.

LOVE LAUGHS AT SHOTGUN.

Daughter Runs Away with Boarder Before an Angry Father.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Jan. 3.—Miss Annie Forrester of West Patchogue and Edward Palmer, who was a boarder in her parents' home, ran away together to-day and it is understood were married in New York. Chiefly because their acquaintance had been very short, Mr. and Mrs. Forrester objected strongly when marriage was mentioned. So the couple planned to run away. The Forresters heard of their plans, and said that if Palmer left Patchogue with Annie he would go without his clothes, which they proposed to hold. Palmer went to the house yesterday with Constable C. W. Coleman, who convinced the Forresters that they had better give up the clothes rather than face a possible charge of larceny. So Palmer, with his grip in one hand, left the house, and Annie followed.

"Don't you dare take my daughter," shouted the father.

"I wouldn't think of such a thing," said Palmer, "but I can't help it if she follows me."

Just then an automobile whizzed up, and Palmer and Miss Forrester jumped in. Before they could start, eyewitnesses say, Forrester ran into his house and reappeared with his shotgun. He pursued the automobile several blocks, and then went to the Patchogue railroad station, thinking to head off the elopers, but they went right on to Blue Point, the next station, and caught the 4:07 train for New York.

SOCIETY TO AID CRIPPLES.

Welfare Body Launched by New York and Westchester Residents.

To aid cripples, and to reduce mendicancy, vagrancy and pauperism among them, well-known residents of Westchester County and New York have just organized the Cripples' Welfare Society of New York and Westchester.

Justice Keogh of the Supreme Court yesterday approved the incorporation of the society. The society was formed primarily to promote the welfare of cripples, supply the needy with artificial legs and arms, procure employment and elevate their moral condition. Among the Directors are Judge Frank Millard, the Rev. E. A. Brooks, Miss C. E. Mason, Dr. W. S. Coons, health officer of Yonkers, and ex-Coroner Frank E. Russell.

Born of Necessity—Not Invention:

Reorganization Clearance Sale of Hackett, Carhart & Co. Inc. Retail

Pursuant to plans for a complete reorganization, each entire stock in every Hackett-Carhart store is to be sold immediately. These stocks for weeks past have been the sensation of New York's finest clothing circles.

Their prices have represented values greater than were ever before known. To-day sees these same prices reduced still further. In all Hackett-Carhart history—a period of over 56 years—they are without precedent.

To-day's event is an aftermath of the recent receivership, when the creditors accepted 50 cents on the dollar. A settlement which resulted in a saving to the public of precisely that proportion.

And that same saving to-day is vastly increased by the necessity of immediate clearance of stocks.

More than 15,000 garments are involved. Garments for every service. And each assortment is as fresh and complete as the season's beginning would see them.

Many of the models, in fact, are of more advanced fashion than can be shown elsewhere in all New York.

A Pledge

Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., Retail, pledge themselves to you in the following facts:

That each of the 15,000 garments now on hand will be sold immediately—and without a single reservation.

That the values quoted in each instance are actual, provable values—and without equal elsewhere in all America.

And that each garment is of the newest, finest fabric—the latest, most correct style—possible of procurement at anywhere near the originally intended price.

The quality throughout is of the same high standard that has won fame for the Hackett-Carhart name throughout the length and breadth of this country. A fame that has lived through two generations.

Summed up briefly: To-day's offerings comprise suits and overcoats for men, young men, boys, and children. Garments for business, dress, college, school, motor, travel, and storm service.

For late style and new colorings, quality of fabric and correctness of cut, these assortments are without peer—even at twice the Hackett-Carhart price.

EDISON'S PICTURES TALK AND PERFORM

Phonograph and Motion Films Synchronized and Invention Declared in Working Order.

SHOWS TO OPEN HERE SOON

Contracts with Four Manhattan and Three Brooklyn Houses—Demonstration in Laboratory.

Talking motion pictures are at last a reality. This newest form of amusement is to be offered to New York City in the course of four or five weeks. The inventor, Thomas A. Edison, promised it yesterday afternoon after a demonstration of his latest invention in the Directors' room of the Edison laboratory in West Orange, N. J. Arrangements had been made to install the talking motion picture machine in four vaudeville theatres in Manhattan and three in Brooklyn.

After many years of experimentation Mr. Edison has at last perfected a machine synchronizing the motion picture and the phonograph, solving a problem that has engaged the attention and study of investigators in every country where the motion picture is known.

The demonstration at the laboratory was witnessed by several of his associates and employes and the veteran inventor was an interested spectator himself. He occupied a seat on the front row, where he could best catch the strains from some of his favorite selections.

In all seven reels were exhibited. The first picture was that of a lecturer advancing to the front of the stage, bowing to the audience and proceeding in good voice to describe the new invention, which he called the "Kinetophone," the words having been placed in his mouth, after the fashion of ventriloquists, by the synchronized phonograph behind the curtain. He then made several tests to establish his assertion of perfect synchronism. A piece of chinaware was dashed to the floor with a crash. Horns and whistles were blown, followed by piano, violin and vocal solos. When collie dogs that actually barked were introduced into the picture, the shadowy lecturer, apparently satisfied that his audience was convinced, came forward again and said:

"To what vast purpose it can attain can only be guessed. Consider, for instance, the historic value of a Kinetophone production of George Washington if it were possible to show it now, and you will realize the splendid opportunities of future generations to study the great men of to-day. The political orator can appeal to thousands while remaining at his own fireside; the world's greatest statesmen, actors, singers can be seen and heard in even the smallest hamlet, not only to-day, but 100 years hence. In fact, there seems to be no end to the possibilities of this greatest invention of the wizard of sound and sight, Thomas A. Edison."

Mr. Edison, taken by surprise at the complimentary utterances of the picture talker, looked as embarrassed as a schoolboy, and, fearing that there might be further tributes to himself on the unwound reel, straightway demanded of his chief engineer, M. R. Hutchison, that the performance be discontinued.

The next reel showed the miser scene from the "Chimes of Normandie," and in turn the Miserere from "Trovatore," the quarrel between Brutus and Cassius from "Julius Caesar," a comedy sketch entitled "The Politician," and two others, "Her Redemption" and "Dick, the Highwayman."

In light and grand opera, in comedy and serious drama, the movements of the actors and singers were marked by the realism of the present-day stage. Distinct articulation was attained, and this made it all the more obvious that voice and action had been simultaneously recorded. In order to synchronize light and sound waves it was necessary to have a recorder of sufficient delicacy to be affected by the minutest sound waves at a distance of fully 40 feet, so that the recording apparatus would be outside the field of the lens. The phonographic recorder was attached to the picture machine, and it was only left for the actors to perform in the regular way to make a dual record.

The record thus made is reproduced in the same way that all motion pictures are projected, with the addition of the synchronized phonograph that interprets the pictures from behind the curtain. The phonograph can be removed from the picture machine at distances varying up to 300 feet. The talking machine is so constructed that it "sets the pace" for the picture machine, so that the reel cannot overrun the record on the phonograph. The operator of the picture machine, whose booth the law requires to be fireproof and consequently almost soundproof, is provided with a transmitter from the phonograph and a speed indicator, by which he can detect any trouble behind the curtain.

Mr. Edison expressed himself as highly gratified at the results achieved. He was frank to admit, however, that there were still some defects to be overcome, and his critical ear was quick to find fault with the selection from "Trovatore," which, he said, was "still rough" and would have to be "toned down."

In answer to one of the reporters, who asked Mr. Edison whether he considered his new invention perfect, he replied:

"No, I do not consider it perfect. No machine is perfect. Man is not perfect. He needs the doctor, too."

Mr. Edison then said it was his wish to put the best operas and drama within the reach of the man of small means, or, as he expressed it, "to make it possible for the poorest families in Squeedunk to see the same operas and plays that are produced in New York City for an admission price of 5 cents."

CONFER ON BROADWAY LIGHTS

Broadway Association Will Also Consider New Subway Plans.

The Executive Committee of the Broadway Association met at the Hotel Imperial last night to consider the plan for additional light in Broadway, and to prepare for the public hearing on the Broadway Subway on Thursday before the Public Service Commission. Commissioner Thompson of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity was present.

Mr. Thompson said that lack of money prevented him from putting more lights in Broadway. The fact that the street would be torn up because of the subway was pointed to as one of the reasons why more lights should be provided without delay. A system of gas lighting similar to that in Regent Street, London, was proposed by the representative of a gas lighting concern. A committee consisting of F. A. Muschenheim and Henry P. Opdyke was appointed to confer with Mr. Thompson on a lighting plan.

Mr. Opdyke and H. L. Limburg, counsel for the association, were also selected as a committee to obtain copies of the contract for the Broadway subway from the Public Service Corporation. They will go over this contract carefully to learn just how it affects the interests of the Broadway business interests, so that the association may be prepared for the public hearing on Thursday. The questions of express stations at Thirty-fourth Street and Times Square, and a local station at Thirty-eighth Street are among those which will be considered by the association.

WORK TOGETHER FOR AMERICAN MODES

Founder of National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers Association Calls This First Step.

APPROVES TIMES CONTEST

America Will Win When Manufacturers and Dressmakers Co-operate as They Do in France.

"THE NEW YORK TIMES's competition for American-designed hats and gowns is the biggest thing that has ever happened to the cause of the American fashions for American women," says Samuel Paull, founder and first President of the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers Association. The association, which was started five years ago under Mr. Paull's direction, has grown to a membership of over 1,000 in the large cities of the country.

"This competition is going to be the making of some small dressmaker, perhaps, with hidden talent. His design will go all over the country and he will be famous. Once the press earnestly supports this American fashion movement success is assured.

"Our association just at present is bringing all its energies to bear upon the big manufacturers of our country. I believe that the public is ready to recognize American talent, that American women no longer care who makes their gowns and hats if the hats and gowns are only stylish and beautiful. Five years ago I was laughed at for trying to induce houses which use imported goods to put their own labels on their own creations. But our Fifth Avenue dressmakers to-day are advertising original creations as well as Paquins and Drecolls.

"But it is the manufacturer who is holding the entire movement back, and why I cannot see, for he is deliberately killing his own chances. He sends his goods abroad to be reimported by the commission house. He seems afraid to advertise his own productions. He allows commission houses to put the foreign label on his materials, thereby advertising Paris with every yard of silk or wool that he sells. He cannot see beyond his own nose. I used to hear of Americans as the best business people in the world before I came here twenty-five years ago. But I begin to have my serious doubts about their business ability. They cannot see far enough ahead."

Mr. Paull advocates a great exhibition hall where American-made goods should be displayed, as the first step to be taken by the manufacturers and dressmakers of America in coöperation.

"The dressmakers are sure that the public will be more than satisfied with domestic creations if the manufacturers will give them a chance. They are willing to coöperate. The first step would be this: A great exhibition hall should be built where all the trades pertaining to women's wear should have a chance to show their latest creations and their latest importations. When a woman saw a silk which was made by one of our large manufacturers and beside it an imported silk she would have a chance to judge for herself which was the better, and as the domestic silk would be much cheaper—well, we have no doubt about the outcome.

"The hall would be open for six months in the year, although there would perhaps be Spring and Fall openings to which designers and dressmakers would come flocking from all over this country and from Europe as well to get ideas and inspirations from this symposium of beautiful adornments. Every branch of the art of dress would be represented, shoemaking, jeweling, flower making, embroideries—all the minor branches as well as the creating of beautiful materials and artistic models. Everything American would be confessedly so, and would not suffer in contrast with the imported article, I can assure you.

"But such a project is, of course, indefinite and far away. What our association is striving to do at present is to establish the coöperation between dressmaker and manufacturer. That is why Paris is so successful—all work together. They need no such symposium hall as that of which I have been telling you; they stand united. I believe when the big manufacturers drop their fear of using the domestic label and begin to support the movement of American fashions for American women they will find our society leaders and our artists meeting them half way. There will be some inducement to be a designer when one's designs are not labeled Paquin or Poiret."

The National Association, of which Robert Pluym of Washington, D. C., is now President, recently adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The richer class of the American public have the idea that imported merchandise cannot be surpassed; and

"Whereas, After a thorough investigation by the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers Association, it was found that the merchandise from foreign countries is not as far artistically advanced as that from America; and

"Whereas, The demand of the American public for imported merchandise is due to the American manufacturers and merchants dealing with women's wearing apparel as well as the merchants dealing with woolens, silks, trimmings, etc., declaring their better class of merchandise to be imported; and

"Whereas, The above mentioned movement has hurt the business of the American merchant and manufacturer, wherefore be it

"Resolved, That the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers Association heartily indorses the movement of the Society of American Fashions for American Women."

Congratulations were extended by the executive board of the association to THE NEW YORK TIMES for its support of the American fashion movement.

Martin Mager, who retired as County Clerk of Queens on Jan. 1, was reported to have obtained $50,000 from the fees of the office in 1912. It was estimated that 35,189 papers were filed at an average fee of $2 for each paper. It cost him between $20,000 and $30,000 to run the office for the year.

Leonard Ruoff, the new County Clerk, took office under the new salary law, and he will receive $8,000 a year. The salary roll of the office under this system will be more than $80,000.

MRS. HYMAN WINS DIVORCE.

Goff Reversed by Appellate Division —Rer Lawyer Vindicated.

The Appellate Division handed down a decision yesterday reversing Supreme Court Justice Goff, who refused a divorce to Mrs. Lena Hyman from Louis Hyman. By unanimous opinion the Court vindicated Mrs. Hyman's attorney, Meyer Glickstein, from reflections on his conduct made by Justice Goff.

In reversing Justice Goff the Appellate Division not only upset his verdict, but ordered that a decree of divorce be granted to Mrs. Hyman without taking further testimony.

FIFTH AVE. TRAFFIC CRUSH.

Isles of Safety and Cab Stands Suggested to Relieve Congestion.

There was a meeting at City Hall yesterday in Borough President McAneny's office of the committee appointed by him to study the Fifth Avenue traffic problem. Deputy Commissioner Lynch represented the Street Cleaning Department, and Inspector Titus the Police Department. Others who gave their views were Robert Grier Cooke, President of the Fifth Avenue Association; R. W. Mead, President of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company; T. R. Ball of Best & Co., and G. Whitman of Lawton & Co.

The proposal to establish cab stands in the side streets east and west of Fifth Avenue, to do away with roaming hansom and cab drivers who solicit business up and down the thoroughfare, was discussed. Inspector Titus suggested that traffic congestion would be greatly relieved if an ordinance were passed prohibiting cabmen from picking up fares in the avenue between 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. As for the establishment of permanent stands in the side streets, he thought that objection would be made by the merchants in front of whose places the vehicles would stand.

President McAneny thought that conditions at Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets would be greatly relieved by the establishment of isles of safety there. It was finally decided that the committee investigate and report on three matters: the most available location for cab stands, the framing of an ordinance restricting heavy vehicles from using the avenue between 2 and 6 P. M., and the establishing of isles of safety.

An Account of the Norwegian Antarctic Expedition in the "Fram," 1910-1912

The World's Last Unknown Place

Translated from the Norwegian by A. G. Chater. With 91 Illustrations and 18 Maps and Charts.

In two octavo volumes, 900 pages, handsomely bound in decorated cloth, gilt top. Price, $10.00 net; postage extra.

"Captain Amundsen's own story of his discovery of the South Pole is in every way worthy of his remarkable achievement. The narrative contains scarcely a dull page from first to last," says The London Times. The dauntless courage, unflinching perseverance, and wonderful foresight that enabled the Scandinavian explorer and his gallant companions to plant the flag of Norway at the southernmost extremity of the earth is mirrored in Captain Amundsen's modest record.

Polar literature has been enriched by this account of the adventure of this band of hardy explorers who braved the dangers of the Antarctic, and on December 14, 1911, reached their goal.

Dr. Nansen in an introduction pays high tribute to Captain Amundsen and his achievement

"RECOGNIZING" CHINA.

The one thing about the recognition of the "Republic" of China which our Government, or any other, is bound to keep in mind, is that it cannot be recalled. While the Government is de facto, we can maintain with it all the relations that are of practical importance, and certainly can show toward it as much friendliness as its conduct justifies, but we retain an attitude of greater freedom than we could maintain if full diplomatic intercourse were established. This freedom it would seem to be the duty of our Government to reserve until it is convinced that the Government of China is able to perform the duties and exercise the effective authority which the Chinese people require.

Senator BACON of Georgia is an intelligent and careful publicist, and we shall await with interest the arguments that he may submit in favor of the immediate recognition of the Chinese Republic. In the light of such knowledge as we have the proposed action appears somewhat premature. It is easy to understand and to share the sentiment to which the proposition strongly appeals. The American people, pioneers in the movement toward popular representative rule, naturally feel the keenest sympathy with any other people that undertakes, however haltingly, to enter on the same path. But in the matter of recognition our Government is bound to reflect that a Government called a republic is not necessarily one, and that certain powers must be possessed and certain obligations must be met by any Government, however pleasing the name by which it is called.

Among these are the power and the obligation to preserve order, to protect the person and property of foreigners, and generally to carry out the provisions of treaties. It would be presumptuous, we think, at the present time, to infer that the Government of China fulfills these conditions. Its situation is obscure, and accurate information regarding it is hard to obtain. But practically, so far as can be inferred from the facts accessible, China has at present rather a would-be Government than an actual and stable one. Whether it can really govern depends, apparently, upon how much money it can borrow, and its loans, in turn, depend very directly on what security it can give that the money will be used honestly and wisely. As to the claim that it "represents" the Chinese people, there are obvious drawbacks to that. There has been nothing that Americans would call an election in China, and none would be possible for a good while. The President and the so-called National Assembly are the outcome of combinations, intrigues, and bargains among the self-appointed leaders of the late rebellion, and these leaders were mostly from the army. How far the Government is from being either one of law, or one guided by representatives of the people, was shown, when, a few weeks since, YUAN SHI-K'AI had three Generals shot, and was violently called to account by the Assembly and then enthusiastically approved. We think it would be the part of prudence for the United States to persevere for some time yet in the policy it has so far pursued.

THE CIVIC CENTRE PLANS.

It is evident that Borough President MCANENY has not abandoned his plan of a civic centre northeast of the City Hall Park. His suggestion that the Public Service Commission should postpone for a little while its regrading work in connection with the subway loop north of the Municipal Building indicates that he is firm in his intention to purchase for the city the plot of land bounded by Park and Centre Streets and Mulberry Bend Park. Of course, in that case, the accumulation of claims against the city for damages to that property is needless. Probably the plan will be carried out before the end of this month. North of the Municipal Building is an excellent site for the new Federal Courts, and surely, the city having acquired title to the land, some arrangement might be made by which a building plot could be transferred to the United States at a low price, in return for the release to the city of the lower end of City Hall Park. With a site chosen for the proposed new State building in the same neighborhood, the civic centre would be assured.

Doubtless many obstacles will be encountered in carrying out this admirable plan. There has been too great delay in acquiring titles to the land already, and the selection of the Court House site has increased real estate values all around it. But Mr. MCANENY, it is believed, has his plans completed, and doubtless it will be found, when they are published, that he has acted with regard to the best interest of the city from the beginning.

DEFYING PUBLIC OPINION.

Since their conviction, two of the dynamiters—REDDIN and MORIN—have been re-elected to their former offices as representatives of their unions. Such action places those unions in the attitude of deliberate preference of convicts as their representatives before the same public which is asked to sympathize with the oppression of labor by capital.

The relations between labor and capital must be settled either by co-operation and agreement under the protection of the law, or by meeting men like REDDIN and MORIN with the weapons of the law. The trades unions have made unsuspected progress in weakening the protection the law affords against labor methods now known in their true character. In the present Congress the House Committee was organized in the interest of labor, under a trades unionist Chairman, and measures were approved preventing procedure by law such as was necessary in the dynamite and boycott cases. The trades unionist proposal for the amendment of the anti-trust law even proposes to except labor from the application of the law.

There is still time for labor to reform itself, and to reorganize its representative bodies, but the time is shortening. Action like the re-election of convicted dynamiters to office transcends contempt of court. It is contempt of American institutions and opinion, and in some aspects approximates treason.

THE BETTER WAY.

In fleeing from "the soft solicitation of the subpoena," Mr. WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER has invoked "the loud fish-horn of public clamor." It was a mistake, as he admits by his present decision to receive the process server affably and acknowledge service.

It is human to sympathize with the public dread of the subpoena. From its very etymology the word has an unpleasant connotation. You must appear in court or in the committee room at the time specified, under pain of having annoying things done to you. Nobody enjoys being served with a subpoena—quite the contrary. The fear is always present that highly inconvenient questions may be asked, questions that cannot be answered truthfully without humiliation or discredit, and cannot be answered the other way without invoking the pains and penalties of perjury or the dreadful pricks of a reproving conscience. The more active a man has been in his business or his profession, the less likely he is to look forward with pleasure to his hour in the witness chair. Mr. WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER has been tremendously active in the very biggest affairs. He has been engaged in many transactions about which he would prefer not to be questioned. Very likely, too, he regarded his private business as none of the public's business, and particularly as none of the Pujo Committee's business.

That was another mistake. In these days publicity is the universal demand, and we cannot grant individual exemptions. If Mr. ROCKEFELLER had been a well man, it would undoubtedly have been his duty to face the music earlier. It might not have been so very dreadful. There is the example of his more celebrated brother, who left the witness chair with no particular reproach accruing from his testimony save that of a poor memory, for which he repeatedly and humbly apologized. But Mr. WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER is not a well man. It is understood that his condition of health is such that he could not appear before the Pujo Committee and answer its inquiries. The wiser way, therefore, will be for him to accept service of the committee's subpoena, as he has agreed to accept it, and then his physician's certificate will spare him the ordeal of attending upon the committee. In that way he will escape public censure of his conduct, and will give a better impression of his attitude toward Congress and its august powers. High finance has been a subject not only of a good deal of curiosity, but of many misrepresentations. The fact or the appearance of fleeing from a subpoena has encouraged misrepresentation.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONERS.

Gov. SULZER, in making his appointments to the Civil Service Commission of the State, renews his oft-repeated avowal of fidelity to the principle of the merit system, and states, in effect, that each of his appointees is a civil service reformer. We do not question the sincerity of the Governor's avowal or his belief in the accuracy of his statement. It is, however, only candid to point out that the new Commissioners have a very difficult and a somewhat delicate task before them which will require much intelligence, patience, firmness, and energy. They have not had, so far as we are able to learn, experience of a kind and extent that would greatly aid them, and this fact will render their task still harder.

The worst thing they will have to contend with is the greedy desire of all politicians by profession, whether in or out of office, to restrict as much as possible the scope of honest and thorough competition. This was the force that wrecked Gov. DIX's Commission and made their record about as bad as it could be. The only path of safety lies in applying honestly the rule of the Constitution, which is very simple, namely, that fitness shall be listed by competition where practicable. Fairly construed, this means that competition must be applied unless it can clearly be shown that it is not feasible.

To adhere to this policy will tax the strength and the good faith not only of the Commission but of the Governor. The latter would have been safer if the former were not, in every case, politicians in their practice and associations.

SECRETARY MACVEAGH'S REFORM.

The Government's receipts and expenditures ought to balance approximately, and if the Government receives and pays by bank checks the money market would be affected only to the extent of the surplus or the deficit on Treasury operations. To have accomplished this is no small thing, but it is far from measuring the extent of the accomplishment by Secretary MACVEAGH's order. Even before the order it was true that in total the Treasury's operations did not greatly disturb the money market, but at certain points at certain times it was very unsettling. That was because it necessitated the payment of bank checks in currency for reasons and on a scale which had nothing to do with trade. The intent of the order is to prevent this and the point ought to be safeguarded, and presumably it will be.

The same point is covered by the form of check adopted by many institutions, making them "payable through the Clearing House," leaving any depositor who wishes currency to obtain it in the ordinary banking procedure, on application to his own bank of deposit. This is a true function of banking, and ought to be confined to banks. It is not a function of Government to regulate credits, or to furnish currency, or exchange, and the new Government checks ought to be confined to their proper use of paying the bills of the Government at par. To make the Government checks payable over the counter of any of several hundred depositaries is to make it sure that there will be traffic in them. They are liable to be accumulated where exchange is low and sent to places where exchange is high, and there may be accumulations in totals sufficient to embarrass depositaries which may be summoned to supply currency on demand. The Bank of England itself has been embarrassed in this manner, and there are piquant tales of all sorts of devices of delay being used while the Bank shopped around for relief.

One conspicuous case is related to one of the suspension of cash payments in this city. It will be recalled that one of our recurrent currency panics was managed by the late Mr. F. D. TAPPEN, to whom was presented a tankard formerly owned by Sir JOHN HOUBLON, who brought the Bank of England through a similar crisis. The goldsmiths of HOUBLON's time were charged with gathering notes for the express purpose of breaking the bank, the opportunity arising through recoinage of clipped coins. The mint was so slow that there was an opportunity to present more notes than could be paid in coin, and the Directors therefore refused coin except to their regular customers. The goldsmiths were foiled only by the Government's coming to the rescue by suspending protest of the Bank's notes. The new Treasury checks will be "deposit currency," and they ought to be convertible into currency by any banking depositor in regular banking course. But there ought to be no more traffic in these checks than in any others, or than in gold certificates. They ought to be payable at par in banking funds, and ought not to be a new sort of Government note issue. It is sure that the Secretary can have no such intention, and it cannot be doubted that he will guard the point.

THE CLOAK INDUSTRY'S EXAMPLE.

One of the worst strikes with which this city has been afflicted was terminated two years ago by an agreement between the cloakmakers and their employers and the appointment of a permanent Board of Arbitration. That agreement has been kept. It is being kept in the stress of the present strike, which is spreading among all the men in the garment workers' trades, and is impending in the ten affiliated unions of women in the "needle industries." Under the Boards of Arbitration and Sanitary Control the cloakmakers, once the most unstable of all in these vast groups of labor, are alone at peace. The terms of their "protocol" were as follows:

> Fair wages, mutually agreed upon under the plan of collective bargaining.
>
> As perfect sanitary conditions as are humanly possible in establishments employing a large number of operatives.
>
> The installation of electric power instead of the old system of foot power, at the expense of the manufacturer.
>
> The elimination of the former method of sweatshop sub-contracting, by which the manufacturer, even if defeated in a strike and forced to concede living wages and hours, could recoup himself by surreptitiously letting out a large part of his work to sweatshops at a starvation price.
>
> The elimination of work taken out to the homes of employés.
>
> Pay for holidays for week-workers and additional pay for overtime.
>
> A "preferential shop," in contradistinction to the "open shop" or the "closed shop," in which all union conditions shall prevail and where union workers are to be given the preference, but in which the manufacturer is not to be deprived of skilled labor if it cannot be found in the union ranks.
>
> No strike until the best efforts of a Grievance Committee and a permanent Board of Arbitration, made up of representatives of the manufacturers, the union, and the public, shall have failed to settle the question in controversy.
>
> Sanitary conditions inaugurated and perpetuated by a Joint Board of Sanitary Control.

What was done in the case of the cloakmakers can be done, it is fair to assume, and with proper modifications, in the cases of the other branches of the garment industries. The example is notable and suggestive.

MYLIUS AND JAMES.

The case of EDWARD MYLIUS, refused admittance as an immigrant because he has served a prison term in England, and is therefore considered undesirable, will not be improved by the appearance here of EDWARD HOLTON JAMES, nephew of HENRY and WILLIAM, who is the editor of the Socialist journal, The Liberator, published in Paris and circulated in Great Britain by MYLIUS. JAMES says he wrote the libelous article declaring that King GEORGE was married to a commoner before he was Prince of WALES, and therefore JAMES telegraphs to the State Department that he is coming here to clear MYLIUS. But two wrongs cannot make a right. MYLIUS is not held at Ellis Island just because he wrote a libelous article, but because he has been in prison, and because he is a discontented agitator, presumably. If the libel is to be considered, the circulator of it is as bad as the author. JAMES's assertion that he and not MYLIUS wrote the libel will not help MYLIUS.

As a matter of fact, unless the case against MYLIUS is stronger than it appears, he ought to be allowed to land. One more wrathful Socialist, with a grudge against modern civilization, will not count. MYLIUS may profit by his sad experience in England and employ his wits to better purpose here. Anyhow, if JAMES insists on coming over, he cannot be kept out of the country, as he is of American birth, and then we shall have two new disturbers of harmony instead of one. Let the State Department be warned in time. Tell JAMES by cable to stay where he is, and admit MYLIUS. He may libel the King again, to be sure, but that will not hurt him, while the refusal to admit MYLIUS has surely not helped him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Our Response Should Be Immediate.

An appeal to New York that deserves consideration is made in another column by a member of the Civic Section of the Women's Club of New Rochelle. There, as in the other Westchester towns along the Sound, the mosquito problem has received much attention of late, especially from the women who are trying to improve living conditions, hygienic and aesthetic. They have studied the books, listened to lectures, and called in experts to look over the ground, tell them what should be done, and make estimates on the cost of doing it. They have even interested the city officials in the matter, and there is money in sight for the performance of the needed drainage work.

The experts have informed them, however, that it would be unwise, because almost useless, to begin operations while the marshes of Pelham Bay Park remain as they are. Mosquitos are not vigorous fliers, but when assisted by strong winds they can traverse long distances. Those that breed in salt marshes are particularly given to the making of extensive journeys. Now, the prevailing Summer winds in this region are from the south, and the result is that it would be hardly worth while for New Rochelle, Larchmont, and Rye to drain their marshes while those in the Bronx continue to raise the insects by the millions for distribution to the north of their birthplace. Certainly New York has no moral right to maintain what is in effect a serious nuisance, simply because its own sufferings in health and comfort from this source are slight. As our correspondent says, these suburban towns are practically extensions of the metropolis. Their services to it are great, and they have a right to receive recognition and consideration as friendly and useful neighbors.

Marsh drainage is not expensive work, and it brings other and important rewards besides the extermination of mosquitos. In this instance, not only would it create hundreds of acres of valuable land which the city itself would own, but it would increase the value and therefore the taxes of all the real estate for miles around the park. The time will come, if it has not already arrived, when the maintenance of mosquito hatcheries will be regarded as nothing less than criminal. At any rate, it is already the very height of stupidity, for money expended in their abolition brings in enormous profits.

Newspaper Medicine Is Attacked.

Papers that have not been fortunate or enterprising enough to be the first to print this or that important piece of news not infrequently show an inclination, half amusing and half grieving, to find reasons why those particular pieces of news either were not so very wonderful or should not have been published at all. Our good neighbor The Post illustrated this tendency yesterday by making two recent articles in THE TIMES—one on colloidal copper as a possible cure for cancer and the other describing Dr. CARREL's discovery of a means for hastening the processes of somatic repair—the text of a solemn denunciation of what with condemnatory quotation marks it called "newspaper medicine."

Now it is a fact that "newspaper medicine," like "newspaper science" in general, does often leave much to be desired with respect to accuracy of statement and fullness of understanding. For stupidities and sensationalism, when dealing with matters of this class, there is, of course, neither pardon nor excuse, but the truly just and intelligent critic of the papers will limit his reprehension to the errors committed, while he will give proper commendation to articles on such subjects that correctly announce real achievements and make desirable additions to the stock of common knowledge.

This is a late day, and too late, for efforts to keep medicine a "mystery," and the pretense that it or its language is incomprehensible to any except the initiate has become farcical. Physicians and surgeons themselves recognize the change, some of them reluctantly, but the younger men with more or less of gladness. The newspapers, in their varying degrees of competency, are and must be the judges of what they will print, and when, and THE TIMES, though far from claiming infallibility of judgment or knowledge, will continue without compunction to inform its readers as promptly as it can of every step forward in the art of healing and the greater art of prevention that comes to its eagerly attentive notice.

Especially will it tell, whenever it can, what such men as Dr. LEO LOEB and the staff of the Rockefeller Institute are doing. To defend them and their like from the charge of lacking caution in announcing their discoveries would be as absurd as needless, so we will not attempt it. The occasion suggests, however, a word to the anti-vivisectionists—who need words so much more than do the wise. They should notice that animal experimentation was the basis of, and alone made possible, the work done and the results achieved with both colloidal copper and the "activating" solutions.

Lacks One Merit—Novelty.

In sympathy, and with no more than the inevitable feeling of momentary superiority which the revelation of another's mistake involves, we feel called upon to notify that much respected magazine, The Atlantic Monthly, that somebody, with or without intention, has beguiled its talented editor into printing this month as new, in the sense of hitherto unpublished, something that has been in fairly wide circulation for many a year.

The something is a letter written by ALFRED DE MUSSET in 1839 to Mme. GARCIA and describing with all the poet's vivacity and insight an evening spent by him with RACHEL and her dreadful family.

The letter is full of interest for every student of literary and artistic Paris of the famous 30's, but, alas! it is not the "find" The Atlantic thinks it. How often it has been printed in the original we do not pretend to know, but certainly it was printed once, for it appears in "Vol. VIII., Oeuvres Posthumes" of the Lemerre edition of ALFRED DE MUSSET's collected writings, and the book bears the date 1877.

Oh, well, such things will happen, even in the best regulated of editorial sanctums, and no harm has been done. The letter was well worth reprinting in translation for the light that it throws on both the great actress and the near-great poet.

The latter incidentally refers in it to absinthe as "unhealthy and detestable." If only he had acted on his knowledge in the too few years that were to come!

DRAIN PELHAM BAY MARSHES.

If New York Does That Westchester Will Be Grateful.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

New York City, except in the Bronx, does not suffer much from mosquitos, but the insects find ideal breeding ground in its 400 acres of salt marshes around Pelham Bay, and then fly in uncountable hordes to the shore towns of Westchester, further along the Sound. It has therefore occurred to the women interested in exterminating this pest in New Rochelle that a newspaper as public spirited and influential as THE TIMES might be willing and able to interest New York's Mayor, Board of Estimate, and citizens generally in the work of draining the Pelham marshes as soon as may be and thus greatly assist in ridding Pelham, New Rochelle, Larchmont, Mamaroneck, and Rye of this unmitigated nuisance of mosquitos.

All of these towns, of course, have salt marshes of their own which must be looked after, but the salt marsh mosquito flies far, and the towns mentioned lie within a radius which can be reached by the mosquitos hatched in New York City marshes. Nothing done in their districts will be effective without the co-operation of New York City and of each other.

Norwalk, Darien, Fairfield, Greenwich, Stamford, and other Connecticut shore towns neighboring have already availed themselves of the very simple, effective, and comparatively inexpensive process by which the salt water mosquito or any other mosquito can be exterminated, or rather prevented from ever existing, and the Westchester towns already mentioned intend to follow this excellent example just as soon as they can be assured that their work in this direction will not be rendered entirely ineffective by New York City's hitherto selfish inactivity as to draining the Pelham Bay marshes. In fact, the requisite appropriations have already been made in these towns, and work will be commenced in their marsh lands immediately if the Board of Estimate of New York City responds favorably and grants the appropriation asked for the work in the Bronx.

Drainage is the only effective and permanent means to employ, as oil must be applied repeatedly during the Summer, and at best is but a makeshift on account of the impossibility of using it thoroughly enough to reach every breeding place. Experts who have looked over the ground in New Rochelle have guaranteed to do the work there for $1,500, or $15 per acre—to be paid only if completed satisfactorily. This sum is so small, compared with the benefits to be conferred, that there can be nothing but amazement that the inhabitants of this otherwise delightful suburb have endured their mosquito misery so long.

If New York City will do her small part this whole region will be infinitely increased in value as a place of residence, and hundreds of acres of waste land will be made available to use. Physical comfort is not the only point, either, as it is an accepted truth that the mosquito menaces not only sleep and peace of mind but health as well. It would seem as if a crusade against the mosquito must find response in every human being. Will not THE TIMES, which goes every day to so many homes in Greater New York, exert its immense power to arouse public sentiment in behalf of these neighboring towns and the many thousands who live in them, to be sure, but to all intents and purposes are citizens of New York and entitled to its consideration? B. A. M.,
Member of Civic Section of the Woman's Club of New Rochelle.

Grateful for Pensions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Anent the generosity of corporations to employes, will you please listen to what one of 40 years of age has to say?

On Jan. 1, 1913, the great pension scheme of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company became operative. Disability, insurance, and pensions are fully considered. It had been the dream of my life to have enough saved in my old age so that the interest from the principal would give me about $30 or $40 a month. Of course, this I found next to impossible on a small salary. As the years rolled on and my family increased rapidly in numbers, naturally my dream vanished.

A short while ago President Vail notified all his employes, nearly 200,000, of the great pension scheme, unfolding before my eyes what I never expected to see, viz., a pension to all employes at the age of 60 to continue until death. To President Vail I am forever grateful. No words of mine can ever express my gratitude. His reward will certainly come in the next world. A GRATEFUL EMPLOYE.

WINS AGAINST OYSTER BAY.

Town Claimed a Lot of Land Held by E. G. Stehle at Bayville.

Emile J. Stehle, a silk manufacturer of Manhattan, who owns valuable property at Bayville, L. I., won a signal victory yesterday when Supreme Court Justice William J. Kelly, sitting in the Nassau County Supreme Court at Mineola, took from the jury's consideration the Town of Oyster Bay's case in ejectment proceedings against Stehle, and decided for the defendant upon points of law.

Stehle owns and has occupied for some years without adverse claim a large stretch of shore front at Bayville. The town officials decided that it held title to the land fronting on Long Island Sound at Bayville, and notified Stehle that he must relinquish his claim. His reply was not favorable, and the town commenced ejectment proceedings. Surrogate John J. Graham of Nassau County, and Henry Urquhart were retained by the town, and Stehle engaged Rowland Miles of Northport, to defend his title. Lawyer Urquhart made a trip to England to get evidence from old records of Crown grants.

Supervisor James S. Cocks of Oyster Bay Town, said the case would be appealed.

TO SAVE REVERE LANDMARK.

Boston Church Steeple to be Restored by Hero's Descendants.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—Descendants of Paul Revere have contributed a fund to rebuild the Old North Church steeple, where were hung the two signal lanterns which sent Revere to the saddle for his famous midnight ride in 1775.

The walls of the steeple are crumbling as a result of attacks of storms in the course of the past century. Repair work will be started immediately.

"BRUTAL" ORTHODONTISTS.

Mutilate Patients Under the Guise of Beauty Dentists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read your editorial note on the reported advance in dentistry of children with malformed teeth. Orthodontia, or "tooth-straightening," is a brutal commercialism. Specialists practicing it could not exist without the rebates to their agents, without begging the professions to supply them with victims, and without offering to restore beauty in the guise of a specialty of dentistry. Though the mutilating of the young for money is done with the consent of the affectionate mothers, the wrong and inhuman intrusion upon the child's health calls for serious consideration.

The straightener of children's teeth deals with human teeth as the cattle-fancier deals with the ears and tails of most of our domestic animals, to satisfy foolish vanity, for unsound, cruel, cosmetic reasons—and for the price!

The speculative methods are employed at an age when teeth most readily yield to causes of decay. The formidable orthodontic muzzles cripple mastication, impair digestion, and often inflame the tender gums. He coolly and deliberately invades the child's domain with vexation, jars upon its feelings, forces tears to its eyes, and only the poor child feels "where the shoe pinches."

On the other hand, it is an admitted fact that all wires, bands, screws, nuts, and bolts—whether these are made of German silver or gold—while in the mouth, in presence of saliva and body-heat, disintegrate, produce an electric current, and the poisonous salts thus formed are assimilated by the child with woeful results.

These truths could hardly be told to the patients! An orthodontist of National reputation has this to say: "While the orthodontic work went along very nicely * * * the boy had been affected with something bordering epilepsy, and on the removal of the appliance the patient commenced to recover." Another specialist at one time wrote: "Most deplorable in the statistics of orthodontia practice is the discouraging percentage of failure."

Would that the orthodontists could destroy the ugly mouth-breathing which produces malposition of teeth. Until then the regulation of crooked teeth will never cure obstructed nasal breathing and acquired habits of mouth-breathing, nor restore normal breathing.

"Sulzerian Informality."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would suggest "Sulzerian informality" instead of "Jeffersonian simplicity" in describing Gov. Sulzer's plain and unassuming manners. It is worth being original.
New York, Jan. 1, 1913. R. ABRAHAMS.

TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY TIMES.

Fire Commissioner Johnson declares that there exists in this city to-day what he calls an "Arson Trust," whose operations are the cause of fully one-fourth of all our fires. In making his revelations the Commissioner suggests certain remedial laws.

Frederick Palmer, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, who has been from the first an eye-witness of the battles between the two armies in the Balkan war, is now writing of some of the deadly results of this war. His graphic pictures form a series of valuable and illuminating documents in history, and furnish what may be called the human side of the conflict. One of these articles appears in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

THE SUNDAY TIMES is able to give the details to-morrow of a new discovery by Dr. Alexis Carrel—one which may take rank as his greatest. This discovery, the result of experimental work begun five years ago, is nothing more nor less than the perfection of a method to accelerate the growth of tissue by which wounds, broken bones, and the loss of tissue through disease may be healed and restored in from one to four days. In the article Dr. Carrel describes this new method.

The Sussex skull, eminent scientists say, reveals not a new species of man but an entirely different genus of man. Since the discovery, some decades ago, of the so-called Neanderthal skull in Europe, and more recently of the fossil human remains in Nebraska, anthropologists have been on the lookout for additional finds from which they might trace the steps in man's evolution. In Sussex, England, Charles Dawson, an amateur scientist, aided by Dr. Smith Woodward, recently discovered the most ancient of man's remains. Sir E. Ray Lankester, one of England's savants, discusses it in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES.

Mayor Gaynor has written one of his famous letters, giving his adverse estimate of the two National heroes, Washington and Lincoln. A brief and garbled version of this letter appeared in print some days ago. The Mayor wrote his views at length in his inimitable style, furnishing a splendid article to readers of THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Of details of the expedition that resulted in the discovery of the South Pole, the world has had little. Roald Amundsen has at last written a complete account of the experiences of his companions and himself in their great quest. It is from the advance sheets of this notable book that THE SUNDAY TIMES is able to give to its readers to-morrow what may be described as the first story portraying the intimate side of the expedition that placed Norway's flag at the earth's southernmost point.

Few are aware that trousers, as we know them, are only a hundred years old. The fact is made the subject of an article in to-morrow's SUNDAY TIMES, in which are given some of the strange antecedents of the modern trousers, together with developments they have undergone since Bonaparte's soldiers introduced them just a hundred years ago.

These are a few of the features to be found in the Sunday Magazine Section of THE TIMES to-morrow.

BREAK.

Resolves of New Year's Day,
And pave the streets of Hades
In the same old-fashioned way.

And the passing years roll on,
And we keep resolving still;
But, alas, for the weakness of spiders' threads
And human nature's will! C. M.

WASHING AWAY SNOW.

Mr. Miller's Objections Met in New Methods Proposed.

City of New York, President of the Borough of the Bronx, Third Avenue and 177th Street, Office of the President.
Jan. 3, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perhaps my letter which appeared in THE TIMES of Jan. 3 did not make it clear that the rubbish shown in the photographs I sent you did not come with snow which lay on the streets a long time. On the contrary, it came with what was supposed to be "clean" snow, which was gathered from the streets within twenty-four hours after it fell. During stormy or bad weather, when the ash carts do not go around to collect garbage or ashes, the householder is forced to accumulate such material. As soon as a fall of snow comes the householder slips out into the street, quickly throws the garbage and ashes into the snow, covers them over with snow, and slips back into his house or store. In a few hours the snow shovelers come along and shovel the whole mess into the snow carts, with the result shown in the photographs.

You can understand readily from this that permission to throw such snow into the sewers would be likely to result in great injury to the sewers and to householders along the line.
CYRUS C. MILLER,
President of the Borough of the Bronx.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Commissioner of Street Cleaning Edwards's letter to THE TIMES on the use of the sewers for snow removal, he says that even before the suggestion of the Mayor's Committee on Pavements his department had recognized the value of the use of manholes in snow removal and he had for years endeavored to arrange with the Bureau of Sewers of the three boroughs for such use, but invariably met with denial by those in charge.

We are anxious to break this deadlock which we believe is standing in the way of inestimable benefit to the community through the prompt and economical removal of snow.

As Chairman of the sub-committee which had the matter in charge, I called last Winter on the proper official of the Bureau of Sewers and found him, as Mr. Edwards says, strongly opposed to the use of the sewers for this purpose. He said it was entirely impracticable to do so, because when snow was dumped from the carts it often contained sticks, cans, and all sorts of rubbish which would obstruct the sewers; but when I explained our plan and showed him that under it nothing of the sort could happen, because there would be no dumping, he seemed inclined to take a different view of the matter.

When snow is dumped from carts it is impossible to know what may be mixed with it; but we proposed to abolish the use of carts altogether and to shovel it directly into the sewers, under the eye of the foreman in charge, using powerful water jets placed near the top of the manholes to break it up and carry it off. Almost every block contains one or more manholes placed in the centre of the street. If the snow, as soon as it falls, were pushed to the centre of the street by snow plows, most of it could be easily shoveled directly down the manholes and the rest could quickly be brought to them in wheelbarrows. In this way the snow could be got rid of altogether in less time than is required to stack it under present methods.

The whole city is now provided with a network of sewers which could be used as chutes or flumes for the carrying off of the snow by simply placing a water jet of sufficient size below the cover of each manhole; but without such jets the plan is impracticable except in sewers where there is a great flow of water.

The Department of Street Cleaning has for some years used sewers of the kind last mentioned, that is to say: the tidal sewers along the marginal streets, as dumping places for snow, and a certain economy has been effected by so doing; but it will be seen that this use does not at all correspond with the plan proposed by us, which has for its basis the use of water jets and the abolition of carts. This method has never been attempted, so far as we know, except in the experiments which we made last Winter.

The chief cost and the greatest delay in snow removal lies in the slow and painful carting of it for long distances, often over almost impassable streets, to the dumps. All this would be saved under our plan, and by it we believe the whole city could be cleared of snow after a fall in less time and at less cost than is now required to clean a small part of it. ERNEST FLAGG,
Chairman of Sub-Committee on Snow Removal and Gutter Flushing of the Mayor's Committee on Pavements.
New York, Jan. 2, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A plan of snow elimination that I proposed several years ago without apparent consequence was to utilize a blast flame contrivance similar to what we see drawn about on wheels for softening the asphalt pavements. This could be constructed larger and drawn by horses, and it could be employed in the same way as a mowing machine is driven through a hayfield, the swath beginning along the gutter-line and working outward to the middle of the roadway. The time to use it would be immediately after a snowfall, while the snow lies flat and clear, and then the clean snow, converted into water, would drain off naturally as rainwater does.

Objection may be offered that the water would freeze, but I think that may be regarded as negligible, as we seldom have such low temperature accompanying snowstorms as would cause such rapid freezing. Why not devise one machine of that sort and experiment with it?

Something of the kind was tried years ago and abandoned because it was a cumbrous affair designed to generate steam to be played upon the snow, but I think the obvious defects of that would not appear in the simple blast flame apparatus. J. W. EDMONDS.
New York, Jan. 2, 1913.

FOUND THROUGH THE TIMES.

Lawyer Writes His Approval of Advertising for Lost Articles.

Robert M. Richter, a lawyer of 2 Wall Street, lost a jeweled pin on Tuesday afternoon, between the Vanderbilt Hotel and the Twenty-third Street Subway entrance. He advertised its loss in THE TIMES, and in a letter yesterday Mr. Richter expressed satisfaction that his advertisement had been noted by a young woman who telephoned to him offering to return the pin upon its identification. In his letter to THE TIMES Mr. Richter said:

"I beg to compliment you upon the fact that you have insistently brought forward before the public eye the advisability of advertising for lost articles in your columns, so that they may be recovered. Although the pin is not of much value, nevertheless, I was very anxious to have it returned, and I am very glad I advertised in your columns."

Mr. Richter wrote that he had advertised the loss of the pin in several papers and that it was in THE TIMES that the finder saw his notice.

BERMUDA TAKES UP NEW-FANGLEDDANCES

Tango and Turkey Trot Are Now in Vogue—Boxing Day a Festive Occasion.

REAL WINTER SEASON ON

New Tennis Courts Opened at the Hamilton—New York Arrivals at the Princess and Other Hotels.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Dec. 30.—With the passing of the holiday period—Christmas, Boxing Day, and New Year's—the real winter season for Bermuda may be considered as "on." Though there was a large crowd of tourists here for Christmas week, yet there were comparatively few who will go to make up the Winter colony, the average American preferring to spend the Yuletide at his own fireside. The R. M. S. P. Arcadian makes her first trip from New York for Bermuda on Jan. 4, a month earlier than last year, and the advanced heavy bookings for this boat indicate a correspondingly long season for this Winter.

On Monday last a large dinner was given at the Hamilton, preceding the military band concert on the Terrace, by Lieuts. Hamilton of the Queen's and John Rhodes, R. E. The table decorations were pink shell roses. Covers were laid for thirty, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. William C. Denny of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bradlee of Boston; Miss Bullock, daughter of the Governor, Sir George Mackworth Bullock; Miss Margaret Ingham, Miss Gladys Trott, Miss Hastings, Miss Gosling, Miss Fawcett, Mrs. Palmer, Col. C. M. Coles, Dr. and Mrs. MacGiffen, Major and Mrs. Bottomley, Major and Mrs. Crofts, Capt. and Mrs. Corbett, Capt. and Mrs. Roberts, Lieut. and Mrs. Roberts, and Lieuts. Henriques, Kemp-Welch, and Boyd and Edmund Gosling.

The Misses Margaret and Ruth Culver, daughters of Mrs. Harry Culver of St. Louis, were the guests of honor at an afternoon tea on Thursday last, given at the Belmont. This was also the occasion of the beginning of the stepladder tennis tournament which is to run for six weeks on the Belmont courts.

There was a large crowd at the dance at the Princess on the evening of Boxing Day. Several small dinners were given previous to the dance, Dr. D. C. Trott of Bermuda giving one of seven covers, and E. P. Guy of Montreal also one of seven covers. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch of New York entertained Mr. and Mrs. William C. Denny of Washington on this evening, and Mr. and Mrs. Alden S. Crane of New York entertained the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Addison and Miss Julia Addison of Stamford, Conn.

In spite of the rather violent opposition on the part of many Bermudians to "ragging," the tango, turkey trot, and other dances of that sort, they are becoming more and more common at the dances here. At the Hamilton the other night some entirely new, (for Bermuda,) and thoroughly up to date steps were performed by Harry Von Tilzer, the song composer, who is again in Bermuda with Mrs. Von Tilzer for a brief visit.

The two new concrete tennis courts of the Hamilton were played on for the first time Christmas Day. The courts, which were christened by Alan J. Lowrey, Captain of the Harvard tennis team, who is here for his Christmas vacation, are declared to be the best of their sort. Tennis is the most popular of the outdoor sports in Bermuda, and the success of the Hamilton Hotel tournament last Winter insures a large entry list for this Wonter's tournament.

Among the recent arrivals at the Princess are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch. Mr. Damrosch is the conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra. Other arrivals from New York include H. Lewis Slade, Jr.; C. Glorney and Miss Glorney, Edward Tilbury and Miss Tilbury, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Ford, Richard F. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Von Tilzer, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Cox, Miss Helen Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Cusson, Miss Stephanie Metz, Miss G. A. Cooper, C. G. Moller, Mrs. G. T. Strong, and R. C. Campbell. No Veiller Play on Curran Inquiry.

Bayard Veiller denies William Hammerstein's statement that he is writing a one-act play on the Curran investigation, to be called "Against the Law," for Mr. Hammerstein's use. Mr. Veiller said yesterday he had not seen Mr. Hammerstein in three months, and the matter had never been discussed by them. The only play by Mr. Veiller, except "Within the Law," which will be seen in New York this season is a one-act comedy entitled "The Diamond Dinner," which will be produced at Keith's Union Square Theatre on Jan. 20.

DANCE AT FRAUNCES TAVERN.

Customs of Colonial Days Observed at Party for Miss Mary D. Martin.

Mrs. Ferrier J. Martin of 52 East Sixty-ninth Street gave a Colonial dance last night at Fraunces Tavern in Broad Street, which was as nearly as possible a reproduction of the dances there in Colonial days. Colored mammies with bandanna-draped heads and kerchiefed shoulders served as maids in the dressing rooms, colored musicians in old-time togs played the music of Colonial days for the gay contra dances and the stately minuets essayed by the guests.

The dance was for Mrs. Martin's daughter, Miss Mary Dean Martin, and the guests asked numbered nearly 200. The majority of the girls wore Colonial costumes. Many of the men, however, came in the customary evening dress.

Mrs. Martin and Miss Martin received the guests, the former in a wonderful hand-embroidered silk, a family heirloom, made in France early in the seventeenth century, and the latter in a white satin petticoat over which was draped a pink polonaise that dated back many years.

Several of the young men of Scotch descent wore the Scotch kilts of their ancestors, adding variety to the scene.

Fraunces Tavern was decorated with holly brought from Mount Vernon and Christmas greens, and a buffet supper of Colonial dishes was served near midnight.

KITTY CHEATHAM'S MATINEE.

Many Young People Hear Her New Songs and Stories.

Kitty Cheatham gave the second of her holiday matinées yesterday at the Lyceum Theatre before a large audience, which included many young people. In the boxes at these recitals one sees the children of people who have achieved fame. Last week Edward Everett Hale, 3d, Louise Homer's twins, and Renée Reiss, the little daughter of Albert Reiss, were conspicuous. Yesterday one saw the children of Clara Butt, the English contralto, and the children of William Faversham. Mme. Nordica also was in a box.

The programme, on the whole, was more entertaining than the one last week. Miss Cheatham received in Lilly Paradell's drawing room, but she did not sing "Mind the Paint." However, there were many new songs and stories, all of which made their proper effect. The holidays and Miss Cheatham have almost become synonyms.

Gade's Cantata at St. Matthew's.

Gade's cantata "Christmas Eve" and excerpts from Mendelssohn's unfinished oratorio "Christus" will be sun at St. Matthew's Church, in West Eighty-fourth Street, on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. COURT PLAYER MAKES DEBUT.

Anna Strantz-Fuehring Gives Impressive Performance in "Heimat."

HEIMAT, play in four acts, by Hermann Sudermann. Irving Place Theatre.

Schwartze	Heinrich Marlow
Magda	Anna Strantz-Fuehring
Marie	Marianne Lotz
Auguste von Wendlowsky	Marie Buhrke
Franziska von Wendlowsky	Selma Weber
Max von Wendlowsky	Max Juergens
Heffterdingk	August Meyer-Eigen
Dr. von Keller	Otto Stoeckel
Prof. Beckmann	Gustav Olmar
von Klebs	Ferdinand Martini
Frau von Klebs	Bertha Walden
Frau Landgerichtsdirektor Elbrich	Lina Haenseler
Therese	Cenzi Goetzer

At the Irving Place Theatre last night the court player, Baroness Anna Strantz-Fuehring, made her debut as a "guest-star," playing Magda in Sudermann's tragical drama, "Heimat." The event proved to be one of the most important the German theatre has seen this season. There was a good-sized audience. A well-rounded performance was given by the company, and the star justified the warm welcome that had been given her when she made her first entrance. The grim story that delineates the moral standards of a provincial town and the penalty that comes upon Magda for violating them, calls for interpreters of power and authority, and those concerned in the production measured up to the requirement.

Next to the star, who seemed to have made a deep impression on the audience, the honors fell on Heinrich Marlow in his acting of the tragical role of the old father, whose daughter has strayed, and August Meyer-Eigen and Otto Stoeckel, who contributed splendid characterizations. Selma Weber, in a role with comedy touches, was well received.

The scenery was not all that could have been desired, but the costuming was good, some of the star's gowns exciting admiration.

CAST FOR "TRAGEDY OF NAN."

Stage Society's Second Performance to be a Matinee for Public.

The second performance of the Stage Society of New York will be given on Monday afternoon, Jan. 13, when John Masefield's "The Tragedy of Nan" will be presented. The cast will contain Constance Collier, Mary Barton, Alice O'Dea, Mary Murrillo, A. E. Anson, Ivan Simpson, Walter Leonard Howe, Frederick Powell, Henry Stephenson, William Sazan, and Sylphia Zan.

It had been intended to give the performance at the Lyceum Theatre, but it was discovered that the theatre was already booked for the appearance of Miss Beatrice Herford on that day, and the Hudson will be used instead. In contrast to the first performance of the society, this one will be open to the public and the proceeds of the ticket sale devoted to the Actors' Fund. The actors have volunteered their services.

COMMITTEE OF AWARD

MR. EDWARD BOK, Editor of The Ladies' Home Journal, who will act as Chairman of this Board.

MRS. JOHN W. ALEXANDER, wife of the distinguished painter and President of the National Academy of Design. Mrs. Alexander has made a special study of feminine costume and has designed a number for Miss Maude Adams in her special productions.

MISS ANNIE RUSSELL, the distinguished actress, who is generally accepted as one of the most carefully dressed women of the American stage.

MRS. ELEANOR HOYT BRAINARD, a recognized authority on good dressing, whose writings on the subject have been well known for fifteen years.

MISS ABBY E. UNDERWOOD, for twenty years a distinguished illustrator of fashions and an authority on good dressing.

MR. GROSVENOR K. GLENN, editor of The Illustrated Milliner, one of the recognized authorities in the wholesale and retail millinery trade.

CONDITIONS

WHO MAY ENTER: Any person living in the United States. This includes those engaged in the designing or the business of millinery or dressmaking. There is no entrance fee.

COMPETITORS FOR THE PRIZES must submit colored drawings of their designs, each with not more than a hundred words of description on the back of each design. This descriptive matter should specify materials and shades, but small samples of both materials and shades may be pinned to the design if desired. Any drawing will be accepted in competition, provided that it may be readily understandable by the judges. Only one design may be entered by any one designer in any one class. Each design must be enclosed separately in an envelope plainly marked "For the American Hat Prizes," or "For the American Afternoon Dress Prizes," or "For the American Evening Gown Prizes."

THE REQUIREMENTS: It is the general consensus of opinion among dress authorities that there are two basic principles of good dressing—beauty of line and harmony of color. This naturally means simplicity. This point of beauty with simplicity will be the determining factor in awarding all prizes.

THE DESIGNS must be original and suited to the Spring Season of 1913. The fullest scope is allowed as to the character of the design of hat or dress so long as the requirements outlined in the previous paragraphs are recognized. The materials and colors to be worn this Spring should be followed. The designs should be suitable for a woman from 25 to 50 years of age, as the designer may select. The proportions of the model are left to the discretion of the designer.

ALL ENTRIES MUST BE RECEIVED BY JANUARY 10th, 1913, either delivered or sent by mail, prepaid, to the Fashion Editor, The Times, New York. Sufficient postage for return must be enclosed. The designer's name and address must be enclosed in a sealed plain envelope, securely attached to the design. No name or address must appear on the design itself. The envelopes attached to the prize winners will be opened by the judges after the prizes are awarded. No other envelope will be opened by the judges and no contestants other than prize winners will be known or published. Envelopes attached to contesting designs which do not receive awards will be opened confidentially only for the purpose of discovering the address to which the design must be returned.

SHIPWRECKED CAT GOES TO GARDEN SHOW

Tim, Rescued from Foundered Schooner, Guest of Honor Among Well-Bred Felines.

An ordinary yellow and white cat, with no fancy name or impressive pedigree, monopolized the attention at the Cat Show, which was held in the Italian café at Madison Square Garden yesterday in conjunction with the Poultry Show. The cat's name is Tim, and he was rescued from the wrecked schooner Copy in the blinding snowstorm of Christmas night, when the ship went ashore at Eastons Neck Life Saving Station, L. I.

Tim was the pet of the crew of the schooner, and when the ship went aground in the storm, Capt. O. K. Smith, after getting together his valuables, thought of Tim and hurried through the ship looking for the cat. Tim was found on the deck shivering in the cold. Capt. Smith took Tim under his arm and was carried to safety in the breeches buoy. So Tim was a hero among the cats yesterday at the show, and had a place of honor away from the contestants.

Tim is different from the other cats in the show inasmuch as he has 22 toes. On one front foot he has an extra toe and another one on a hind foot. The cat has long been the mascot of the schooner Copy, a 125-ton two-master, and is a great pet among the crew. Tim isn't at the Cat Show to win any prizes. He's there to see how aristocratic felines behave themselves and drop into the spotlight himself awhile.

In the fine array of long-haired cats Woodrege Sweet William, owned by Mrs. G. C. Gillespie of Moorestown, N. J., won among the white males, while Prima Donna, owned by Mrs. B. C. Lewis, was awarded the blue ribbon for the best female.

Miss Dorothy Champion's Argent Glorioso, which won a gold medal at the Hotel Plaza Show on Thursday for the best bred American cat, is on view, and also Chester Chapin's Champion Kinka, a silver male tabby. Another aristocratic cat is Wynken, a cream-colored Persian male belonging to Miss Helen Castro of Scranton, Penn. Wynken was a winner at the Plaza Show and is expected to win some blue ribbons to-day.

In the class for Blue Males, open, Shiraz, belonging to Mrs. F. Connolly of New York was first, and Teddy, owned by Mrs. M. Jenkins of New York, was second. Cottage Maid, belonging to Mrs. Chester W. Chapin of New York, took the blue in the open class for blue females. In the class for blue kittens there was much competition. In this class were entered six thoroughbred kittens, and it took considerable examination before the judges were satisfied. Mrs. S. Sands's Don o' Dreams was first. General Grant, owned by Mrs. E. Sands of Providence, R. I., was second, and the same exhibitor also captured third prize with Blue Muff.

The Poultry Show attracted another large gathering of fanciers yesterday, and several important sales were reported. Frank Seamon, who has the Yama Farms exhibit, made a wager yesterday that he had a rooster which would make a friend of any cat. Roosters and cats, as a rule, don't get along well together. Generally the cat goes after the rooster and drives it to cover. Mr. Seamon then made a wager with another fancier, and a number of men who were informed of the proposed meeting gathered around the cage where the big barred Plymouth Rock rooster, Jack o' Hearts, holds forth. The cat which was brought to the rooster's cage was Chorister Boy.

The cat was put into the rooster's cage and everybody expected to see fur and feathers fly, but there was no warfare of any kind. The cat purred softly, and rubbed against the rooster, and the Plymouth Rock crowed a greeting to the cat.

JAMES J. DUFFY AN EDITOR.

Former N. Y. A. C. Manager Directs Magazine of Pittsburgh A. A.

James J. Duffy, well-known to New Yorkers, and particularly to members of the New York Athletic Club, where he was formerly the manager of America's greatest sports organization, has taken up a new field of work in his connection with the management of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. His name appears in the Winged Head Magazine, the official organ of the P. A. A., as managing editor, and the January number, which has just been issued, presents a carefully written and breezy appearance. Mr. Duffy has been connected with the leading organization of the Smoky City for some years, and has introduced many of the features he was responsible for when he was the moving spirit in the management of the N. Y. A. C.

The Pittsburgh A. A. announcements present a spirit of activity only rivalled by the New York A. C. and leading clubs of the big cities, and that there is every indication that the club is making great strides in all branches of sport is evidenced by the many sports series in every field. Particular stress is laid upon the importance of swimming, and the members and their families hold carnivals at frequent intervals, which are said to instill a demand for competitions among the younger men, thus building up the competitive forces and making the P. A. A. a leader in this field of endeavor.

WHITNEY GOING TO ENGLAND.

American Polo Captain to Make Short Stay in Yorkshire.

Harry Payne Whitney, the Captain of the American Polo Team which recently accepted a challenge from the Hurlingham Club for a world's championship match, to take place on the field of the Meadow Brook Club next June, will sail for England this morning on the S. S. Celtic, for a short stay at his shooting box in Yorkshire.

He will be accompanied by his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Jr., Arthur Scott Burden and James M. Waterbury, Jr., also a member of the international team which will defend the Westchester Polo Club Trophy, won from the English in 1909 and retained as the result of the sterling series on Long Island in 1911. It is expected that Mr. Whitney will return about January 18, when he will immediately begin the work of reorganization for the defense of the cup against the team which is being financed in England by the Duke of Westminster.

Dartmouth's Athletes for Denver.

DENVER, Jan. 3.—Acceptance was received in Denver to-day of the Denver Athletic Club's invitation to the Dartmouth College track team to compete against some Western university team in Denver during the first part of April. The club has sent representatives to Leland Stanford University with the hope that its track team will consent to oppose the Eastern college team here. Should Leland Stanford refuse, the University of California will be invited.

Tri-State League Opens April 30.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 3.—The Tri-State Baseball League will open its season on April 30 and close on Sept. 3. This is the decision reached at the annual meeting of the league here to-day. The salary limit was reduced from $2,000 to $1,600, $150 being the largest sum that may be paid to one player per month. Harrisburg was formally awarded the pennant for 1912.

Hawkins Obtains Cycling Cup.

J. B. Hawkins has obtained absolute possession of the Century Road Club Cup by winning it three times. Hawkins captured the New Year's handicap race from Bedford Rest to Valley Stream, a distance of eighteen miles. Hawkins was the winner in 1908 and 1909. His time for the 1913 race was 1 hour 14 minutes.

HEMPSTEAD AT HELM NOW.

Giants' New President Takes Hold of Affairs To-day—Moves Family Here.

President Harry N. Hempstead, the new President of the Giants, arrived in this city last night and will to-day take charge of the club's offices in the Fifth Avenue Building. Mr. Hempstead has brought his family to this city and will take up a permanent residence here.

At a conference which will be held this morning between President Hempstead and Manager McGraw all the players' contracts will be drawn up and sent out. Also the Spring training trip plans and the schedule of exhibition games will be decided on. Several of the regular players are already under contracts covering periods of two or three years, and it is only a few of the younger members of the club who will have to renew their contracts.

Manager McGraw will go to Chicago Monday to fill a vaudeville engagement and will be the centre of much attention from admiring Chicago fans. Next week President Frank Farrell of the Yankees and Frank Chance will also be in the Windy City, where they will be the guests at a dinner which is to be given by President Ban Johnson and President Charles Comiskey of the White Sox. Besides these baseball men, there will be several other club owners at both dinners and much baseball information is expected to float out of Chicago next week.

At a fanning bee yesterday, McGraw was telling about when he was first brought to St. Louis in 1891 by Bill Gleason, who recommended him highly to Chris Von der Ahe and urged him to give "Mac" a trial. Von der Ahe looked young McGraw over and said to Gleason: "Why you big cradle snatcher, what do you mean by bringing a child like that to me? I'm looking for big league ball players, not jockeys. Take him across the street and get him a job as exercise boy in Maffitt's racing stable."

Bill Gleason, however, was confident that McGraw would make good and persuaded Billy Barnie to sign the youngster for the Baltimore Orioles.

It is said among baseball men that the only possible reason for a hitch in the signing of Frank Chance to manage the Yankees next week will be over a contract for a period of years. Chance wants to sign for five years, while President Farrell wants a one-year contract, with the right to renew it. It is believed, howevr, that everything will be arranged amicably for each party. Chance's friends say that the peerless leader's record in baseball is so strong that he is in a position to demand just what he wants and get it, too.

An inviting proposition has been made to the management of the New York American League Baseball Club to have the Yankees go to Porto Rico next month on their spring training trip. The invitation is extended by people in charge of the Third Insular Fair of Porto Rico, who are anxious to get a major league club from the States as an attraction for the big fair. Several people will go from New York to Porto Rico on the steamship Brazos on Feb. 15 to attend the fair. Among these will be Cardinal Farley.

It is not likely that the New York Americans will accept the offer to play in Porto Rico, as Business Manager Irwin has already completed arrangements to train in Bermuda. The plans now only await the approval of Frank Chance when he signs a contract to manage the Yankees next season. The proposition to train in Porto Rico was put up to President Ebbets of Brooklyn two years ago by Gov. Colton of the island, but the Dodgers had already made arrangements to train at Hot Springs. Baseball is getting very popular in Porto Rico, as it has in Cuba, and the islanders are anxious to get major league clubs to go there.

In spite of Three-fingered Brown's statements that he would not pitch again he has been signed by Manager Joe Tinker and will pitch for the Reds next season. A trade was made yesterday whereby Grover Laudermilk of the Cubs, who figured in the big deal, will go back to Louisville in exchange for Brown. Brown is in Chicago, giving lessons in pitching to young McCormick, a grandson of John D. Rockefeller, who is on the team of a preparatory school in Chicago. Brown says his arm is as good as ever and his knee, which was injured last year, is rapidly getting back to its normal condition.

STORIES OF BASEBALL FIELD.

By BILLY EVANS,
American League Umpire.

"Watch his foot!" "Watch his foot!" That is a favorite expression of Clarke Griffith, no matter who is pitching. Nine times out of ten there is nothing the matter with the way the opposing pitcher is performing, Griffith is simply emitting his battle cry, with a hope that the pitcher may be worried, and his work affected by the constant objection. Most youngsters are worried by such methods, and some veterans, but on others it has no effect whatsoever.

In a game at Washington last year between St. Louis and the Nationals Walter Johnson and Jack Powell were the opposing pitchers. It was Johnson's first appearance after the much discussed game, that President Johnson decided broke his winning streak. It was hoped at the time that possibly the verdict might be changed. That afternoon Powell ended all discussion by winning 3 to 2 over Johnson, who went down to defeat, despite the fact he struck out twelve men and allowed only four hits.

Late in the game when it seemed that Washington was to lose, Griffith started objecting to the manner in which Powell was delivering the ball. He knew such protestations would not affect Powell's nerve, but thought possibly he might get Jack sore by his objections. "Watch his foot Bill, he yelled to me a half dozen times, before I admitted that I had heard him."

"Don't bother me, Griff," I answered, "its too hot to be fussing over the way Powell pitches. He was pitching that way when I was in the bushes, no one ever objected then, and it is too late to start reforming him now."

"His left foot is back of the rubber I tell you Bill," replied Griffith.

"Possibly," I answered, "but you want to reform several of your pitchers, before objecting to that slight technicality."

"Say Griffith," said Powell, "don't you think it would be a lot better if you and the boys would watch the ball instead of my feet, then they might have a chance to beat me."

The Chicago players got a lot of fun last Summer, telling this story at the expense of Rube Peters, one of the recruit twirlers. It all happened on the first trip of the White Sox through the East. Callahan had his team going in great style at the time and the club was a big attraction. Large crowds turned out every afternoon to see the athletes perform, while hardly an evening passed but that the club was the guest at some theatrical performance.

George Cohan was appearing in Boston at the time in a revival of "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway." Cohan is a great baseball fan, a warm friend of Jimmy Callahan, and consequently there was nothing too good for the Chicago boys. Just before the game one day Callahan received an invitation from Cohan to bring his athletes to the theatre that evening, boxes having been reserved for the players.

Just before starting time Callahan reminded the boys that in appreciation of Cohan's kindness, they should give him the glad hand when he made his appearance. Naturally baseball was uppermost in the minds of every Chicago player. The team had got away to a flying start and was being picked by many critics as a possible pennant winner. Some of the players all but started spending their share of the big series. The Sox had almost lost the game that afternoon through a peculiar play, and as luck would have it a number of the boys were discussing the situation, when Cohan made his appearance. As a result the applause that greeted him from the Chicago boxes was half-hearted. A few of the youngsters, in order to make good, started applauding after every one else had stopped, making things worse. Callahan was mad and paid his respects to the team on his return to the hotel.

The White Sox went from Boston to New York. Peters was making his Broadway début. After dinner he asked one of the other players if there was anything on for the evening.

"Sure," remarked the player questioned, "Callahan has the tickets, 'Bought and Paid For.'"

"Gee, I'm glad of that," answered Peters. "Now if we forget to applaud at the right time, we won't get roasted when we get back to the hotel."

HEAVYWEIGHTS PUT OUT IN FEW ROUNDS

Sailor White, Fred McKay, and George Weigner Winners at Sporting Club.

Sailor White of Brooklyn stopped Vic McLaughlin of Scotland in the third round, Fred McKay of Winnipeg defeated Andy Morris of Boston in four rounds, and George Weigner of New York knocked out Ed Smith in two rounds in the heavyweight boxing tournament at the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club last night. White was a substitute in the main event for Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant, who injured his hand in training.

The show had been billed as an elimination affair to provide a suitable opponent for Luther McCarty when the new champion comes East, but McCarty would have had little trouble with the entire sextet if they could be sent against him one after the other. About fifteen minutes would prove sufficient to eliminate the entire half dozen.

The rule of the State Athletic Commission forbidding a club to put on the same boxer in different bouts on the same night was called into play for the first time last night when Benny Meyers, who had opened the show in a four-round preliminary with Young Fulton, was sent back after the McKay-Morris contest for an extra bout with "Chicken" Roskins. Secretary Charles J. Harvey, who was present, learned that Meyers was to be a "repeater," and promptly ordered both boys from the ring.

The strange spectacle of a one-eyed boxer in the ring was presented in the opening heavyweight bout which brought together George Weigner of New York and Ed Smith of Brooklyn. Weigner lost his left eye several years ago, but this handicap has not affected his ambition to shine as a boxer. During the day, while he is juggling beef at a local provision house, Weigner wears a glass eye, but he discarded this piece of crysal last night before entering the ring. He weighed in at 185 pounds, while Smith scaled 170 pounds. In the opening round Weigner floored Smith for the count of nine, and he was down again when the bell rang. Early in the second round Smith was again floored for nine seconds, and when he went down again a few seconds after arising Referee "Young" Corbett stepped between the men and waved Weigner to his corner.

Fred McKay of Winnipeg, weighing 210 pounds, and Andy Morris of Boston, who scaled at 200 pounds, were the contenders in the second bout, and this was another one-sided affair. McKay towered several inches above the stocky Bostonian and had no trouble landing at will. Morris stood up gamely under the attack during the first two rounds, but in the third he was floored by McKay just before the bell sounded. In the fourth round McKay clearly outclassed Morris and finally sent him to the canvas with a right to the jaw. It was evident that Morris was no match for the big Canadian, and the referee intervened before Morris had made an effort to arise.

Vic McLaughlin of Scotland, a brother of Fred McKay, who boxes under an assumed name, was scheduled to box Jim Coffey of Dublin in the final bout, but Sailor White was put on in Coffey's place. White weighed 201 pounds and McLaughlin was two pounds below this figure. During the first two rounds it appeared that White was in for a severe drubbing as McLaughlin was much faster on his feet and shot in punches with either hand, at the same time avoiding the long swings which the sailor handed out. Late in the second round McLaughlin showed signs of being in poor condition and White was quick to take advantage of his opportunity as soon as the third round opened. He tore after his taller opponent and the latter quickly gave way under the onslaught of punches. Following a mix-up in his own corner, during which White sent in three hard punches to the stomach, McLaughlin went to the floor and did not move a muscle for several seconds. White showed his elation while his opponet was on the floor by jumping over the top rope three times.

EASY WIN FOR FLEMING.

Canadian Featherweight Defeats Chandler at the New Polo A. A.

Two ten-round bouts furnished an excellent attraction last night at the New Polo Athletic Association, and despite the inclement weather the clubhouse was well filled. In the first bout of the double windup Harry Braun, ex-amateur champion, and Young Libbey of Harlem engaged in an interesting contest, in which the honors were even. The final ten-round mill brought together Frankie Fleming, the Canadian featherweight boxer, and Willie Chandler of the Boys' Club. The contest served to bring out the superior work of the Canadian, who won with plenty to spare. Chandler received a bad beating, and was outclassed by the clever Canadian. The Boys' Club representative showed a disposition to mix matters with his shifty opponent, but was unable to get home many of his blows.

At no stage of the bout was the Canadian in trouble. He felt out his man in the first two rounds, and after securing his measure proceeded to administer a lacing of the most approved style. Using his two hands with equal damaging effect, Fleming alternated with hard licks in the face and stomach. He rocked Chandler with short jolts to the head and dazzled him with his speed and shiftiness. Chandler's leads were cleverly blocked, and before the local man could recover his poise he invariably received a couple of stiff blows for his pains.

Chandler showed to advantage in one round only, and that was in the third, when he found Fleming's face three times in succession without a return. This somewhat angered the Canadian, who cut loose with a volley of swings and stabs that forced Chandler to the ropes and caused him to cover up. Fleming tried to end the contest before the bell at the end of the tenth round, but the local boxer, though badly beaten up, managed to stay the limit, although he was very tired at the end.

McCarty May Box Burns in Paris.

CALGARY, Alberta, Jan. 3.—Richard Leigan, the Parisian fight promoter, who has been here for several days, has made terms with Tommy Burns of this city to box Luther McCarthy in Paris on the day before the Grand Prix next June. Leigan has wired McCarty for his terms.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Freddie Hicks will battle with Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh at the Fairmont A. C. on Wednesday night in a ten-round bout. Hicks's early career in the ring was unfortunate, inasmuch as he was matched with a number of top-notchers. Hicks was "green" when he boxed Mike Gibbons, and was easily outclassed. He has been wiser in picking his matches since then, however, and has gained much valuable ring experience. His last bout with Jack Harrison of England gave him the right of a match with McGoorty.

Patsy Callahan, the promising featherweight, will box Joe Carter in a ten-round bout at the Irving A. C. in Brooklyn to-night. Both boys have good records, and a bout full of action is looked for.

At the Sharkey A. C. to-night Young Wagner will box his old rival, Knockout Egers of the west side. In the semi-final the opposing boxers will be Red Watson and Kid Lewis. There will also be several preliminaries.

Jim Coffee will be the attraction in a ten-round bout against Dick Peters at the Olympic A. C. next Monday night. In the other ten-rounder Special Delivery Hirsh will box Young Wagner.

There will be a special boxing show at the Fairmont A. C. to-night, with Philly McGovern and Eddie Sherman in the main event. Harry Condon will box Philly Kramer, and there will be several other bouts.

Rhode Island State to Play Pratt.

The Pratt Institute of Brooklyn basket ball team will oppose the Rhode Island State College quintet in their annual game this evening. The contest will be decided on the Pratt Institute court at 8 o'clock. As both of these teams have been playing exceptionally good basket ball recently, a close and interesting game can be expected.

HOCKEY CAPTAIN BARRED.

Bates of Columbia Declared Ineligible According to Four-Year Rule.

John S. Bates, Captain of the Columbia University hockey team, was declared ineligible by the university Committee on Athletics yesterday. The committee held a regular meeting to pass on the eligibility of candidates for the various Winter sports teams, and when Capt. Bates's card was reached it was found that under the four years' playing rule in effect at Columbia he was ineligible to represent the Blue and White during the present season. Bates entered Columbia in the Fall of 1909, enrolling in the engineering schools. He had previously studied at Arcadia College, N. S., and there played hockey against the local Nova Scotia college teams.

During his first year at Columbia he was declared ineligible under the one-year residence rule, but in the season of 1910-1911 he played on the 'Varsity seven, and last year was also a member of the team. He was elected Captain last Spring, believing that he was eligible for one more year, inasmuch as he considered the games he played at Acadia as intersectional rather than intercollegiate contests. The university committee decided otherwise, however, and declared that his two years as a member of the Columbia team were all he was entitled to under the four-year playing rule in practice at Columbia.

Bates's disqualification on the eve of the opening game of Columbia's season, which begins next Wednesday when the Blue and White faces Yale, is a hard blow, for under Tom Howard the seven has been developed into one of the strongest that Columbia has had. Bates played rover, and next to Hobey Baker of Princeton was considered one of the strongest of the college hockey players last Winter.

Stuyvesant Beats Cutler at Hockey.

The hockey team of Stuyvesant High School had little trouble in defeating the Cutler School team yesterday morning at the local rink by a score of 6 to 0. The Curtis hockeyites were time and again outplayed by the clever passing of J. Amy of the victorious team. Five goals were caged in the first half of the contest by Capt. Fisher, who shot the rubber at difficult angles and long distances, after receiving the puck from Amy. The final goal was made by Amy, by means of an accurate shot from centre. The line-up:

Cutler.	Position.	Stuyvesant.
Cohn	Goal	House
Dowling	Point	Day
Cohn	Cover point	Robertson
A. Post	Rover	Fisher
Lawson	Centre	Amy
L. Post	Left wing	Taussig
Van Horn	Right wing	Harder

Goals—Fisher, 5; Amy, 1. Substitutes—Baker for Day, Pollock for Baker, Jaffe for Taussig. Referee—Mr. O'Brien, I.-A. A. C. Time of periods—Fifteen minutes.

Big Hockey Game at Rink To-night.

Real Canadian hockey will be played to-night when the teams representing McGill College of Montreal and the Ottawa University of Ottawa meet at the St. Nicholas Rink in what is technically a match in the Canadian Intercollegiate Championship series. This is the first time that an amateur match of such importance has been played outside of the Dominion, and the playing calibre of the two teams insures a batte fought with all the skill and keen rivalry that characterizes a contest for the highest honors to be gained in the Canadian college world. McGill holds the championship, which it won last year in a series of games participated in by all the leading colleges in the Province of Quebec, while the Ottawa team is conceded to be the peer of any amateur team in Ontario, which is a veritable nursery for professional and amateur hockey players.

SWIMMERS TO COMPETE.

Metropolitan A. A. U. 100-Yard Championship at N. Y. A. C. Tank.

The swimming season for 1913 will open to-night in the New York Athletic Club pool, when the Metropolitan A. A. U. championship at 100 yards will be decided. Judging from the recent performances at the distance it should be the best sprinting race witnessed for some time at the distance. Swimmers from high schools, colleges, and athletic clubs will compete.

Nicholas Nerick, the Mercury Foot all-around star, and Harry O'Sullivan, the Princeton freshman, are equal favorites for the title. Both have swan the century in about fifty-eight seconds, and this is faster time than any of their rivals' past performances. Still, neither has proved a thoroughly consistent performer, and the least break may cost them the race, for among the entrants will be several men capable of doing about one minute.

George South and James Reilly have beaten even time in the past. Norman Lemcke of the High School of Commerce has done sixty and two-fifths seconds, and Fred Culman of Columbia, J. G. Eddy of City A. C., J. P. Mantell of West Side Y. M. C. A., Eben Goss of Princeton and half a dozen others have covered the distance between sixty and sixty-one seconds.

An interesting feature of the championship meet will be a game of soccer water polo under the rules of the International Federation of Swimmers. This aquatic pastime was adopted by the Amateur Athletic Union instead of the National form of contest only last November, and the coming match, in which the New York A. C. players will oppose a team made up of the best available material outside of their own organization, will afford the public the first chance of seeing the foreign game played.

Besides these two events there are scheduled for the evening's entertainment a 100-yard novice swim and 200-yard handicap. The committee has also been awarded the metropolitan fancy diving championship, in which the best divers in the district will compete.

WINNERS WITH THE CUE.

George Ferguson played a miserable game last night in the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at the Broadway Billiard Academy, Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway, and lost to George Abbott by the score of 14 to 5 in thirty-seven innings. It was the most one-sided game of the tournament, and not once from the beginning was the ultimate winner in doubt, as Ferguson, who is quite proficient with the cue and plays within two points of the scratch mark, missed shots that would be easy for a novice. He attempted to make eighteen points before Abbott could tally fourteen. The winner's highest run was 3 points. The contestants in the game this evening will be Thomas Thompson and Walter Jewell. In the event of the former winning it will be the deciding game of the tournament, as Thompson is at present leading with a record of winning six games and losing one, as against Jewell's record of five victories and two defeats.

James Maturo of Denver, who is practicing at Doyle's Billiard Academy in preparation for his coming championship pool match with Alfredo De Oro, the holder of the title, defeated Edward Raynolds of the Amateur Billiard Club in a close game last night by the score of 100 to 98. Maturo showed much improvement over his form in the first practice game Thursday evening, which he lost, and judging from his showing he is sure to give De Oro a hard fight for possession of the title in their match next week. This afternoon Maturo will engage Frank Cole, and in the evening game he will play Edward Gray.

In last night's game of the amateur Class B 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, M. J. Doyle defeated Sylvester Levy by the score of 150 to 133 in fifty-eight innings. The contest was close and interesting in the early innings, but toward the finish both players indulged in considerable safety play, which tended to make the game monotonous. The winner made a high run of ten points and averaged 2 34-58. Levy had a high run of fourteen with an average of 2 17-58.

CHAMPIONS POINTED FOR JUNIOR TITLES

Brickley, Whitney, and Kilpatrick, Football Stars, in Games To-night.

The versatility of football players, past and present, will be tested to-night in the junior National track and field indoor championships at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, where such gridiron stars as Charlie Brickley of Harvard, Larry Whitney of Dartmouth, and John R. Kilpatrick, a former Yale Captain, will be seen in competition against the best available men of the athletic clubs of the States.

Peculiarly enough, these men have elected to try for honors in the shot-putting event, although each has made his mark in other types of contests on the athletic field, Brickley having been America's choice for the hop, step, and jump at the Olympic games in Stockholm, while both Whitney and Kilpatrick have each shone in the jumping events in prominent meets.

As this series will mark the first of the year in which James E. Sullivan has promised a continuance of the high-class work which marked the efforts of American athletes generally last year, the various performances will be watched with interest by the devotees of all of the metropolitan clubs, each of which has bought a block of seats and organized cheering sections.

All the athletes eligible for this set of sports have been training hard and faithfully and it is anticipated that their work will be fully up to the standard of championship contests.

There is such an aggregation of good material in each of the events that it is promised that the competition will wax as keen as in any series ever held. The out-of-town entrants are credited with surprising strength, particularly the representatives of the Boston A. A., who announce their intention of making their presence felt in each of the competitions.

The performance of Homer Baker, the most recent find in the middle-distance division, at the games of the Seventy-first Regiment last Tuesday night bespeaks an exciting contest when the rest of the field attempt to wrest the title in the 1,000 yards from this sterling runner. The New York lad is now apparently at his best, and it is stated that it will take 1:56 to head him at the end of the 880-yard race. Among those who are entered against him will be Harry Lee of Boston, the maker of the best figures at half a mile last year in an indoor event.

The two-mile race should prove an event worth a journey to witness, as in this event such stellar performers as Joe Silva of Boston, Sid Leslie, Long Island A. C.; Frank Wright, Xavier A. A., and J. G. Hermans, the Yonkers flier, will be seen in action. Leslie is the choice of the local contingent, who bank on his well-known ability at the distance to carry him to the fore early in the race and continue in the van until the tape is reached.

Probably the best man in the 600-yard race will be Dick Edwards, the former 440-yard Metropolitan champion, who is said to be going "great guns" at the longer distance.

The running high jump has a number of six-foot men entered, with the possible winner looming up in the person of Alex. W. Moffatt of Harvard, who has a mark of 6 feet 2 inches as his best effort. Another wearer of the Crimson will be seen in this event when A. B. Chandler, another six-footer, essays his trials.

A number of collegians will be seen in the timber-topping events, the chief entrants being A. J. High, a former Harvard man; Val Havens, the Rutgers champion; W. A. Potter of Yale. Williams of Cornell, Freeman and Jackson of Harvard, as well as Ike Lovell of the Irish-Americans and Trenholm of the New York A. C., who is said to be pointed for Dartmouth when he graduates from a high school.

The 220-yard event will be run in lanes, which will assure a truly run race in both heats and final. All of the short-distance stars will be seen in action in the dashes, with the first event of the long programme to be called at 8 o'clock.

NEWS OF THE ATHLETES.

Entry blanks are out for the annual games of Fordham University, to be held at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory Jan. 25. These events, which always attract prominent athletes, promise this year to establish new figures in competition. The programme arranged is well balanced in both track and field events, in which a number of prominent athletes will compete at their specialties. The card consists of the following events: 65-yard dash, handicap; 300-yard dash, handicap; 1,000-yard run, handicap; three-mile run, 175-yard limit handicap, one-mile walk, handicap; three-mile bicycle race, one-mile heats, scratch; one-mile relay for smaller clubs; running high jump, handicap; putting 12-pound shot, handicap; all-around jumping contest, handicap; standing high jump, standing broad jump, and three standing jumps; special 65-yard dash, scratch; 60-yard hurdles, scratch; one-mile relay, New York A. C., Irish-American A. C., Boston A. A.; two-mile relay, Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Princeton; one-mile relay, Fordham, Holy Cross, and Georgetown.

The Irish-American A. C. has entered its best quartet of sprinters for the one-mile relay race, which will feature the games of the Millrose A. C., on Jan. 18. The Winged Fist quartet will comprise Melvin Sheppard, Jim Rosenberger, Abel Kiviat, and Abe Pepls. Followers of athletics predict a new record for the event, if the above-named four are forced all the way. The committee in charge of the games has just made an important change in regard to trophies for the inter-club and regimental relays. In former years the trophies required the winning of the events three times by the same club for their permanent possession, but this year the first team to cross the finish line in any of these events will gain permanent possession of the trophies offered.

Simon P. Gillies, the old New York A. C. hammer thrower, sent a general Christmas greeting from Spain to all his old athletic friends in New York. Gillies is superintending construction work on a big dam which his firm is building at Tremps, in the Province of Lerida, on the southern side of the Pyrenees.

Three of the athletes who head the list of point winners for the New York A. C. for the year 1912 are Jerseyites. The foremost is Platt Adams, who helped in the scoring of points at Stockholm for the United States. His efforts during the past year brought forth 143 points, made up of twenty-one firsts, ten seconds, and eight thirds. Donald McDougall, the world's champion amateur cyclist, is fourth on the list, with 77 points, and Ben Adams, a brother of Platt, ranks sixth, with 71 points.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 3.—To-night, at a complimentary dinner tendered Harvard's 1912 'Varsity baseball team by Barrett Wendell, Jr., '02, of the Baseball Committee, the cup offered last year for all-around efficiency on the diamond was awarded to Dana J. P. Wingate, '14, Captain of the 1913 team. Wingate played shortstop, and because of his all-around work was elected Captain, being the first junior to whom this distinction has been given at Harvard for more than ten years.

The dinner was attended by the 'Varsity squad, among the guests being Dr. F. J. Sexton, the coach, and Dr. E. H. Nichols, '86, and Dr. C. Frothingham, '02, members of the College Baseball Committee.

TORONTO BEATS N. Y. U.

Canadians Make Whirlwind Finish at Basket Ball in This City.

The University of Toronto basket ball team defeated the New York University quintet in an exciting game last night on University Heights by the score of 38 to 25. This is the Canadian team's last game in the United States, as they will return home immediately.

The New York University team started off fast in the opening half and played a good game. The Canadians' shots for the most part went astray, and the end of the twenty minutes of play found the local quintet leading by the score of 15 to 12.

In the second half the Toronto University team became accustomed to the court and played in a fashion which puzzled their opponents. They tallied goals from every angle of the field and rolled up a big lead. Simpson, centre of the Toronto team, ran away from Seiffert, left forward on the local five, and tallied many goals from the field. He helped materially throughout in building up his team's big lead, scoring nine goals from the field. For the local team C. McLoughlin and MacDonald were the star performers. The line-up:

N. Y. U.	Position.	Toronto Univ.
Desimone	Right forward	Body
Ditcher	Centre	Simpson
C. McLoughlin	Right guard	Thompson
G. McLoughlin	Left guard	Scott

Substitutions.—For New York University—MacDonald for Seiffert, Helfort for Desimone, Seiffert for Dutcher. Goals from field—Seiffert, (3,) Dutcher, (2,) G. McLoughlin, (2,) MacDonald, (2,) Helfort, Brock, (3,) Boddy, (4,) Simpson, (9,) Thompson, Scott. Goals from foul line—Seiffert, (5.) Time of halves—Twenty minutes. Referee—Harry Quigg, New York Athletic Club.

Montclair Beaten by Orange.

The Montclair High School basket ball team at Montclair yesterday went down to defeat before the Orange High School team, interscholastic champions of New Jersey, by the score of 24 to 19. The home players had the better of the Orange five in the second period, but the substantial lead that the latter had obtained in the first half, which was completed with Orange ahead, 15 to 7, was too great for them to overcome. Orange was just as aggressive in the second half, but Cox, Ward, and Van Vleck covered the Orange forwards better.

Montclair's second team defeated the Orange High scrubs in the preliminary game by the score of 31 to 11. The line-up of the first game:

Orange High.	Position.	Montclair High.
Weiser	Right forward	Erwin
Neil	Centre	Van Vleck
Lang	Right guard	Ward

Goals from field—Evans, (7,) Weiser, (3,) Fischer, Slocum, (3,) Van Vleck, (2,) Erwin, Cox, and Ward. Goals from fouls—Erwin, (3,) Evans, (2.) Referee—John Randell, Montclair Y. M. C. A. Umpire—Havlock James, Orange. Time of halves—Fifteen and Twenty minutes.

Thistle Wins for East Orange.

East Orange High School's basket ball team resumed its playing schedule yesterday afternoon and defeated the Summit High School five in its home gymnasium by the score of 38 to 30. Individual work by Thistle, who was sent in to succeed Johnson in the second half, saved the day for East Orange. After being outclassed in the first half by the score of 21 to 12, the Summit boys came back strong and brought the score to a tie at 25 points all. At this point Thistle figured prominently, and by caging three goals in rapid succession for East Orange lifted his team out of the danger zone. The line-up:

Summit High.	Positions.	East Orange High.
Hubbard	Right forward	Johnson (Thistle)
Alesbury	Centre	Fischer
Reavey (Captain)	Left guard	Walton (Captain)

Goals from field—Brentano, 7; Fischer, 3; Johnson, 3; Thistle, 4; Walton, 3; Alesbury, 3; Hubbard, 3; Gilchrist, 2; Fischer and Reavey. Goals from fouls—Reavey, 10; Johnson and Brentano. Referee—Mr. Taylor, East Orange. Umpire—Mr. Nelson, Summit. Time of halves—Fifteen and twenty minutes.

Stuyvesant Quintet Victors.

In the opening game of the P. S. A. L. basket ball season, Stuyvesant High School defeated the five of Townsend Harris Hall by a score of 21 to 13. The line-up:

Stuyvesant H. S.	Position.	Townsend Harris.

DARTMOUTH LOSES CAPTAIN.

W. T. Engelhorn Discovers That He Is Ineligible to Play Football in 1913.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 3.—Because W. T. Engelhorn, recently elected Captain of the Dartmouth College Football team for next season, discovered that he was ineligible under the so-called three-year rule, the Dartmouth Athletic Council today accepted his resignation. No date has been set for the election of a new captain.

Engelhorn, in a letter to the athletic council, said that at the time of his election he did not feel any doubt as to his eligibility, but subsequent consideration had led him to think the question might be raised. He told the council he had played on the Washington State College Football team one year before coming to Dartmouth.

The council decided that this, with his two years of service on the Dartmouth eleven, rendered him ineligible to play another season.

ALDERMEN DISCUSS SPEED

Ordinance Suggested to Deal with Reckless Drivers Has Drastic Penalties—Car Trading Opposed.

With all but one or two of its exhibits in place the tenth annual Automobile Importers' Salon went smoothly on its way yesterday. The Canadian cars, which had been delayed on the road, were rolled into the Astor Ballroom during the day, and with their sloping bonnets, center control and left-hand drive, won much attention. The six-cylinder motor is of simple and unusual design, and there was a little undertone of talk about the exhibit of speed the cars had shown on the road, even making necesary, it was said, the substitution of eighty-mile for sixty-mile speedometers.

In the opposite corner of the Salon were two additions to an exhibit of one of the body builders. One of the newcomers was a striking gray closed car of fine lines and attractive coloring, upholstered in gray cloth to harmonize with the body paint. It also was a magnet for admirers. Several sales were recorded during the day and evening. Men were busy here and there painting in the monograms of the new purchasers on door panels—a sure sign of selling under way. One of the Belgian exhibitors reported the sale of two "40s," and three coupes of different makes were bought by Mrs. H. H. Rogers, Jr., Mrs. E. S. Doig and Joseph Schanz.

At a meeting of the special committee appointed by the Board of Aldermen for the purpose of considering provisions for an ordinance to cover reckless driving and speed limits for automobile drivers in Greater New York, held Thursday night at the City Club, several important measures were discussed.

Speed limits proposed in the ordinance are fifteen miles an hour within the city limits, eighteen miles an hour in Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, north of 125th Street, Madison Avenue, Grand Concourse and Boulevard in the Bronx and Atlantic, Bedford, Eighteenth, Flatbush, Fourth and Fifteenth Avenues and King's Highway in Brooklyn; twenty miles an hour in Queens or Hoffman Boulevards in Queens; twenty-five miles an hour in public highways in country sections and undeveloped and sparsely settled sections.

While these are the limits for speed, the committee is emphatic that under no conditions must drivers go at a speed to endanger life, limb or property. The penalty for the first offense is to be a fine ranging from $15 to $100, and imprisonment not to exceed fifteen days at the discretion of the court. For the second offense not less than $50, nor more than $100, or imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. For the third offense, a fine of $100 and thirty days in jail, both mandatory, was suggested, or that the fine be mandatory and imprisonment for sixty days at the discretion of the court.

It is also the opinion of the committee that this ordinance will supplement the Callan Law in Greater New York.

The committee includes Aldermen Ralph Folks, Chairman; Frank Dotzler, M. Niles, R. Becker, J. J. Reardon, Grant Esterbrook, Robert H. Bosse, F. H. Wilmot, William Fink, and W. A. Shipley.

Anticipating a rush of business during the coming Automobile Show, and particularly large numbers of second hand cars offered to dealers in exchange for new models, a meeting at the offices of the Automobile Dealers' Association was held recently to discuss what action it should take toward stopping this practice, now become a nuisance.

The "no trading" plan was decided to be best to adopt. The dealers feel that they cannot do business and give their customers the proper amount of service required if they are compelled to lose money, which they do whenever they make a large allowance for an old machine.

From Kenosha, Wis., came news last night that Louis H. Bim had been appointed assistant general manager of the Thomas B. Jeffrey Company, manufacturer of Rambler motor cars, in charge of both factory and sales. Harry E. Field, formerly of New York and adjacent territory, becomes general sales manager, with G. H. Cox as his assistant. Field was formerly Vice President and general sales manager for the Hartford Rubber Works. The new officers of the company are: President, Charles T. Jeffrey; Vice President, Harold W. Jeffrey; Second Vice President and Treasurer, George H. Barry; Secretary, Edward S. Jordan; Assistant Secretary, Edward S. Haddock.

B. R. T. DOUBLES STOCK.

Files Certificate for $90,000,000 to Convert Bonds.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company filed yesterday in the office of the Secretary of State at Albany through C. D. Meneely, vice-President and Treasurer of the company, a certificate of the increase of stock from $45,000,000 face value to $90,000,000 divided into 900,000 shares of $100 par value.

This increase was rendered necessary, the company explained yesterday, for the conversion into capital stock of the first refunding gold mortgage convertible 4 per cent. bonds, which were issued under its mortgage of July 1, 1902, to the Central Trust Company of New York as trustee. The certificate of increase sets forth that the bonds now outstanding in the hands of the public under this mortgage aggregate $34,750,000.

The certificate also contains the resolution of the directors, which provides that during the twelve-year period for the conversion of the bonds, which expires on July 1, 1914, only such portion of the increased capital stock shall be issued as is necessary for the purposes of the conversion according to the conditions prescribed in the bonds and mortgage. The bonds thus converted will be canceled and will not be re-issued.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Profit-Taking, with Some Unfavorable News, Causes Decline in Most Issues.

The recent tendency toward higher prices shown by the stock market received a sharp check yesterday when declines were experienced by almost the entire list. The desire of those who bought stocks before the Christmas holidays to realize their profits on the advance which has since occurred was one direct cause of the lower prices, but they were also influenced by renewed discussion of the possible effects of coming tariff revision.

In the early forenoon the market was moderately heavy, but was under no special pressure. Western Maryland, preferred and common, exerted a disquieting effect on other railroad issues by going to a new low level on a report that the Directors early next week will pass the dividend now being paid on the preferred. This issue closed with a loss of 6 points, the common showing a loss of 2¼. Soon after noon the market received a further shock by the unexpected announcement of the passing of the dividend on American Beet Sugar. While the board explained that the decision to omit further payments was due to the fact that the company has an unusually large stock of manufactured sugar on hand and unsold, popular belief held that the management was anticipating a removal of a part or all of the tariff protection which sugar has enjoyed in the past.

Money was in greater supply and loaned freely at 4¾ per cent., some needs being cared for at a point below that figure. Time money likewise displayed an easier tendency, owing largely to the absence of much demand. The lower price of money here and the demand for funds abroad resulted in a further advance of three-eighths in sterling exchange. Yesterday's estimates of the showing to be made by to-day's bank statement credited the New York banks with a net gain in cash of nearly $15,000,000. There was little change in the money situation at London, but discounts were a shade easier at Berlin and Vienna. Among international bankers little doubt was expressed as to the certainty of an early agreement regarding the Balkan situation that will allow Europe to resume business on a more secure basis.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 3@5 per cent., with the last loan at 3½ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 4½ per cent.

Time money rates were at 5@5¼ per cent. for sixty days to four months, and 4¾@5 per cent. for five and six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5½@6 per cent. for best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $539,372,660; balances, $33,012,179; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $1,612,066.

The local banks have gained $307,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 4 9-16@4⅝ per cent. for short bills and 4 9-16@4⅝ per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 4 per cent., and Berlin 4⅝@4⅞ per cent. Money was 2½@3½ per cent. in London, and 5½ per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 19½ centimes, and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 47 pfennigs.

Foreign Exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, $4.8635; demand, $4.86.

Paris—Cable, 5.17½ less 1-32; check, 5.18⅛ less 1-16.

Berlin—Cable, 95 1-16; check, 95 less 1-32.

Holland—Cable, 40.25; check, 40.21.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', 60 days, $4.8185; 90 days, $4.8010.

London—Commercial, 60 days, $4.81½; 90 days, $4.79⅝.

Paris—Commercial, 60 days, 5.22½; 90 days, 5.24⅜.

Berlin—Commercial, 60 days, 93 15-16 plus 1-32; 90 days, 93⅝.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

Boston, par; Chicago, 35c premium; St. Louis, 10c premium; St. Paul, 70c premium; San Francisco, 25c premium; Montreal, par at 62½c premium.

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

The condition of the United States Treasury at the beginning of business to-day was: Working balance, $92,569,979; in banks and Philippine Treasury, $31,713,736; total of general fund, $144,352,190.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

High Jinks in Broad Street.

There is a corner of Broad Street where it is intersected by the narrow canyon made by Exchange Place that rivals the point of the Flatiron Building as a playground for conflicting air currents. Yesterday's intermittent wind squalls seemed to have picked out this corner for meeting one another and disputing the right of way. As a result there was hardly a moment of the day when from one to one-half dozen men and boys were not engaged in the frantic pursuit of flying hats. The usual large gallery of clerks and messengers called forth by anything unusual stood for hours in the lee of the Johnston Building enjoying the sight of men and women trying to tack across Broad Street in the face of a young hurricane. Aside from keeping a large number of Wall Street employes from their tasks in this way, the wind disturbed business more directly. A waiter carrying a tray piled high with luncheon dishes saw tray and contents scattered in the street when he tried to breast the gale; and a boy who loosened his hold on a check received for stocks saw the bit of paper whirl over a near-by building and disappear from view. Another careless messenger lost a certificate for stock, but the wind finally tired of playing with the paper and dropped it to the bottom of an areaway outside of the Mills Building, from which it was finally recovered with the aid of the janitor.

⁂

Lackawanna, Ex-Rights.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western was quoted yesterday ex-rights for the first time since the announcement of an offer of $12,000,000 of new stock at par. It was also ex-dividend. As a result, the bid and asked prices last night were 440—475, which is a drop of 130 points. That is about the value put upon the rights on the day the terms of the new issue were announced.

⁂

Beet Sugar's Slump.

A great many people with a direct or sentimental interest in the welfare of the beet sugar industry in this country have been not a little disturbed over the possibility that with a new party in power the tariff on sugar might be removed, but few of them expected this possibility to affect the American Beet Sugar Company's prosperity so far ahead of any action. The passing of the common dividend had been rumored as likely to follow a disturbance of the protective duty, but the behavior of the stock after yesterday's dividend meeting showed that the board's action had not been fully discounted. On sales of about 21,000 shares the price broke from 48 to 41⅝ and closed at 42, with a loss of 6 points for the day. That is the lowest price touched in more than a year. The low record for 1912 was 46½. In September the issue touched 77.

⁂

Central's Car Loading.

The loaded car movement of the New York Central lines during December was 1,987,741, which is an increase of 186,629 cars over the last month of 1911. The Lake Shore contributed 50,000 of the increase and the Big Four 48,000. This would seem to indicate that the improvement shown in the Central's November earnings continued through the balance of the year.

⁂

International & Great Northern.

It is said that the recent ultimatum delivered by the Texas Railroad Commission to the effect that the State would not allow control of the International & Great Northern to pass to an outside company does not mean the end of the Missouri Pacific's plan for merging its subsidiary line after acquiring control. If the committee acting for the Missouri Pacific should decide to exercise its option for the purchase of the International & Great Northern stock, it is expected that a Texas corporation will be formed to hold the shares in the interest of the State of Texas. Thus would the dignity of a great State be upheld.

⁂

No Increase Yet in Rubber Rate.

The meeting of the Directors of the United States Rubber Company passed yesterday without any announcement of an increase in the 4 per cent. annual rate on the common stock, such as market gossip some time ago predicted as a likely event. The next regular meeting, at which dividends will be considered, will be held on the first Thursday in April, and hints were thrown out yesterday in a typewritten statement which disclaimed any official source that "for various reasons" the April meeting would be the most logical time to take up the question of increasing the common disbursement. The company's fiscal year ends on March 31, and, it was pointed out, at that time the Directors would have pretty definite figures of the results of business for the full year, the last two or three months of which are potent in making the rubber footwear business good or bad.

⁂

Bank Clearings Fall Off.

For the first time in many weeks the total of bank clearings over the country at large shows a falling off in comparison with the same weeks of the two preceding years. Statistics compiled by Dun's Review show clearings aggregating $2,743,722,616, which is a loss of 6.8 per cent compared with the same week last year and of 7.5 per cent. compared with 1911. The decrease, in sharp contrast with so many heavy gains week by week for a long period past, is explained in large measure by the fact that in the two previous years the week carried the heavy payments through the banks of the first three and four days, respectively, in January, whereas in the current figures only Jan. 2 is included.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Further Decline in United Cigar Stores Chief Feature on the Curb.

Consequent upon Thursday's heavy selling of United Cigar Stores, prices still further weakened in yesterday's session on the Curb. Opening at 111, prices declined as low as 108½, but rallied somewhat before the close of the market, when the stock stood at 109⅞ on trading amounting to 6,500 shares. British-American Tobacco marketed 2,000 shares at prices between 24⅞ and 24¾, while Tobacco Products preferred, on sales of 1,600 shares, dropped ½, to 99. In the mining market Braden Copper reported transactions of 6,000 shares, and gained a point, closing at 10⅝. The bond department was generally active, Chicago Eleveated 5s disposing of $75,000, opening at 97¾ and advancing to 98, while Brooklyn Rapid Transit 5 per cent. notes were steady at 96¾ on deals amounting to $40,000. Thirty-five Western Pacific 5s were traded in at 86 and 86¼.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Subdued Over Peace Outlook—Paris Heavy, Then Steady—Berlin Market Strong.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 4.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The market was well supplied with money yesterday, even after a very large amount which was due to the Bank had been repaid. The rates for day-to-day advances and short loans were unaltered, but were inclined to be weak. Discount rates were steady. Business in bills was only moderately active.

"The Bank received £247,000 bar gold, which had been bought early in the week on French account, and had been resold owing to the rapid rise of the Paris cheque, which was again three-quarters centime higher.

The Berlin cheque almost moved in favor of London.

"The tone of the stock markets on the whole was more subdued. Rumors of a hitch in the peace negotiations imparted a less confident tone, and when the news reached the Continent some selling orders came to hand from Paris. There was an absence of any speculative demand for those stocks which were most in favor on the previous day, and the volume of investment business was small. Prices in consequence showed a drooping disposition in nearly all departments, though, as a rule, the relapse did not reach large proportions. Consols fell 3-16.

"The exceptions to the general dullness were San Paulo Railway ordinary stock and Grand Trunk Railway securities, which were later in demand on the appearance of excellent traffic returns. In street dealings the tone of the American market was easier.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Prices opened heavy on the Bourse to-day. Later the market strengthened and closed steady.

Three per cent. rentes 89 francs 82½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—Prices were strong on the Boerse to-day.

NO BEET SUGAR DIVIDEND.

Profits Small and Common Stock Sells Down to 41⅝.

After paying dividends on its common stock for a little more than a year, the American Beet Sugar Company passed the dividend yesterday, when the Directors met to act on the quarterly payment expected in February. The company was organized in 1899, and although dividends were paid on its $5,000,000 preferred stock at the full rate of 6 per cent. from October, 1899, to date, the common stock totalling $15,000,000, received no dividends until the initial quarterly payment of 1¼ per cent. was made Nov. 15, 1911.

In announcing the passing of the dividend this statement was issued at the office of the company:

> Resolved, That in view of the large stock of manufactured sugar on hand and unsold, no action be taken respecting the payment of a dividend on the common stock at present.

The passing of the dividend was the exact contrary of what speculators in the stock had been promising only a few months ago. At that time it was predicted that the dividend rate stood a fair chance of being increased, and the stock went as high as 77. Last month it was down to 47¾. Yesterday it sold as low at 41⅝.

The sugar market was depressed during the greater part of 1912, and prices of standard granulated sugar averaged only 5.35 cents a pound for the year, against 6.11 cents in 1911. Besides small profits for last year, the company is now facing the possibility of a reduction in the duties on sugar which will still further curtail its earnings.

ITALY GETS AMERICAN COAL.

High Prices at Welsh Mines Causes Order for 200,000 Tons.

CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 3.—Italy has now followed the lead of the Egyptian railways, and has placed an order for 200,000 tons of coal in America, and has also invited tenders for a large quantity from the Yorkshire mines.

Italy is one of the best customers of Wales. She has her own coal depot at Cardiff, and has hitherto taken 2,000,000 tons of coal a year from this port. The high price demanded for Welsh coal at the present moment is given as the reason for the change.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

As prices declined on the Consolidated Stock Exchange activity increased. Sales totaled 57,750 shares, which represented the largest day's business since Dec. 20. On the late afternoon weakness several prominent stocks touched lower quotations than were reached on the New York Stock Exchange. The market from its opening at 9:30 o'clock indicated that there had been a check to the betterment in sentiment which had been exhibited on Thursday. Prices on the call dealings in nearly every instance reflected losses compared with the night before.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Herman B. Baruch, of the firm of Baruch Brothers, has been elected a member of the New York Cotton Exchange.

William P. Bonbright & Co., Inc., which took over the business of the firm of William P. Bonbright & Co., on the first of the year, has elected as officers William P. Bonbright, President; Starling W. Childs, Irving W. Bonbright, O. B. Wilcox, Frederic C. Walcott, William F. Fisher, Right Hon. Lord Fairfax, and G. C. Cassels, Vice Presidents; F. W. Stehr, Treasurer; G. R. Buckman, Secretary. The Board of Directors is composed of these officers and Sidney Z. Mitchell, President of the Electric Bond & Share Company, and Louis Egerton of London, England.

Posner & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, 111 Broadway, announce the removal of their uptown office to the ground floor of the Metropolitan Life Building, Twenty-third Street and Madison Avenue.

The Stock Exchange firm of Allan A. Ryan & Brother, composed of Allan A. Ryan and Clendenin J. Ryan, sons of Thomas F. Ryan, has been dissolved. Clendenin J. Ryan retired Jan. 1. The business will be continued under the name of Allan A. Ryan, who was the Stock Exchange member of the old firm.

287 Failures for the Week.

Bradstreet's reports 287 business failures in the United States during the week, against 253 for the previous week and 349, 282, 271, and 329 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 101, New England 29, Southern 88, Western 36, Northwestern 9, and Far Western 24. Canada had 24, against 19 for the preceding week. About 87 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 9 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

TO SELL WABASH TERMINAL.

Federal Judge at Pittsburgh Sets the Minimum Price at $6,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3.—Judge Orr, in Federal court to-day, entered a decree authorizing the sale of the Pittsburgh Wabash Terminal Railroad. The time of sale is left to the discretion of Special Master William H. McClung. No bid of less than $6,000,000 will be accepted. The sale was forced by the Pittsburgh Construction Company to satisfy a debt of $700,000.

If the Terminal Road gets out of the control of the Wabash system it will mean the end of George J. Gould's dream of carrying a portion of the great tonnage originating in the Pittsburgh zone from Pittsburgh to the Atlantic seaboard. The Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Vanderbilts, it is understood, will buy the road if possible, and thus shut out the Gould lines.

The Terminal line is laid in the only accessible rail route through the length of the great mill district. The building of another road would be exceedingly costly.

There is a possibility that the Wabash Bondholders Association may get control of the Terminal to protect themselves.

REVISES DRAWBACK SYSTEM.

MacVeagh Acts for Identification of Sugar Products.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Secretary MacVeagh to-day completely revised the system of drawback allowances on exportations of refined sugar and syrup manufactured from imported raw sugars. He issued regulations effective at the end of thirty days to provide for the identification of those products. They were expected, it was announced, to "eliminate the possibility of discrepancies in identifications such as have taken place in the past, and for which restitution has been made to the Government at New York and Philadelphia."

The regulations completely change the rate of drawback in accordance with a previously announced plan.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Declines with Better Weather —Corn Firm—Cotton Irregular.

The wheat market was firm early, on the cables and the export demand, reacting later on predictions of rain in the Central West. Corn was firm on unsettled weather conditions and fair demand for the cash article. Oats were steady, with lighter receipts. Provisions improved on the monthly stock statement. Cottonseed oil advanced with light offerings. Cotton, after early firmness, reacted with a less urgent demand from shorts. The South sold. Week-end figures were slightly bullish. The Liverpool cotton market was steady. Coffee was heavy on cables and bearish statistics.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was very dull all the session, with final prices showing a slight net decline in most markets. Winnipeg and Minneapolis were better, while Chicago was heavy. The early trading was at a higher level, due to firm cables, both for cash and futures. British markets were steady. Berlin was slightly higher, and Budapest was higher. The Argentine news was of favorable weather conditions, and reports were of good quality of the new wheat also, but prices were unchanged. After a very steady morning, some speculative selling developed at the West, on the prospect of more favorable weather, and on a crop summary by a Western milling paper a little more encouraging. The reports from the Far Southwest were of the need of rain, although the crop conditions in Oklahoma were said to be very fine. Receipts Northwest were heavy. Reports as to the amount of wheat in country elevators are somewhat varied, the estimates ranging from 25,000,000 bushels to 40,000,000 bushels in the American Northwest, and the movement at Minneapolis is big. Minneapolis stocks increased 1,875,000 bushels for the week. Notwithstanding the enormous receipts, the Northwestern markets were relatively firmer than Chicago. The May delivery at Minneapolis is, however, about 5⅛c under Chicago, and the big stocks at Minneapolis and big stocks in country elevators naturally bring a great deal of hedging in both markets. Export demand was good for Manitoba wheat, and sales of 208,000 bushels were reported. The American exports for the week were 4,597,000 bushels, Argentine shipments were 560,000 bushels, Australian were 144,000 bushels, Indian 880,000 bushels, and the indications for the world's total were 9,000,000 bushels, against 6,768,000 bushels last year. Cash wheat was steady; No. 2 red was quoted at $1.08, free on board; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.01¼; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.00½, and No. 1 Northern, 97¾c.

CORN.

The corn market showed some strength early, due to apprehension of unsettled weather and reports that country offerings were smaller. Later prices reacted moderately, influenced by the decline in wheat. The demand for cash corn was of fair volume at the interior, and the export sales at the seaboard were five loads. Argentine exports for the week were 3,231,000 bushels, and American exports were 1,363,000 bushels, showing the beginning of the export movement in new corn. Receipts west continue heavy, but the interior shipments have increased materially, showing active distribution from interior points. Cash corn was firm, with the export grade quoted at 55c, free on board.

OATS.

The oats market showed a fractional loss for the day, but on very light trading. Business seemed to be again operations against cash grain. Western receipts have shown a falling off this week, while interior shipments are picking up again. Distribution is good. Cash oats were firm, with standards 39½c; No. 3 white, 38@39c.

PROVISIONS.

The market for provisions displayed a better tone, and closed at a net gain for the day. Hogs were firmer, with receipts a little under 100,000, while the monthly statement of stocks did not show as much of an increase as expected. Contract pork gained 5,000 barrels, other qualities decreased 7,000, while contract lard increased 12,000 tierces. The total stock of meats increased 26,000,000 pounds.

COTTON.

The options which showed the greatest strength during Thursday's sessions were relatively heavy yesterday, reflecting less uneasiness on the part of shorts. Following higher quotations at the outset, there was a sagging of values. Considerable of the pressure represented Southern selling. Although the aggregate dealings were not heavy, they were interfered with to some extent by interruption in wire service.

Technical conditions are still dominating, and it is evident that the congestion felt in the near-by deliveries induces caution among those not in sympathy with the bull movement. The gossip yesterday was that cotton was headed this way from the South, attracted by the advance to over 13c for January, but it is claimed that spot interests are not dissatisfied with conditions, and are rather anxious to secure more cotton for replenishing the local warehouse stocks, which at present are only 73,000 bales, against 149,000 last year, there being considerable of this amount already sold.

The contention that leading trade houses were utilizing the strength of the options which mature shortly to liquidate in other parts of the list was not unnoticed, but it is obvious that the offerings have been very well absorbed, as the market is less than $1.54 per bale under the high of the movement. Sentiment seems to be rather adverse to quotations, but apart from the nervousness as to the control of the near months, it has been pointed out that Southern spots are still well held, and exports have not as yet fallen off as sharply as was predicted.

The shipments abroad since Sept. 1 aggregate 5,415,000 bales, against 5,470,000 a year ago. Week-end statistics favored the holders of contracts, but there was no fresh speculative demand of consequence inspired by these. Into sight for the week was, approximately, 415,000 bales, compared with 494,000 last year, and since Sept. 1 aggregates about 9,822,000 bales, or only 450,000 under last year, despite the smaller outturn thus far this season. Spinners' takings of American cotton were estimated at 410,000 bales, against 429,000 last year, suggesting a gain in the visible of only 5,000 bales of American cotton, against an increase of 65,000 last year, when the total American visible was 4,315,000 bales, compared with 5,203,000 at present.

Part of the selling during the day was attributed to the ginning figures, said to have been issued by the National Ginners' Association, the quantity to Dec. 1 being placed at 12,917,000 bales, or 478,000 for the period, against 546,000 reported last year from Dec. 13 to Jan. 1, when the total to the latter time was 14,317,000 bales. The National Ginners' report was somewhat above those recently issued by other private sources. European pressure was also noted during the day, but this was thought to represent profit-taking sales. The foreign market was not quite as high as expected. Spot sales at Liverpool, however, were moderate, Manchester accounts fairly good, and there were some claims that demand for goods from China had increased.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market again advanced, with comparatively little opposition. The attitude of refiners is causing quite a difference of opinion at this time. Many believe that large concerns have been quietly covering shorts, presumably representing hedge transactions. The near positions still display relative strength, and there has been scattered buying on account of the absence of tenders on January contracts thus far. Crude was a trifle steadier, but it is stated that there has been selling in the future market against purchases at the South, these operations being about the first of this character in several weeks. Seed is held relatively high. The limited consuming trade encourages those not in sympathy with an advance at present, but there is little aggressiveness from bear forces. Southeast and Texas crude was officially reported at 5.07 nominal.

COFFEE.

Heavy selling pressure throughout and slow demand made easy prices, closing near bottom at a net decline of 17 to 21 points. Sales were 73,000 bags.

Havre declined 1 to 1¼ francs, while Hamburg was ½ to ¾ pfennig lower. According to foreign compilations, the world's visible supply showed an increase for the month of 541,000 bags, compared with an increase last year of 105,000. Cost and freight offers from Brazil showed declines of 10 to 15 points.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

LITTLE DOING IN MILLINERY.

Paris Styles Have a Good Quantity of Small Flowers.

Conditions in the local millinery trade have changed only slightly during the week, and little activity is expected until the buyers from various parts of the country again visit the market. Most of the salesmen are now at their home offices, but in some instances they are preparing to leave shortly on their Spring filling-in trips. The advance business already done in flowers is reported to be double that of last year at this time in some quarters of the trade. According to one prominent importer the demand for these goods will be even larger than has been anticipated.

Styles shown in Paris indicate a strong tendency toward more trimming than has been used of late, and the most recent styles seen, while not over-trimmed, had a good quantity of small flowers on them. Western jobbers have apparently done a good business in flowers of all kinds, judging from the duplicate orders received from them by local importers. A fair business has also been booked on fancy feathers in stick-up effects.

SILVERSMITHS INACTIVE.

Post-Holiday Lull Keeps Business Light—Jewelers and Tariff.

The usual post-holiday lull has been in evidence in the Maiden Lane district this week so far as the silversmiths are concerned, and spot business was generally limited. A number of travelers left shortly after the coming of the new year for their regular Spring trips, and it was believed that between replenishing depleted stocks and making advance preparations for Easter and the June matrimonial season retailers would place some very good business with them. The past year dealt well with most of the wholesalers of these lines along the street, and there was more or less optimism on tap yesterday regarding the future.

In the jewelry end of the market the dominant topic was the attempt of the trade to have the present duties on gems retained. The present tariff provides for 20 per cent. duty on imitation stones, 10 per cent. duty on cut stones, and rough stones free. Any attempt to raise these duties, it is believed, will not only injure the trade financially, but will increase the temptation of the unscrupulous to undervalue and to smuggle.

HARDWARE PRICES FIRM.

Manufacturers Finished the Year with Unfilled Orders Heavier Than Usual.

With the jobbing houses busily engaged in stock-taking and retailers winding up 1912 business, little activity was reported in the local hardware trade this week. Manufacturers generally finished the year with a large business done and with more unfilled orders on their books than usual. This was particularly true of the manufacturers of the heavier lines of finished products. The mills are all working to full capacity, and in some instances are still far behind on deliveries. This is said to be on account of the inability of manufacturers to procure sufficient raw material. In one instance reported a manufacturer of mechanics' tools was promised some raw material last February, but the order is still unfilled.

Prices are well maintained on all lines, and on certain goods advances are looked for shortly. Retailers throughout the country report an excellent holiday business, and stocks are not large. Consequently the outlook for the future is considered promising.

LOOK FOR CARPET RECORD.

Higher Prices Expected to be General and Sales Already Near Limit.

With the road season in carpets and rugs yet to run some time, one of the prominent houses in the local floor coverings market yesterday reported an oversold condition of Axminster lines that made it imperative to withdraw several numbers from further sale. A considerable number of confirmatory orders were received in the week's mail, and there was said to be little doubt now but that the season would show record business in more than one instance. The price advances put into effect Jan. 1 by some of the larger houses was not made general, as had been expected, but the impression prevailed in the trade that higher prices all around were not far off.

The best part of the business with jobbers of linoleums and floor oilcloths has already been booked by this branch of the local trade, but some good retail business yet remains to be done. Business in the Middle West in these lines is reported especially good. Prices are generally unchanged.

CROCKERY MARKET INACTIVE.

Trade for the New Year Expected to be Satisfactory.

There was little activity in the local crockery and glassware market in the week, so far as actual business was concerned. The arrival of new goods and inventories kept the various clerical forces busy.

The trade was for the most part satisfied with the business done in 1912, and the outlook for the future was said to be more optimistic than at any time since 1907. With the general business of the country improved, there was every reason to believe that wholesalers in this market would satisfy a liberal share of the retailers' wants.

According to the Crockery and Glass Journal's reports from the Pittsburgh district, the books for the year have been closed and within the next two weeks manufacturers of glassware will know definitely how they stand. The domestic potteries are apparently not suffering from the recent increase in prices on these wares, and they, too, anticipate big business.

PRINTCLOTHS MORE ACTIVE.

Trading in printcloths was a trifle more active yesterday. Prices continued firm without important changes. Some lots of 38½-inch, 64-64s, were sold for quick delivery at 5⅜ cents. The day's quotations follow:

Twenty-seven-inch, 56-52s, 3¼c; 27-inch, 56-56s, 3⅜c; 27-inch, 64-60s, 3 13-16c; 28-inch, 64-60s, 3 15-16c; 28-inch, 64-64s, 4 1-16c; 38½-inch, 60-52s, 4¾c; 38½-inch, 64-60s, 5¼c; 38½-inch, 64-64s, 5⅝c; 39-inch, 68-72s, 5⅞c bid; 39-inch, 72-76s, 6¼c; 39-inch, 80-80s, 7⅜c; brown sheetings, Southern standard, 8@8½c; brown sheetings, 4-yard, 56-60s, 6½c; brown sheetings, 3-yard, 7¼@7½c; brown drills, standard, 8@8½c; denims, 9-ounce, 14@16¾c; tickings, 8-ounce, 13@13½c; standard prints, 5½c, and standard staple ginghams, at value, and 6½c.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The stockholders of Lesher, Whitman & Co., Incorporated, clothiers' trimmings, 670 Broadway, will hold their annual meeting at the offices of the company Jan. 8 at 3 o'clock.

The H. M. Peyser Company, glove importers, now located at 41 Union Square, will move about Feb. 1 to new quarters in the building at 432 Fourth Avenue.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Manufacturers of sporting goods report an excellent business in their lines, and orders to date are said to be larger than ever before.

Wistaria in fancy shades and small June roses have been ordered liberally by millinery jobbers. At present they are also apparently interested in fancy feathers in Nell rose, Copenhagen blue, and other bright colors.

Shipments of wire nails from the mills during December were larger than in the same month a year ago. The output and consumption for 1912 show a heavy increase over 1911.

Crepe and maline trimmings are expected to be in good demand in millinery circles during the early Spring.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

While the Arabian market for sheetings is improving, American shirtings have been practically driven out of the market. The imports of this article from the United States during 1911 were 702,950 yards, valued at $35,759, compared with 9,853,600 yards, worth $534,088, in 1910.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1912, the total value of imports through the Port of Durban was $39,054,363, compared with $36,962,810 during the corresponding period in 1911. Of these imports the United Kingdom furnished 55.9 per cent. and other British possessions 14.2 per cent.

Naphtha exports from the United States increased enormously this calendar year, being about 178,000,000 gallons. In the fiscal year 1911 the total was 77,660,000 gallons, and in 1908 36,000,000 gallons.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Stipa Grass, Shiratama Flour, and Cigarette Cases Considered.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that leather cigarette cases were dutiable at the specific rates under the act of 1909 as smokers' articles. Importers sought to pay as manufactures of metal not specially provided for.

The Asia Company failed to get lower duty on flour of Shiratama, assessed as starch, under Paragraph 296, act of 1909. Its plea was that it was rice flour under Paragraph 240.

The board sustained a protest by the August Bentkamp Company on stipa grass in natural condition, sun dried, bundled and boxed. Objection was made to an assessment at 35 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 463 of the present act. Free entry was asked under several paragraphs.

Other protests that succeeded were by F. H. Leggett & Co., A. & H. Veith & Co., Glaenzer & Co., M. K. J. Corbett & Co., and others.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The new year opens with all the gains and advantages achieved during the last half of 1912. There is, of course, the lull usual during the closing days of the year due to the holidays and the annual readjustments and inventories; but underlying conditions remain unchanged and the new year takes over from the old the increased agricultural wealth resulting from the big crops, the great activity in the largest industries, especially iron and steel; the augmented confidence in nearly all branches of domestic trade, the record-breaking foreign commerce, and the full employment of labor at high wages, insuring large buying power. With this legacy from 1912, the maintenance of a satisfactory volume of business during at least the earlier months of 1913 is apparently assured. Further than that even the most experienced foresight cannot safely prognosticate, for much will depend this year, as always, on the yield of the farms and the developments in international and National Governmental policies. The foreign commerce of the Port of New York in the latest week amounted to $29,388,774, against $28,998,662 in 1911 and $32,493,648 in 1910. Exports were larger and imports less than in 1911.

Bradstreet's says:

After traveling at an exceptionally brisk pace, business has slowed down, and everywhere things are quiet, though less so than usual at this season. Confidence in the future is in evidence, the buying power of the public is such as to presage activity, and there are few discordant notes as to the outlook, which is deemed to be conservatively optimistic. For the present, however, inventories attract most attention, while salesmen are preparing for the road, and, in fact, some are already on their routes. Retail dealers enjoyed an unexampled holiday trade, and they are now pushing the usual January clearance sales. Stock taking reveals few complaints as to volumes of business, but, on the other hand, the margins of profit were disappointing, save with banks, which did remarkably well in 1912. Dry weather throughout the Western Winter wheat belt causes some little concern, but east of the Alleghenies there is plenty of moisture, and it is obviously too early in the season to give this aspect of affairs much consideration. The Northwest reports that but little snow has fallen thus far this season.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Thirty-first Street Hotel Near Fifth Avenue Sold for $550,000—Sixth Avenue Corner Deal—$500,000 Brooklyn Transaction—Suburban Buyers in Jersey and Long Island.

A hotel deal in the Fifth Avenue section near Thirty-fourth Street, involving over $500,000, imparted a very active and healthy tone to the realty market yesterday. The hotel sold is the twelve-story structure known as Le Marquis at 12, 14 and 16 East Thirty-first Street, occupying a plot 54 by 112 in the middle of the block between Fifth and Madison Avenues. It was sold by the National Centre Realty Company of which Joseph Fleischman is President and the consideration was about $550,000. The buyer is the New Belgravia Company. The hotel will continue to be managed by its present proprietor, Edward H. Chatillion, who has a lease on the property which does not expire for fifteen years.

In the Times Square section the nine-story Hotel Belmont at 116 and 118 West Forty-fifth Street, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway, was sold in foreclosure proceedings by Bryan L. Kennelly at the Vesey Street salesroom. It covers a plot 40 by 100 and is under lease until 1924. It was bought in by the plaintiff, Thomas E. Greacen. The mortgages and other liens against it aggregate nearly $220,000.

Tenants Buy Sixth Avenue Corner.

A valuable parcel on the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street has been purchased from the Van Schaick Realty Company to the Oestreicher Brothers, tenants of the corner building. The property includes the four old structures at 485 and 487 Sixth Avenue and 103 and 105 West Twenty-ninth Street, fronting 50 feet on the avenue by 100 on the street and an extension of 28 by 24 toward the centre of the block. The purchase has been made for investment and no immediate plans for improvement are contemplated. The property has been held by the Van Schaick family for more than a century and the sale is the largest cash transaction on Sixth Avenue between Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets for some time. Title to the property passed yesterday subject to a mortgage of $240,000.

The City of New York which holds title to a plot 175 by 150 on 158th Street, between Jackson and Trinity Avenues, has purchased seven three-story dwellings fronting on Jackson Avenue, giving it a frontage of 260 feet on that thoroughfare, and five two-story houses on Trinity Avenue, which increases its holdings on this thoroughfare to 275 feet. Several other parcels required for the new school site, which could not be acquired for a reasonable figure at private sale, are in process of condemnation.

A $500,000 Brooklyn Deal.

An important deal in the shopping district of Brooklyn was announced yesterday by the executors of the Millard F. THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The great storm that is central to-night over the lower St. Lawrence Valley is remarkable for both the rapidity of its development and for its abnormally low barometer readings. It had moved slowly across the country in the form of a narrow north and south trough, and on Thursday evening it was attended with only moderate intensity from Alabama to Eastern Lake Superior.

Further development was, of course, expected, and storm warnings were ordered from Virginia to Florida. During Thursday night there was a great increase in the intensity of the storm, and on Friday morning it was central over Virginia, with a low barometer reading of 28.86 inches, the general depression extending westward almost to the Mississippi River, with rains and snows and high winds in progress along the South Atlantic Coast.

During Friday the storm continued northward, with steadily increasing tendency, rains and snows and heavy gales, and the barometer readings were the lowest of record over the greater portion of the country from Virginia northward. Canton, N. Y., reported 28.32 inches at 4 P. M. and still falling.

Thus far the recovery in pressure in the rear of the storm has been slow, although precipitation has ceased south and west of Pennsylvania, and temperatures have fallen decidedly in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, the Middle South Atlantic and East Gulf States.

Pressure is also low over the West, except in the Pacific States, with a well marked centre of disturbance central over Eastern Colorado, but it is as yet without precipitation, except some snow and rain from the Dakotas westward, accompanied by a sharp fall in temperature. In the Southwest and the Central West it is much warmer.

The storm over the lower St. Lawrence Valley will continue northeastward, although there will be snow Saturday from Lake Michigan eastward, with lower temperatures.

The disturbance over Colorado will move eastward, attended by snows Saturday to the northward, and during Saturday night and Sunday there will be snow or rain in the central plains States and the central valleys, reaching the lower lake region by Sunday night. In the South and extreme West the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday.

It will be colder Saturday in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, and the Central West, and colder Sunday in the central valleys.

The winds along the New England Coast will be high west, diminishing by Sunday morning; Middle Atlantic Coast, high west and northwest, diminishing during Saturday night; South Atlantic Coast, west, diminishing and becoming variable.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have high west winds, with snow and colder weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Cloudy Saturday; snow in interior; colder; west gales. Sunday, fair.

Southern New England—Snow and colder Saturday, with west gales. Sunday, fair.

New Jersey—Colder and generally fair Saturday; high west winds. Sunday, fair.

Western New York—Snow and colder Saturday, with high west and northwest winds. Sunday, cloudy.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday, except snow in northeast portion; colder; high west winds. Sunday, fair.

Northern New England—Snow and colder Saturday, with southwest to west gales. Sunday, fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

ROAD ATTACKS WICKERSHAM.

Southern Pacific Hints Inconsistency in Oil Land Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Criticism of the course of Attorney General Wickersham in the Southern Pacific oil land litigation was made by Maxwell Evarts and Henry W. Clark, counsel to the Southern Pacific Railroad, in a brief filed to-day in the Supreme Court, in defense of the company's claim to millions of dollars' worth of Western oil land. It was said title to $500,000,000 worth of such territory depended on the litigation. The case before the Supreme Court involved questions whether Edmund Burke and other private litigants had better claims to the land than had the road. The Government filed a suit recently, in which it sought to annul patents to the land it issued to the Southern Pacific.

"It is unparalleled in the whole history of judicial procedure," said the road attorneys, "for the Attorney General of the United States to be permitted to intervene as a 'friend of the court' in a case between private litigants, and then so to use the privilege granted to him as to attempt to have decided issues not now before the court, and which may or may not hereafter come before it in a Government suit just begun against one of the parties to the case at bar. It is certainly unfair and unjust to the railroad to be compelled in this court of last resort not only to defend the present case, but also to defend another case arising on entirely different facts, which has not proceeded beyond the filing of a bill of complaint."

The attorneys submitted an opinion Mr. Wickersham was said to have given to the Secretary of the Interior in 1911, in which he expressed the belief that the opinion in the case now opposed by him was sound. They took the position that the patents were conclusive evidence the lands were not mineral, whatever they might have been discovered to be after the patents were issued. The cases will come up for argument next week.

SPECULATION AS A SPORT

Excitement of Wall Street Lured Keene—Bought Railroad to Discharge a Conductor—His Philosophy.

Foxhall Keene, son of James R. Keene, who died early yesterday morning, as printed in the later editions of THE TIMES, after undergoing an operation for an acute stomach ailment at Miss Alston's House for Private Patients in West Sixty-first Street, announced last night that the Rev. Percy S. Grant would have charge of the funeral services to be held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock at Grace Episcopal Church, Broadway and Eleventh Street.

It is expected that a large number of veteran Wall Street operators who were personally acquainted with Mr. Keene will attend the funeral in a body, while from the veteran race horse men who have outlived, as did Mr. Keene, their favorite sport a big delegation will be present.

Many floral offerings were sent to Miss Alston's hospital yesterday from former admirers of Mr. Keene's race horses as well as from friends. They were sent to the Stephen Merritt undertaking establishment in Eighth Avenue, to which the body was removed early in the morning.

The body will lie in state until Monday, when it will be taken to Grace Church, and afterward, on a special Central train, to Woodlawn Cemetery. The interment will be in the Keene family burial plot.

Many efforts were made yesterday to estimate the amount of property held by Mr. Keene at the time of his death. It was learned that he had disposed of nearly all his real estate, and had invested in stocks and bonds. Persons fairly intimate with Mr. Keene's affairs estimated his wealth at $15,000,000.

Mr. Keene's only daughter, Jessica Keene Taylor, will undoubtedly be his chief heir. She built an elaborate mansion at Cedarhurst several years ago, and Mr. Taylor called in Mrs. Mazie Cowles to help decorate it. The result was an auction sale in which Mrs. Taylor disposed of all the furnishings purchased by Mrs. Cowles, and afterward obtained a divorce, the divorce being followed very shortly by the marriage of Mr. Taylor and Mrs. Cowles.

Mrs. Taylor still retains the mansion with furnishings of her own selection, and lives at Cedarhurst with her four children. It was Mrs. Taylor's children that made Mr. Keene a grandfather, and he never tired of talking about them or playing with them when he could join the family at the Cedarhurst house. Mrs. Keene has been dead for some years.

The Stirring of Memories.

In the financial district the most immediate result of the announcement of Mr. Keene's death was the stirring of memories that had long been dormant concerning historic Wall Street moments in which Mr. Keene shared the spotlight with Jay Gould, E. H. Harriman, Henry O. Havemeyer, H. H. Rogers, and other noted financiers.

"Why do you cling to the stock gambling game?" it was recalled that Mr. Keene had once been asked. And his question in answer, flashed back from Wall Street's legends, "Why does a dog pursue its thousandth rabbit?"

The question and its answer date from a time when James R. Keene might have stepped out of the Street with a $10,000,000 bank account and plenty of things in connection with his race horses to keep him occupied for the rest of his life.

His answer he illustrated at the time in formulating plans to form a pool in Southern Pacific, and harry and harass the Harriman control. So persistent a stock speculator was Mr. Keene that none of the Wall Street veterans considered him a money seeker at it, but rather a sportsman, who found in manipulating stocks and bonds the same excitement that other sportsmen might get from the roulette wheel or a big poker game.

His philosophy expanded in the terms of his dog-and-rabbit figure runs:

"Your dog will chase his thousandth and even his millionth rabbit just as though it were the first he had ever seen; he'll strive and strain in pursuit of it to the point of heartbreak; one might suppose his soul's life depended upon its capture. And yet should he overtake it he will cast it aside when killed, and will begin quartering the ground to start another. To the last gasp of his breath that dog will chase his rabbit. When you tell me why that dog wants another rabbit, I will tell you why I want more money."

Mr. Keene's death removed the last surviving figure of a most picturesque era of American speculation. As in the case of John W. Gates, whose death preceded his by several years, Mr. Keene could find no contentment in life except that which came from "taking his money off the tape."

His Character Very Complex.

His character was very complex, and while Wall Street operators saw one side of him they knew nothing of the side he displayed while petting Sysonby and the older Domino, or the satisfaction he gathered from erecting a monument to Domino after his death.

Mr. Keene contended to the very end of his experience with race horses that Colin was the greatest horse in his stable or in the world, so far as ability to win races was concerned, while Domino was the most lovable horse that ever lived, regardless of what the people might think of their favorite Sysonby.

When Colin came home with first money in the Brighton Junior, a classic event of New York's final racing era, Keene walked over to "Jim" Rowe, his trainer, whom he found in the paddock. While everyone was going wild with excitement there was no sign that Mr. Keene was in the least moved. He took Rowe by the hand and offered merely a low but sincere "Thank you." Turfmen standing near are still able to recall their astonishment and Rowe's comment as Keene turned back to the rail of the clubhouse, "Gee, Keene is sure wrapped up in that colt; he must be a comer."

And a "comer" of course he was, as he won in his first season for Mr. Keene purses amounting to $50,000. Mr. Keene always insisted this horse was his ideal of what American standards of breeding could do.

"The horse has bred into him," Mr. Keene said, "both speed and stamina. His winnings mean that our standard is improving. And our standard should continue to improve, for the horse is a noble animal and is worth cultivating."

Many of the stories told about Mr. Keene have been repeated so often that all semblance to their original form has disappeared and they survive as legends whose authenticity is denied by those who were closest to the man they most intimately concern. One such story, told with the proviso that "if it is not true it ought to be," has to do with an experience Mr. Keene had while trying to commute from Wall Street to his home in New Jersey. He had forgotten his commutation book and in lieu of it he gave the conductor on the train that was taking him home a familiar sign.

"You are due with just $1.25," said the uniformed employe, coldly.

"I know, I know," persisted Keene, "but you know me, and to-morrow you can punch the ticket twice."

The conductor reached for the bellrope, as he said.

"You pay up, or I'll put you off."

"You don't dare!" challenged Keene.

Put Him Off the Train.

But the conductor did dare. The train stopped and Keene was forced to step off into the rich red mud of New Jersey.

With as much moderation as he thought fitting Keene approached the Superintendent, but received scant courtesy and no sympathy whatever. He tried the President of the road and was abruptly shown to the door. And then he decided it was time to act.

He landed back in his own office thoroughly stirred up, and started a rampant buying crusade that was carried on with orders to brokers to "get the stock and never mind the price." When he was able to swing control the first thing Keene did was to fire the conductor, then the Superintendent, and finally the President. And after that his stock was for sale in small lots to any taker not known to be connected with the interests of the former management.

To reporters and interviewers in general Mr. Keene maintained a placid attitude even in the face of many press portrayals that shocked his sense of the appropriate. He often found himself the object of solicitude on the part of clergymen who objected to his failure to establish a church membership. Once a woman interviewer, who brought many pencils and a pad of paper with her, got his views on the churches and also sketches of his angles while he delivered himself of them. The article, when it appeared, made some clergymen set apart a day for prayers that his spirit might be changed. He objected to most of the cartoons of him, but one by Homer Davenport he took to his heart and gave it a place on the wall of his office alongside the picture of his Domino.

On the turf, as in Wall Street, Mr. Keene's final public activities were defending age-old practices against a newer public opinion that would not tolerate them. He became angry whenever the name of Gov. Hughes was mentioned in his presence, and once he went to the office of August Belmont to upbraid him for promising certain reforms in connection with race track customs. These practices to Mr. Keene were entirely right and were sprinkled with the dust of hallowed precedent. He wanted no reforms, either in the methods which made him the centre of what even now stands as Wall Street's most recent sensational stock manipulation, or in the race track against which Gov. Hughes waged war.

The Passing of the Stable.

The end of the Keene stable of racing thoroughbreds came earlier than the end of its master. One by one in keen regret, because of hostile laws, Mr. Keene let his horses go to Kentucky, South America, and London. One day when hundreds of devotees of fashion were at the Madison Square Garden enjoying the Horse Show, Mr. Keene led away a selected few of his friends—men and women who like himself loved what was most noble in a thoroughbred horse. He led them northward to the Museum of Natural History and in the lengthening shadows at nightfall stood before Sysonby poised for speed. And he stood in a silence that none of his friends thought it timely to interrupt. Among those present were Frank K. Sturgis, Schuyler L. Parsons, Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Francis R. Appleton, Mrs. Clarence Mackay, Gen. Horace Porter, ex-Ambassador Choate, Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn—in fact, an unusually large group of those most devoted to Horse Show affairs.

Mr. Keene ran his hand lovingly over Sysonby's head, and at last some one remarked, "A perfect horse, Mr. Keene."

The veteran turfman seemed to be roused from a distant revery of races. "Yes, I think so," he answered, and then led the way back toward the Horse Show. Sysonby was just a skeleton mounted at the museum among the skeletons of other famous animals and entered for the "Fossil Stakes" in the thoroughbreds' Valhalla.

The visit to the shrine of Sysonby was the last thing Mr Keene was known to do in the line of his race course activities. His famous Castleton farm in Kentucky, from which his ambitious 2-year-olds came forth to sweep the tracks of the country, is now owned by a Kentucky corporation which raises blooded stock for farm use.

The friends of Mr. Keene tell scores of anecdotes illustrating the kindly and witty manner in which he commented on life's affairs. "As slow as a funeral" was the comment he made on the London Fire Department's speed after he had walked out of the burning Hotel Carlton, with a blanket wrapped about him. The phrase stuck and became the accepted way of unfriendly critics of referring to the Fire Department's work.

"All life is a speculation," he propounded as the final philosophy of his career. "The spirit of speculation is born with man. Providence has impressed on his head and brain the betting instinct. It is one of the greatest gifts with which we have been endowed. Without speculation, call it gambling if you wish, initiative would cease, business would decay, values decline and the country go back twenty years in less than one."

KEENE AS A SPECULATOR.

Greater Pleasure to Lose to Him Than Win from a Bungler, Says Lawson.

In his stock market operations one of the men with whom James R. Keene frequently crossed swords was Thomas W. Lawson. THE TIMES telegraphed Mr. Lawson yesterday, asking him for his estimate of Mr. Keene as a speculator. Here is his reply:

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE TIMES.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 3.—Replying to your telegram: Keene played 'em fast and furious, with the blue sky for a limit, and whether he dealt from the top, bottom, or middle, his fingers never discarded with his heart. His life was a symphony of gamble, and it was a greater pleasure to lose to him than to win from a bungler. We often wrangled, but my admiration for his ability was excelled only by my wonder at his nerve.

Rockefeller Picks Dandelions.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Jan. 3.—John D. Rockefeller did not play golf to-day because of the heavy rain, but he strolled around his grounds picking out the dandelions. The Winter has been so open that thousands of them are in full bloom and Mr. Rockefeller to preserve his lawn is going to set his men to work getting rid of the Winter crop.

SULLIVAN GUN LAW UPHELD ON APPEAL

Appellate Division Holds, 3 to 2, That the Legislature May Forbid Even Keeping a Pistol at Home.

TWO JUSTICES DISSENT

Regulation Deprives a Householder of the Means of Defending His Home, They Assert.

The Appellate Division upheld the constitutionality of the Sullivan dangerous weapon law in a decision filed yesterday. The majority opinion of the court held that the keeping of a revolver by a householder in his home might be prohibited by the Legislature as a penal offense, under the "police power" clause of the Constitution, despite the constitutional guarantee of the right to bear arms.

In a dissenting opinion, two Justices held that it was beyond the power of the Legislature to penalize the keeping of a revolver at home, and asserted that such a prohibition was against public policy, since it prevented householders from defending themselves from marauders against whom police vigilance was often ineffective and who would disregard the law as applied to carrying dangerous weapons.

By the decision of the Appellate Division, Joseph F. Darling, a lawyer of 116 Nassau Street, who brought the test case on a writ of habeas corpus against the Warden of the Tombs, was recommitted to the City Prison to stand trial. He will appeal to the Court of Appeals. Darling lodged against himself the complaint on which he was arrested and taken to a Magistrate's court, where he was held for trial in Special Sessions. He surrendered to the Warden of the Tombs, and then sued out a writ of habeas corpus, which was sustained in Special Term of the Supreme Court. The matter came before the Appellate Division on the District Attorney's appeal.

The theory of the majority of the court, for whom Justice Clarke wrote the prevailing opinion, concurred in by Justices Laughlin and Miller, was that the Sullivan Law was but an extension of the old concealed weapons act. Justice Clarke wrote:

> For the safety of the public, for the preservation of the public peace, the Legislature has passed a regulative, not a prohibitory, act. Legislation which has for its object the promotion of public welfare and safety falls within the scope of the police power and must be submitted to, even though it imposes restraints and burdens on the individual.
>
> There has been for many years upon the statute books a law against the carrying of concealed weapons. No court in this country has ever declared such a law in violation of the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. It did not seem effective in preventing crimes of violence in this State. Of the same kind and character, but providing a step further with the regulatory legislation, the Legislature has now picked out one particular kind of arm, the usual and the favorite weapon of the turbulent criminal class and has said that in our organized communities, our cities, towns, and villages, the citizen may not have that particular kind of weapon without a permit. If he has it in his possession he can readily stick it into his pocket when he goes abroad. In the attempt to prevent this particular kind of a crime the Legislature says that possession of a concealable pistol shall be a misdemeanor.
>
> Whether the legislation was wise is not for us to consider. The courts are bound to assume that the lawmaking power acted with a desire to promote the public good. This is not a question of substituting the judgment of the court for that of the Legislature. If the act is within the power of the State it is valid.

Continuing, the majority opinion held that the legislation was a proper exercise of the police power and was not unduly oppressive.

In criticising the construction of the Sullivan Law by the majority of the court, the minority opinion, written by Justice Scott, in which Presiding Justice Ingraham concurred, said:

"The practical result of the construction now sought to be given to the act will be that the professional criminal will generally violate the law and take his chance of discovery and punishment, while the law-abiding citizen will be obliged to disarm himself of his only effective protection against the predatory classes. The best police force in the world cannot always or even usually anticipate and prevent crimes of violence. They can, and usually do, preserve peace and order and sometimes discover the perpetrators of crimes, but they can seldom prevent. A law-abiding citizen in his walks abroad can usually avoid dangerous localities, and if he is compelled to traverse them, can obtain a license to carry a defensive weapon, but in his own house, wherever it may be situated, he can never entirely secure himself against the midnight marauder. For protection there he is compelled to rely upon himself and upon such means of defense as he may have at hand. The construction now sought to be given to the act would deprive him of such protection."

JUDGE CHATFIELD SILENT.

Will Not Discuss Charges Made to Bar Association Against Him.

United States District Judge Thomas Ives Chatfield of Brooklyn declined yesterday to discuss the complaints against him which were heard by the Grievance Committee of the Brooklyn Bar Association on Thursday night, as was told in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. Neither would any member of the committee talk about the matter. Discourtesy to counsel, delay, and neglect are said to have been charged against the Judge.

It could not be learned whether the Bar Association contemplated any action. Eugene V. Brewster, who was named as one of the complaining lawyers, said yesterday that he was not. United States District Attorney William J. Youngs and his assistants would not talk of the charges, saying that they knew nothing about them.

$50,000 BAIL FOR JACKSON.

Salo J. Jackson, former President of the defunct Jackson-Mack Manufacturing Company of 121 West Twenty-third Street, was held in $50,000 bail yesterday by Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions following his plea of not guilty to five indictments charging him with the larceny of $100,000 from commission merchants in this city.

Jackson was arrested in the State of Tabasco, Mexico, several weeks ago, and, waiving extradition, came to this city and surrendered himself. It is charged that he had been running a number of swindles against commission merchants by presenting false invoices to be cashed.

FOSDICK ABSOLVED CURRAN.

Told Mayor Alderman Was Not Guilty of Graft.

When Mayor Gaynor accused Alderman Henry H. Curran, Chairman of the Curran Investigating Committee, of taking graft in a letter written on Dec. 9 it was supposed that whatever knowledge the Mayor had obtained concerning Mr. Curran had come to him from the Commissioner of Accounts. Raymond B. Fosdick testified yesterday that while he was Commissioner of Accounts he never supplied the Mayor with such information.

Mr. Fosdick sails to-day for Europe to make an investigation into police methods abroad. He expects to be away some six months, and Mr. Curran hopes to have his suit against the Mayor for libel disposed of in the early Spring. Therefore Mr. Curran's counsel and the counsel of the Mayor agreed to take Mr. Fosdick's statement yesterday and make it part of the court records in the suit.

The first meeting of the Curran Committee was held on Sept. 9, and the Mayor promised to appear as a witness. He did not appear but sent a letter to Mr. Curran saying that he could not ally himself with Mr. Curran in an effort to discover wrongdoing in the Police Department. The Mayor wrote that he had called attention to the "miserable grafting carried on by members of the Board of Aldermen."

In his testimony yesterday Mr. Fosdick said that in his investigations there was nothing that implicated Mr. Curran in any way.

The French Chefs of the World Award the GRAND PRIX

AT the EXPOSITION INTERNATIONALE d'Hygiene, at which the leading French chefs assemble in Paris from all parts of the world to pass upon the choicest food products, the Grand Prix for preserved fruits, dried fruits and asparagus was awarded to the California Fruit Canners Association, packers of the famous

Del Monte
Peaches, Cherries, Asparagus, Raisins, Honey, etc.

Ask your grocer to-day for the DEL MONTE brand of canned fruits and vegetables, packed where they ripen the day they're picked in California's finest orchards and fields.

At the very first trial you will realize DEL MONTE'S superior quality and you will be convinced that never before have you obtained such quality at the prices. Used by the U. S. Army and Navy Hospitals.
